Tar Heels Get Clobbered By Duke, 104-69

Spearman Elected To Head State Student Legislature

Bob Spearman, Student Body vice-president, was elected president of the North Carolina State Student Legislature for 1963-64 in Raleigh yesterday.

'Bomb 'Em,' Says Barry

GREENSBORO (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, (R-Ariz.) proposed Saturday that the United States get tougher in South Viet Nam and start by bombing the supply routes used to provide Communist guerrillas with food and ammunition.

The Arizona conservative, launching his Dixie bandwagon for the Republican presidential nomination at the state GOP convention, also suggested that the tobacco industry, rather than the federal government, finance any necessary tobacco research.

Goldwater also indicated he would vote for the controversial civil rights bill if the public accommodations section and a section establishing a fair employment practices commission were eliminated.

'Careers'

"Careers for Carolina," a unique program sponsored jointly by the Institute of Government and Student Government, has posted sign-up lists. The program will be limited to the first 25 sophomores and seniors and 50 juniors who apply.

Otelia Will Judge Contest

Otelia Conner, who has been urging students to string along with her etiquette for some time now, will be all wound up come Saturday. She accepted an invitation yesterday to be a judge in the DTH Kite Contest next weekend.

Mrs. Conner expressed delight at the invitation, and said "I only hope I'll do a good job."

2,000 MPH!

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson revealed Saturday that the United States is flying a 2,000-mile-an-hour fighter plane that far outclasses any other aircraft in the world and opens new vistas for civilian as well as military aviation.

He partially lifted four years of secrecy to announce at his first news conference with "live" radio-television coverage that the "All jet intercepter" has passed long-range flight tests at more than three times the speed of sound.

His proud disclosure highlighted a 33-minute news session, his first since Feb. 1, in which he asserted confidence in the world's chances for a peaceful future, reaffirmed his stand against racial intolerance, turned aside political questions and ranged over other broad areas of international and domestic issues.

The President vowed no compromise on the far-reaching House-approved civil rights bill now awaiting Senate debate. He stood firm on U.S. policies in Southeast Asia and Panama. He defended the U.S. curb on an anticipated $2 billion lard sale to Cuban Communist dictator Fidel Castro.

As he did at his last two news conferences, he declined to get into new specifics about the Senate Rules Committee's investigation of his former protege, ex-Senate Democratic Secretary Robert G. Bobby Baker.

at a banquet Friday night in the N.C. State Student Union.

Scott spoke out against the speaker and talked about the progress the Sanford administration had made.

"The gag law is the way of the coward, the fearful and the hysterical," he said. He commended the delegates for their courage in opposing the law and asked them to help bring about its repeal by educating the citizenry of its faults.

Scott spoke of the great progress the Sanford administration had made in the fields of education and mental health.

Six of the bills on the agenda did not come up for debate during the three-day legislative session because time ran out.

Included among these were a bill to ban the flying of the confederate flag from public buildings and one to give the governor the veto power. A special bill was passed in the plenary session to urge public officials not to be pressured against college teachers participating in social protest. The bill was jointly introduced by about half the delegations and was presented by John Ufelder of UNC and Moore of N.C. State.

Preyer Selects Charlie Shaffer For Campaign

Charlie Shaffer, UNC basketball and tennis star, was named yesterday as one of three students to direct a statewide Students for Preyer campaign.

L. Richardson Preyer, Democratic candidate for governor, announced Shaffer's selection. Besides Shaffer, John Bynum, student body president at NC State, and Kitty Bernhardt, editor of the Wake Forest Annual, were chosen.

In making the announcement, Preyer said, "One of the great qualities of the Democratic Party traditionally has been its spirit of youth and vitality. This spirit will now glow brighter through Students For Preyer and the leadership of these three fine college students. We are delighted to have them on our team."

Students for Preyer is the first statewide student organization to support a candidate for governor of North Carolina.

In accepting the appointment, the three student leaders said, "We believe that Richardson Preyer will receive the overwhelming support of students all over North Carolina. We already feel that his candidacy has fired the imaginations of college students all over the state and generated tremendous enthusiasm that will be translated into new registrations and votes for him on May 30."

"We will announce very soon the establishment of Students for Preyer organizations on every college campus in the state."

Shaffer is a senior and is co-captain of the basketball and tennis teams. He is president of the senior class, president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and a member of the Order of Old Well, Order of Grail and Order of Golden Fleece. His home is Chapel Hill.

SLAUGHTERED—These were the faces of two members of the UNC pep band yesterday afternoon as the Duke basketball team became the first in history to score 100 or more points against the Tar Heels in Woollen Gym. The final score 104-69, was the worst Carolina has been beaten in many, many years. It was a dark afternoon. —Photo by Jim Wallace

Mullins, Harrison Lead Woollen Rout

By JOHN MONTAGUE

The Duke Blue Devils—by far the best team in the ACC—came to Woollen Gym yesterday afternoon. They left several hours later with their reputation intact.

This team from nearby Durham is one which is getting better. In early January, playing on their home court, the Blue Devils thrashed the Tar Heels by 20 points. Yesterday, playing on the Carolina home floor, they didn't even bother to raise a good sweat as they disposed of the Tar Heels by 35 points.

