Lawler To Make Bid For Campus Prexy

Dickson, Spearman Express Surprise

Mike Lawler, one of the all-time popular student body presidents, yesterday announced his candidacy for re-election to the position of chief playmate in the student government "sadd-box."

Lawler's opponents, Jeff Dickson of the Student Party and Bob Spearman University Party, said they were extremely surprised at the unprecedented move by Lawler.

Lawler, running on the independent ticket, has already been backed by Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cahy for the post.

Dickson noted, "But gosh a mighty! Mike was supposed to be running my campaign."

SL Adopts Speaker Ban

Student Legislature adopted an apparent strategy of "fighting a ban with a ban" last night and passed a measure preventing "any member of the N. C. General Assembly from speaking on the campus of any state-supported institution."

Spearman reported, "That he was disappointed that he'd have such a formidable opponent in the spring election. 'After all,' he said, 'I've been planning on being president of the student body now for three years. I'll just have to work harder.'"

Rumors have it that Lawler dropped five courses to retain his eligibility.

For further details see next year's April 1 Edition.

CORRECTION

The editors deeply regret their statement in yesterday's paper that a well-known campus conservative "is not fit to clean out a hog pen." We realize that it was rude and uncalled for in the tenets of today's journalism. Actually, he is fit to clean out a hog pen.

ERICKSON WITHDRAWS

UNC Athletic Director Chuck Erickson yesterday sold out his interest in the University Motel, one of two dozen local businesses still segregated.

Erickson announced his action at the weekly Athletic Department press luncheon.

"I don't mind them being segregated," Erickson said, "but I heard they were planning to 'plow the place under' if a federal Civil Rights law passes, and damned if I want to see my investment lost like that."

Town Is Indicted

The Town of Chapel Hill yesterday was indicted for conspiracy by the Orange County Grand Jury, operating under the instructions of District Solicitor Thomas "Dickie" Cooper.

In a sealed presentment leaked to the press hours before the initial announcement, Cooper said: "I . . . that is, the Grand Jury . . . feels that there can be no question about this matter."

"For several months now, the white majority of Chapel Hill has stood silently by in the knowledge that civil disobedience law-breaking was about to occur."

"This amounts to the town being an accessory before the fact, which in my book equals conspiracy."

Merchants Association Will Fast At Town Hall

The Chapel Hill Merchants Association yesterday announced it will conduct a six-day fast next week "because most of us are too fat, and also because we're tired of tending shop."

Joe Augustine, executive secretary, made the announcement yesterday. He said he plans to burn himself slightly at the end of the fast to prove to his membership that "white men can be militant, too."

Veteran local observers said they doubted the 37 merchants scheduled to participate in the food fast would really stick with the scheme.

"I'll give you ten-to-one odds that after the first day you'll be able to find chicken bones in the vicinity," one of the observers said.

Augustine denied there would be any "fudging" and said the fast would be held on the steps of Town Hall.

Gov. Terry Sanford immediately issued a statement that town officials would be "given every resource at my command" to prevent the fasters from getting unruly.

"This is a helluva way to do business," Sanford said.

The three minor gubernatorial candidates echoed Sanford's words in varying degrees of harshness.

I. Beverly Lake said, "The only thing wrong with the Governor's statement is that it came three hours too late. If I were Governor I'd read their minds and make my statements in advance of the events which they concern."

Dan K. Moore read Lake's statement to himself, then remarked to a reporter, "This goes for me too."

L. Richard Preyer said he had studied the situation and was told to agree with the essence of Sanford's statement by Bert Bennett.

The two major gubernatorial candidates also issued statements. "I'm for legalized gambling," said Bozo Burleson, a ju-do expert.

"We must prevent our insurance money from going to South Dakota," said Ray Stansbury.

GETTING READY—DTH co-editor Gary Blanchard is shown yesterday preparing his supporters with "conservative" literature for the upcoming campaign. Blanchard and David Ethridge have announced for re-election for editors of the DTH, expressing their reluctancy to run but saying "the campus needs someone of our caliber to carry on the good work." The campaign workers declined to be identified.

2 Indicted For Posing As Students

Joel Fleischman and Roger Foushee, former UNC undergrads, will go before the Men's Council tomorrow night to answer charges of "impersonating students."

Whitney Durand, Attorney-General, yesterday charged the two with "trying to act like students and attempting to overthrow student government at UNC."

Fleischman and Foushee issued a joint statement last night claiming they had been framed.

"This is the work of a powerful, highly-organized group in Student Government, and is a kangaroo, railroad job," the statement charged.

They named Buzzy Stubbs, Durand, Mike Lawler and Walter Spearman as the group which spurred the charges.

Blanchard, Ethridge Seek Reelection As Co-Editors

Gary Blanchard and David Ethridge today announced their candidacy for re-election to the co-editorship of the Daily Tar Heel.

In a joint statement, the editors stated that they would "continue the policies of the past year."

"Our stand is well-known to all," they said. "We will back the tenets of that great savior I. Beverly Lake all the way, and will oppose integration all the way."

Reminding the campus that they were the present editors, the two said they will work for a bigger and better student government and for legislative integrity.

Four Killed In Big Riot

Riots left five dead and six wounded last night after a protest rally brought on by the announcement for reelection by Gary Blanchard and David Ethridge.

The focal point of the riots was in the lower quad, where 1,000 students gathered with banners opposing the co-editors fascist stand.

