Box 870

George Ball Ends Symposium Tonight

Carolina Symposium's presentation of Louis Leprince-Ringuet, scheduled for 2 p.m., today, in Gerrard Hall, has been canceled.

The Baily Tar Heel

The Weather

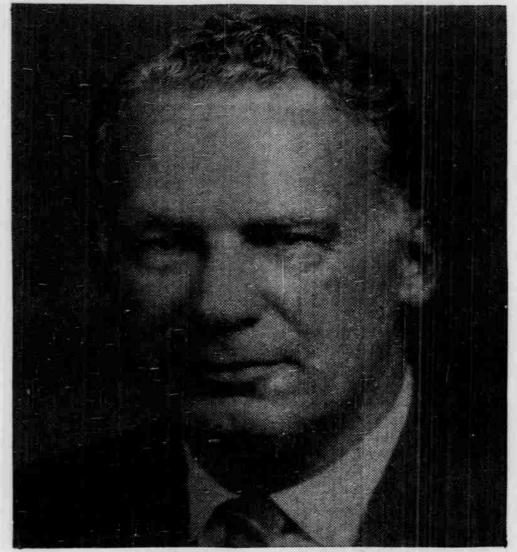

Founded Feb. 23, 1893

CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, APRIL 9, 1964

United Press International Service

Reston May Come

Final Symposium Session Will Hear George S. Ball

George S. Ball

Mannes Attacks 'Arts Climate'

By PETE WALES

Marya Mannes, well-known New York television and theatre critic, iolted a fourth-night Symposium audience with a scathing speech on the old War climate and its effect on American letters.

Miss Mannes led off a panel of four writers moderated by former UNC instructor of English William

Graham Hall Social Room Has Opened

Don Carson, chairman of the Residence Hall Improvement Committee of Student Legislature, has officially announced the opening of the new Lower Quad study and social room in the basement of Graham Hall.

A joint appropriation by the Administration and Student Legislature of $2500 was used to cover pipes, tile the floor, improve the lighting and purchase new furniture and drapes.

A similar project involving $3000 will be completed within the next three or four weeks in Joyner Hall, according to Car-

"It is significant," Carson said, "that Student Government and the Administration have cooperated in this area. All we need show now is that the rooms are used and properly cared for. "Top Administration officials have stated that they will back residence hall improvement to the limit if these pilot projects prove successful," Carson said. "It is essential," he said, "that the residence halls have adequate facilities to accommodate social programs."

"The Cold War has forced us into a rigidity of thinking," Miss Mannes said, "We live under a doctrine of 'our way is the only Miss Mannes described the root of this false doctrine as being "predominantly a fear of econo-

The result is that "most writers have become either exploiters or evadors." She said that modern-day Americans were afraid to consider social, economic and political systems as being possibly acceptable. Irving Howe, author, professor, critic and contributor to many magazines, followed with a description of "the new fiction."

Shaw Chorus To Sing Here

The Shaw University Chorus will present a concert at the First Baptist Church April 17 at

The chorus, which has performed before the United Nations, will be making an appearance in order to raise funds for the University, which is presently in financial trouble. Shaw, the first Negro institution of higher learning in North Carolina, will observe its 100th anniversary next year. Organized as a religious training school. the University was later turned over to the state.

There will be no admission charge for the concert, and a patron list is being compiled. The minimum charge for the list is $1, and those wishing to add their name are requested to call Rev. J. R. Manley at 942-2509 By HARRY DeLUNG

George Ball, undersecretary of state, will speak at the Carolina Symposium tonight at 8 p.m. The topic will be "Values and the Individual; implications for the individual in a state organized for war." Reports yesterday said there was a possibility that James Reston of the New York Times would accompany Ball, in anticipation of a major speech. Ball, who is the second-ranking State Department official, was appointed by President Kennedy in November, 1962. Immediately before, he served as undersecretary for economic affairs, and wrote the late president's report on balance of payments and the gold drain. This report exposed to national publicity the serious loss of gold to European nations which formed a principal part of Kennedy's campaign platform in international affairs.

Ball was the State Department's chief spokesman for the sale of U.S. wheat to Russia. In testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, he vigorously defended the extension of credit to communist coun-

The Undersecretary is credited with shaping the major part of U. S. policy towards the Diem regime in South Viet Nam.

In January, Ball argued a ma-jor reorientation of American foreign aid. He attacked the use of aid as a cold war "weapon," and urged support for undeveloped nations on a more positive ba-

Proposing that foreign aid be directly taken over by the State Department, he stressed the need for more "altruistic motives" in the administration of these funds.

