Arnie, Jack In GGO Field

GREENSBORO (UPI)—Those formidable Yankee Clippers, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, are the co-favorites among 150 pros and 10 amateurs competing today in the opening round of the Greater Greensboro Open.

But Al Besselink, Sam Snead, defending champion Doug Sanders and dozens of other big-name golfers are waiting for a crack at the flexible winner's share, which last year totaled $5,500.

Palmer, of Latrobe, Pa., the PGA's top money winner in 1963, is seeking his first major tournament victory this year. Nicklaus, reigning Master's and PGA champion from Columbus, Ohio, hoped to improve his rating as the richest golfer on the 1964 circuit.

About the only big-name golfer not entered is South Africa's Gary Player.

Ex-Hillsboro Cop Charged With Assault

A former Hillsboro policeman has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon after a kicking incident during an anti-segregation demonstration here in December.

Larry Talbert, formerly a patrolman in Hillsboro, and Chapel Hill painting contractor Howard Pendergraph are charged with assault with a deadly weapon after the two allegedly kicked Negro demonstrator David L. Davis in the head. The demonstration occurred at the Tar Heel Sandwich Shop the night of December 19.

Both Mr. Talbert and Mr. Pendergraph have appeared in Chapel Hill Recorder's Court, Mr. Pendergraph shortly after the demonstration in question, Mr. Talbert on February 18. Both pleaded not guilty, and both cases were sent to Superior Court for jury trial by Recorder's Court Solicitor Roy Cole. It is not known when they will be tried.

The warrants against the two were drawn by Chapel Hill Police Lieutenant Graham Creel, on information and belief according to reports by several newspaper reporters at the demonstration.

Witnesses' accounts of the incident put Mr. Pendergraph and Mr. Talbert in the doorway to the Sandwich Shop, which was closed during the demonstration, allegedly kicking Mr. Davis in the head. Mr. Davis was sitting in front of the doorway at the time.

Mr. Talbert is the younger brother of Charles Talbert, former Orange County ABC police officer, now an agent of the federal Alcoholic Tax Unit in Georgia. According to the Hillsboro Town Clerk, Larry Talbert joined the Hillsboro Police Department in July of 1963, and resigned early last month. He came to Hillsboro from the State Prison Department, and went back to the Prison Department last month after having been offered shorter hours and better pay. He is a prison guard.

Nixon Meets With Lodge In Viet Nam

SAIGON (UPI)—Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon conferred Wednesday with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to get an appraisal of the situation in South Viet Nam and to talk some politics.

Nixon, on a private business trip in Southeast Asia, said he and Lodge discussed "everything that was significant about this political year."

The two were running mates in the 1960 presidential campaign.

Nixon, who is scheduled to stay in Viet Nam for three days, came here from Bangkok.

Before meeting Lodge, Nixon discounted any political overtones to his trip.

"I want to make it clear that I did not come to Viet Nam for the purpose of discussing politics," he said in an airport statement.

"I can imagine nothing that would be more embarrassing to Ambassador Lodge or more detrimental to American foreign policy interests in a battle area than for me to come in for the purpose of discussing politics," he said. "This is also Ambassador Lodge's view."

Lyon Discussion Period Scheduled

"Some students may have questions in their minds about the advantages and complexities of spending a year abroad—we want to answer their questions if we can."

Dr. Richard L. Frautschi, director of UNC's first Year-at-Lyon program, along with former American exchange students and native French students, will be around to do just that on Friday at 7 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge, 4th Floor, Dey Hall.

Dr. Frautschi is calling this informal discussion and question-and-answer session for the benefit of all students even remotely interested in spending the coming year studying in Lyon, France, on this university's new junior year abroad program.

"The advantages of such a program are so numerous it is hard to go them all across to students in our brochures and articles," said Dr. Frautschi. "And we who have already studied abroad are so used to it that we cannot remember all the countless questions a student might have if he has never studied abroad."

"All interested students are invited to bring their questions and ideas about spending a year abroad to the discussion Friday evening. The procedure will be very informal and somewhat brief. Anyone may leave at any time, although the meeting will probably not last more than an hour," said Frautschi. "And coffee will be served."

Brochures and application blanks will be available at the meeting. Applications must be returned by April 15.

Orlans, Gross Accept Symposium Bids

By JOHN FRONEBERGER

Dr. Paul M. Gross, Dean of the Graduate School at Duke University, and Harold Orlans, the noted sociologist presently on the Senior Staff at the Brookings Institute, will speak here Wednesday afternoon, April 8, for the Carolina Symposium.

Their topic, "The Impact of National Security on Research", examines the limits upon freedom of inquiry and expression in research.

When Dr. Gross became President of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Raleigh News and Observer called him "a man of stellar accomplishments... whose poised calm manner belies the energy and ability that have won him international renown." Shortly afterwards, he won the Army's top award, the Distinguished Civilian's Medal.

Dr. Gross graduated from the City College of New York and received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in Chemistry from Columbia University. He did graduate work at the University of Leipzig. He has been with Duke University for over 40 years serving as professor, dean of the graduate school, dean of the University and Vice-President of the University.

He also has worked with the Army's missile programs, is president of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies and was a science adviser for the United States in the UNESCO conference in 1949. He has received countless awards for his work in chemistry.

In an age which keynotes research with progress, Harold Orlans has evaluated many national trends in the sociological fields. An anthropologist who graduated from the City College of New York, he went to work as a reporter for the San Francisco Call-Bulletin and was a fellow of the Social Science Research Council before continuing his education at Yale for a Ph.D. He then won a Fulbright Scholarship in Economics. For several years he lectured and did research for several organizations.

THE PROPER WEIGHT

Remember what you weighed at 25? If that weight was right for you then, it's probably right for you now. The North Carolina Heart Association says that an extra load of fat puts unnecessary strain on even a healthy heart.

General's Health Declines Gradually

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur battled for his life Wednesday in the Army's Walter Reed Medical Center after physicians reported declines in two vital areas—his pulse and blood pressure.

A hospital spokesman said there was a slight drop in the blood pressure of the 84-year-old soldier and a moderate rise in the pulse rate. Until issuing this report, the physicians had taken some comfort in the fact both the pulse and blood pressure were stable.

The hospital spokesman also said the general's kidney condition had worsened. A kidney malfunction developed after part of the lower intestine was removed Easter Sunday.

MacArthur also was being treated for internal bleeding from the esophagus. This was being controlled by a Sengstaken tube, a pressurized device inserted in the esophagus to collapse bleeding veins.

Despite these setbacks, MacArthur was alert and asked to see his wife, Jean, who has been at the hospital most of the time since her husband entered it March 2. Mrs. MacArthur joined the general shortly after he made the request.

MacArthur's condition has been critical for more than a week, ever since a condition caused by an old hernia resulted in a three-hour Easter Sunday operation during which doctors removed eight feet of lower intestine.