"We don't want these people again," shouted one student, just as he was stabbed in the back by a member of the Young Americans for Freedom (YAF), the group which has been behind Blanchard and Ethridge since their campaign last spring.

Dean of Men William G. Long termed the episode the worst since the Doug Moe riots five years ago. "This is a disgrace," he said. "The fact that those two nuts are running again is a disgrace upon the good name of this university."

The dead were identified as Herman Goodnik, 22, Negro; Albert Simp, 21, white; Buddy Teagle, 56, white; William McNairy, 20, Negro; and Sam Slobbed, 55, spotted.

Phipps Will Head National Group

State American Legion Commander L. J. Phipps of Chapel Hill yesterday resigned his post to accept the presidency of the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), a well-known national group of liberals.

Phipps said he was taking the position in an effort "to do from the inside what I've failed to do from the outside—fight Socialism."

Phipps said he was not certain how he would achieve this goal, but said he planned to start by firing Adlai Stevenson and Al Lowenstein from the ADA's executive committee.

Former UNC President Frank Porter Graham wept openly at the news of Phipps' selection. Graham said he was "too crushed" to comment at this time.

President Lyndon B. Johnson called a hurried meeting of the National Security Council and ordered FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover to look into Phipps' appointment, charging that Phipps "has obvious conflicts of interest."

Blanchard, 35, is a veteran of 10 years of military service. He has been a Dean's List student for the last five semesters, having repeated the last 2½ years.

Ethridge, 37, is a veteran of 10 years of college life. He has never been a Dean's List student and has avoided the draft only by claiming to be a conscientious objector. A resident of New Delhi, Ga., Ethridge is the son of another famous journalist—Roland Giduz Ethridge, editor of the well-known News of Yellow County.

Symposium To Feature CORE Head

Silver J. Finks

Silver J. Finks, national leader of the Committee Opposing Racial Equality, will be featured speaker at the final session of the Chapel Hill Ku Klux Klan Symposium on April 9. His topic will be "Negroes and whites in integrated South Africa." He recently returned from the Congo, where he called a witch doctor a fraud and was subsequently shrunk to the height of 11 inches.

MILTON ROSEN has been named to the UNC Faculty as "Communist - in - Residence," Chancellor William B. Aycock announced yesterday. Rosen will teach "Contemporary Political Theory: From Marx to Helms and Back," with special emphasis on the Progressive Labor movement.

Apartment Rule Concept Changed

Apartments for UNC students have been abolished, according to Dean of Women Katherine Carmichael.

"I feel this to be the only solution to the problem which has plagued student bodies for the past two years," the Dean said. This ruling will nullify the Apartment Rule previously enforced by the administration, which required that no coed be alone in an apartment with a man.

Rules applicable to students living in tents on campus have not as yet been announced.

Another Morehead Named

New Morehead Scholar

By ARMISTEAD MOPPING
A Black Muslim yesterday became the first of his race to receive a Morehead Scholarship, which pays all expenses and spending money for four years at UNC.

Samuel X., a high-school dropout from Birmingham, Ala., pledged to "do all in my power to uphold the high promise placed in me by Mr. Morehead."

Roy Armstrong, secretary of the Foundation, said Samuel X. was chosen from a host of applicants for the honor.

"We were also considering Muhammed Ali, formerly known as Cassius Clay, and Malcolm X," Armstrong said, "but both notified us they would be too busy forming self-defense rifle clubs to concentrate on studying."

John Motley Morehead, who is 137 years old this month, said he decided to lower the color bar on the scholarships he administers because "these people think like I do."

"They're for separation of the races, too."

Friday, Beaumont To Try, Too

Low campus sources revealed Friday that University President William C. Friday and Campus Safety Chief Arthur J. Beaumont will enter the Democratic primary in May.

Friday announced Saturday for the gubernatorial nomination. Beaumont has filed for director of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Friday said he expected support from North Carolina conservatives, liberals, and middle-of-the-roads.

"With such a broad base of support," he said, "I don't expect too much trouble. The only candidate I'm really worried about is Ray Stansbury—I can't sing like he can. Of course, when you think about it, that may be an asset, not a liability."

Beaumont, informed that the office of SBI director is not an elective office, said affably, "Nobody's going to tell me what office I can get into. Every and all offices are open to me. I've got keys to them all."

Beaumont said he expected to draw heavy support from the Drama Society of North Carolina. "I've been in every campus show hereabouts for years now," he said, "and my face should be familiar to the public."

Friday vigorously denied accusations that he was running for governor in order to get out of Chapel Hill.

"Chapel Hill is alright," he said. "I don't mind the panty raids in the spring, the demonstrations all summer and winter, the fights with the alumni, the fights with the legislature, the fights over student autonomy, the fifty thousand phone calls I get every day, the problems with the budget, the speaker ban law, or any of that stuff. The only thing that bothers me is having to climb trees in my backyard all the time to get those darn kites down."

"Besides," he continued, "I don't intend to live in Raleigh after the election anyway. Joel Fleischman comes over every day and keeps us informed on what's going on over there."

He also said his experience with the legislature would help him win.

"None of the other candidates has ever had to face the Legislature and fight for a budget," he said. "And none of them has ever gotten a pay raise from the Legislature without either fighting for it or wanting it either."

Beaumont said he was basing his campaign on better enforcement of parking regulations.

"The way I see it," he said, "the careless driver is, more often than not, a careless parker, too. If we give everyone five tickets, we can revoke their
