Also: George Collins, Ken Kaplan, Norman Shearin, Till- man Cooley, Jim Davis, Sandy O'Quinn, Richard Stephens, Eddy Trott, Bob Moore, Larry Pat- erson, Mickey Whitehead, Mickey Gamble, Cleve Wright, Don Leslie, Locke Newlin, and Charles Wolfe.

Women appointees are Marty McDaniel, Pat Miller, Gwen Grice, Sally Mixon, Alice Brown, Judy Grape, Gay Showell, Susan Moore, Mary Susan Kirk, Linda Harrison, Judy Cowman, and Pat Szolcsck.

Oliver also announced the ap- pointments of the Assistant At- torney-General's. They are John Ingram for the MRC Court, Paul Jensen for the IFC Court, Patsy Leffler for the Women's Council Court, and Laszlo Birinyi for the Men's Council Court. In addi- tion, Diana Worth was re-ap- pointed as Staff Secretary.

Oliver urged all new members to stop by the office before next Monday. "I would like to talk to all new members and tell them of the procedures. Anyone mem- ber who did not attend last week's meeting should stop by this afternoon or Monday after- noon if he is still interested in being on the staff."

for an earlier Campus Code of- had signed the roll, then got fense.

In the second case, a student bored and left about half way through the class.

He pleaded innocent on the basis that he had been in attend- ance when the roll came to him.

The Council ruled that signing a class roll strongly implied to the professor that the student had attended the entire class un- less he had had to leave for a reason made clear to the profes- sor. It felt that signing and then leaving was a form of lying about his presence in the class.

He was found guilty and given an official reprimand.

In the third case, the defend- ant had come about five min- utes late to class and had stood outside the partly-open door ges- ticulating to his friends in back to sign him in.

This was the student seen by the person who reported the pos- sibility of the class roll being falsified.

He was signed in, but said he did not know who did it. He said that when he left, he was not even sure that anyone had seen him gesturing.

He pleaded guilty and was found guilty. He was sentenced to one semester probation.

The Council felt that this case had been a more flagrant sort of lying than in the case where the student left half way through class.

A freshman was found innocent of lying to his professor in a case carried over from last week.

The defendant said he had re- ceived a crank phone call telling him of his grandmother's death. He could not get through to his parents on the phone, so he went home the next day.

The phone call came about five days before an important assign- ment was due in one of his classes. He went to his profes- sor to tell him about his grand- mother and to have the assign- ment put off.

The professor was suspicious of the excuse and phoned the student's home town to find out if the grandmother had died. He discovered she had not.

The student got home, found out he had been tricked and called his professor later that night. When he returned, he found out he had been turned in for lying.

Testimony revealed that the grandmother had been quite ill and a check on the defendant's story showed he had told the truth throughout.

He pleaded innocent and was acquitted.

In a case heard last week, a junior was given an official reprimand for a Campus Code violation.

She's lovely. She's engaged. She drinks Schlitz.

Small wonder. Girls who drink Schlitz have taste. They avoid the commonplace. They are discerning. (Since you are all these things, what are you waiting for?)

Next time, tell that brute in the Shetland jacket to make it Schlitz. Odds are he'll discover you all over again.

If he's the aggressive type he may lunge forward and mutter, "Golly, Helen, you're a peach." And this is the stuff dreams are made of.