Legislature May Delete References To Review Board

Student Legislature will consider an amendment to delete references to the defunct Student-Faculty Review Board from the Student Constitution tonight at 8 p.m. in New East, Student members were ousted from the Board last October in the wake of the Ann Carter Case, touching off a vigorous protest by Student Government officials and President Mike Lawler.

The Administration was criticized for nullifying an entire section of the Constitution without mentioning the matter to either student legislative or executive

Bills concerning clarification of elections dealing with campaign expense accounts, the establishment of a permanent Editor's Roundtable and appropriation of funds for various projects will also be considered, including a resolution for the construction of a basketball court in the Ram's Head parking lot.

STRAY GREEKS

Susan Zehmer, president of the Stray Greek washerwomen, will wash in public along with her cohorts for a worthy cause this Saturday.

to the speakers, but yesterday afternoon in Memorial Hall was just too much for this pooch and he fell asleep in the center aisle, and while some critics may charge that UNC has gone to the dogs, at -Photo by Jim Wallace least they're educated.

Moses Cone Case Heard In Senate

The story of Dennis Nathaniel, UNC graduate student from India, being turned away from the emergency room of Greensboro's Moses H. Cone Hospital two weeks ago because of his skin color received national attention on the floor of the Senate Tues-

The story, which first appeared in the DTH, was told by Sen. John Pastore, D.-R.I., to demonstrate why the civil rights bill must have a section that insures that financial resources of the federal government can no longer be used to subsidize racial discrimination.

Nathaniel had been playing in a cricket exhibition match in Greensboro when he broke his nose. He was rushed to the hospital where he waited 20 minutes before being told he would have to go to the Negro hospital. It was another 20 minutes before he could get treatment. During this time, his nose was bleeding profusely.

Pastore, who is one of the most able speakers in the Senate, was not challenged as he pointed up the U. S. Supreme Court action which in effect prevents two hospitals in Greensboro from refusing to treat patients or to admit doctors to their staffs strictly for racial reasons. "It was natural that such a

(Continued on Page 5)

Dr. Gerhard Lenski, Jr.

Lenski To Get Honorary Degree

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio-Dr. Gerhard Lenski, Jr., professor of sociology at the University of North Carolina, will be awarded an honorary degree June 8 at Wittenberg University's annual commencement exercises.

Dr. Lenski will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree. He joined the faculty of the University of North Carolina last autumn, after teaching for 13 years in the sociology department at the University of Michi-

Before making the jaunt to Wittenberg for the commencement exercises, Dr. Lenski will be traveling to Heidelberg, Germany, where he will take part this spring in the centennial observance of the birth of Max Weber, Germany's foremost sociologist. He was invited to take part by the German Sociological

His book, "The Religious Factor," published in 1961, was printed in a revised paper back edition in 1963 and is now being translated into Spanish and German. The book was one of those selected last summer for inclusion in the new White House Library.

He is also co-author of the book, "Principles of Sociology," published in 1956.

In addition to these books Dr. Lenski has published a number of works in scholarly journals here and abroad and is working on a third book, "Power and Privilege," scheduled for publication sometime in 1965. Dr. Lenski was born in Washington, D. C., in 1924, where his father was for many years pastor of Grace Lutheran Church. At Yale University Dr. Lenski earned Phi Beta Kappa honors in his senior year, 1947. He went on to earn the doctor of philosophy degree at Yale in in England, France and the During his 13 years on the National Lutheran Council.

Michigan faculty Dr. Lenski was promoted from instructor to professor. In 1959 he was presented the university's annual award for teaching excellence.

At present Dr. Lenski is serving as a consultant for a study of Catholic schools that is being conducted by the National Opinions Research Center of the 1950. During World War II he University of Chicago. On sevserved with the U.S. Air Force eral occasions he has served as a consultant to the secretary for urban church planning of the

By KERRY SIPE The effects of National Security and the demands of the state of scientific research were discussed yesterday at an afternoon presentation of the Carolina Symposium by Dr. Harold Orlans and Gross, of Duke University, president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, pointed out that the influence of national politics and public feeling in government subsidized research cannot be denied. "Our pool of basic research funds is heavily depleted by our habit of capitalizing on our fundamental knowledge rather than

Dr. Paul M. Gross.

Panel Discusses

Sciences, Security

"What is called R and D (Research and Development) money is actually about 90 per cent development and ten per cent redoing further research,"

search," he said. Gross said this was due to fear that the public would become alarmed at a tendency to favor military research.

Orlans, of the Senior Staff at the Brookings Institution studying the effects of federal programs on higher education, said that government subsidy should be determined by the ongress and by the need. "Society," he said, "cannot

Paul Gross

Blackwell, Kirkpatrick

Editorship Hopefuls

Announce Candidacy

Harold Orlans

possibly understand the situation as well as the government." Both scientists agreed that Science should accept none of the blame for the necessity to advance military strength through research.