The final score read 104-69, but it hardly mattered except that Duke did become the first team ever to score 100 points against the Tar Heels in Woollen Gym. You didn't need to keep score to know who was winning. In fact, you probably could have stuck your head in the door, looked at any two-minute period of action, and come away knowing what it didn't take 5,000 spectators too long to find out—that Duke was by far the superior team.

North Carolina was "up" for this one, and the Tar Heels' determination was the only thing which kept them in the game far as long as they were in it—about five minutes.

Playing without the services of starting forward Charlie Shaffer (sprained ankle) and with their bench shortened by the loss of Billy Galantai (bad knee), the Tar Heels gave it a good try. But you have to do more than just try against these Blue Devils. You have to get the ball in the basket practically every time you shoot. This the Tar Heels did not do.

Duke's big Hack Tison put in the first two for UNC when he goal-tended on a lay-up by Bryan McSweeney. Artie Katz then fed Ray Hassel for an easy one and it was 4-0, Tar Heels. The game should have ended here.

averaging 8.5 a game had 14 points. He did it again in the second half to finish with 28 — his best performance of the season. After Billy Cunningham swished a 30-foot jump shot to move the Tar Heels up by four again, 6-2, the visiting Devils reeled off 10 straight points, and UNC never got closer than four after that.

With big Jay Buckley and Tison mopping up under the boards, Harrison popping from the outside, and the whole team collaborating in a fast break that wouldn't quit, the ACC champs continued to up their lead.

Duke's All-American, Jeff Mullins, couldn't get started scoringwise until almost ten minutes had elapsed, but the quick forward clearly showed his greatness even when he wasn't hitting. After an offshot, he would follow up, grab the rebound and feed under to Tison or Buckley for an easy shot. The two big boys had so many easy shots that, from the floor, Buckley was six for six and Tison was six for nine.

There was another All-American on the court — Carolina's Cunningham, but he just didn't have the support that Mullins did. Ray Respass did sink a few jumpers, but most of the time Billy had to do it all. And even Billy was no match for the rebound-crazy Blue Devils under the boards.

In the first half UNC managed only seven rebounds. The Kid got five of them. Meanwhile Mullins had 10, Buckley 8 and Tison 7. For the whole game, the Blue Devils out-rebounded the Tar Heels by an unbelievable 59 to 34.

Through most of the first half, the Blue Devils toyed around with a lead which one minute (Continued on Page 4)

Residence College System Proposed By Cathey, Long

Dean of Men William G. Long has proposed a sweeping reorganization of campus living units in an effort to lessen students' feelings of being "little more than a few holes punched in an IBM card."

"We plan to follow up on it right away," Cathey said. Long's plan would probably result in:

- social activities centering upon specific residence areas and the pooling of financial resources.
- newsletters for specific residence hall areas.
- officially changing the names of areas to specific residence college names.
- each residence college having a president and each residence hall having a chancellor.
- faculty advisors for the various residence halls or units.
- campus chaplains for the residence colleges.
- deferred fall rush for freshmen.

Long proposed the following specific subdivisions as residence college areas: (1) Battle-Vance-Pettigrew, Old East, Old West and Carr; (2) the Lower Quad; (3) the Upper Quad; (4) Winston, Connor, Joyner and Alexander; (5) Avery, Parker and Teague; (6) Ehringhaus Hall; (7) Craig Hall.

He suggested designing emblems for residence college areas that could be worn on blazers, placed on stationery and upon the fronts of the residence

SP To Fill Seat In SL

Filling party positions and a legislative vacancy will be the main order of business at the Student Party meeting tomorrow night.

The meeting, scheduled for Gerrard Hall at 7 p.m., will also be the first time the new by-laws are distributed. Paul Dickson, party chairman, said yesterday that the ratified version has been printed and are available.

The legislative seat is in Town by Paul Chused. Party positions vacant include Sergeant-at-Arms and Publicity Chairman.

Prof's Meet Here Monday

The UNC chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) will hold a special meeting in the lounge of the Faculty Club Monday.

Resolutions dealing with UNC roles in racial relations in and around Chapel Hill, the University's role in research leaves and University salary policies will be discussed at the meeting.

The two resolutions to be considered at the special meeting were proposed by the local AAUP chapter's Executive Committee. One resolution proposes that racial discrimination be permanently eliminated from every aspect of the official life of the University and the other proposes that the local AAUP chapter oppose imposition of penalties by university and college authorities against those members of faculties and student bodies participating in peaceful demonstrations on or off campus in support of causes which may be controversial in their communities.

The New Wave Leaves You 'Breathless'

He finances this chase after the money by various other crimes along the way. Meanwhile the police are chasing him but both Michel's flight and the police hunt are half-hearted. Michel's indifference to life, even his own, makes his death almost as meaningless as the existence that preceded it.

In one bedroom scene Michel is lying in Patricia's bed and she blandly goes about arranging packages and belongings in her apartment while he observes her delectable derriere. Sex and its pleasures appears to be the only bond between them. She tells him that when she stares into his face, she sees nothing. It is not only his spiritual emptiness but hers that make them both so free that they have no sense of responsibility or guilt. Like trying on clothes, they are youth playing at living but never involved. Expediency is the standard for behavior and the ordinary moral judgments of society cannot touch them.