"Only a very small percentage of the time," said Gross, "does a scientist even realize the applicability of a project he is working on before it is finished, especially in the pure sciences."

"If we could blame science for discovering bigger and better ways to kill people, then Albert Einstein would be the biggest villian of the century.'

University Entries Win Exhibit Prizes

Art entries from the UNC have won three of the five top painting prizes at the Sixth Carolinas College Art Annual exhibition at the Columbia Museum of Art, Columbia, S. C. At an award presentation and preview April 5, L .V. Huggins' "Dwarf Man," Roberta Johnson's "Impressions of New York," and James Ness' "The Last Run," received Honor Awards. Of the 48 paintings comprising the exhibi-(Continued on Page 3)

A committee of five student lead. ers yesterday announced the formation of a "Write-In Blackwell and Kirkpatrick Campaign," initiated to elect Mickey Blackwell and Curry Kirkpatrick coeditors of the Daily Tar Heel in the campus election next Tues-

The committee is composed of Bruce Cooper, president of the YMCA: Dave Rendleman, president of Ehringhaus Residence Hall; Arthur Hays, chairman of the Student Legislature Finance Committee: Art Pearce, Daily Tar Heel business manager; and Donna Fagg, president UNC Press Club.

The committee said, "We are supporting these candidates because they represent proven ability, competence, and experience. Of the editorial candidates none can match the records of Blackwell and Kirkpatrick.

"In the interest of a better Daily Tar Heel, we call on all Blackwell and Kirkpatrick for the editorship."

Kirkpatrick, a junior journalism major, is a native of St. Louis, Mo. He is a double-award winner in the National William Randolph Hearst collegiate writing contest. He won a $750-first place award in the Hearst feature writing contest last fall and added a $400third-place in a recent feature writing contest. Last year he took a second place in the Charlottee Observer Carolinas Collegiate Sports Writing Contest.

He is the former holder of the Jake Wade Memorial Journalism Scholarship and has served as assistant sports editor and editor of the Daily Tar Heel.

Presently working for the Chapel Hill Weekly, Kirkpatrick will be an intern on the Buffalo Evening News this summer.

Blackwell, a native of Gastonia, has been an administrative reporter, feature writer and news editor on the Daily Tar Heel. He worked for radio stations WGNC in Gastonia and WCHL in Chapel Hill for two years. He won an award in last year's Charlotte Observer contest and added another in a Hearst Foundation news writing contest in February.

He also worked for the Charlotte Observer during the past two summers and is now a special reporter for the Raleigh Times and Chapel Hill correspondent for the Observer.

(Continued on Page 5)

Thompson, Adler Voice Approval Of Government Support For Arts

By KERRY SIPE

An American artist and an American legislator met yesterday at the afternoon session of the Carolina Symposium to discuss the part that government should play in development of the arts in this country.

"I am very much in favor of the government taking an active interest in the development of said New Jersey congressman Frank Thompson, Jr., who was chosen for the discussion because of the legislation he introduced in the House of Representatives authorizing the building of the National Cultural Center in Washington.

"North Carolina is one of the most cultural-minded states in the union," said lyricist, composer and producer Richard Adler in discussion of the issue. "I wish the federal government would imitate what is being done in North Carolina fifty times

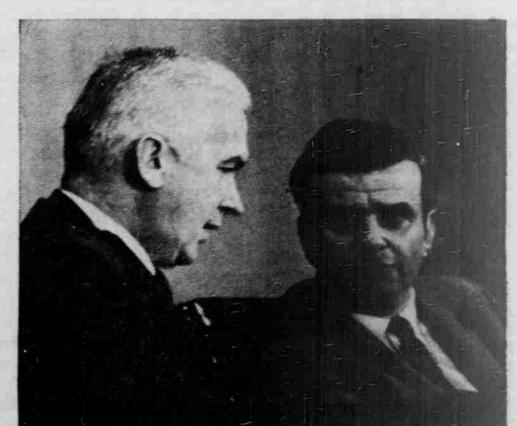

Both the composer and the congressman were in agreement that the federal government owed a responsibility to the nation's art-

"Eevry artist must have his sustinence, in order to live," said Adler. "It is becoming increasingly more difficult for him to get scene was on the decrease.

"If I were just graduating from UNC today, I would think twice before I started off to New York to write songs for a living. It

Adler pointed out that the num- would be far more practical for ber of theatres on the American me to start 'Adler's Elevator Shoe Company.'

> "It takes over a half a million dollars to produce a Broadway musical play today. When I went (Continued on Page 5)

Rep. Frank Thompson and Richard Adler -Photo by Jim Wallace