

LBJ Tops Goldwater In UNC Poll

University students gave Democratic candidates Lyndon Johnson and Dan Moore impressive support in their bids for election this fall, in a Tar Heel student opinion poll conducted this week.

President Johnson polled 67 per cent of the vote while Republican nominee Senator Barry Goldwater tallied 28 per cent. Other candidates received a total of five per cent of the vote in the Presidential race.

Democratic nominee Dan Moore received 55.5 per cent of the vote in a poll on North Carolina's Gubernatorial election. Republican Robert Gavin's vote amounted to 31.5 per cent. Candidate Richardson Preyer received 11 per cent while others collected the remaining two per cent. Only students from North Carolina were allowed to vote in the Gubernatorial race.

Support for President Johnson apparently resulted from a negative response to Senator Goldwater. About two-thirds of the students who favored Johnson said they did so because of a "lack of faith" in Goldwater.

A higher percentage of Republicans switched parties to vote for Johnson than did Democrats to vote for Goldwater.

There was little difference between Presidential preferences of in and out-of-state students. Sixty-eight per cent of the North Carolina students favored Johnson while 66 per cent of out-of-state students polled supported the President. Goldwater received 28 per cent of the State student vote, and 26 per cent of the out-of-state vote.

Principal issues given in support of President Johnson, other than dislike of Senator Goldwater, were his stand on civil rights, experience, ability to handle U. S. foreign affairs, and belief that he will continue the late John F. Kennedy's foreign and domestic policies.

Students favoring the Arizona Senator said his conservative views were most impressive. Included in this category are Goldwater's support of state's rights and his vote against the Civil Rights Bill. His views on foreign policy and political integrity also were given as reasons for his support.

The questionnaire said, "Suppose the election were being held today, which candidate would you like to see win in the presidential and gubernatorial race?"

Few students were undecided in the preference of Presidential candidates, and nearly all gave at least one reason for supporting their candidate.

Besides Johnson and Goldwater, nine other persons received votes in the Presidential race: William Fulbright, Henry Cabot Lodge, Richard Nixon, George Romney, Nelson Rockefeller, William Scranton, Adlai Stevenson, George Wallace and

Taylor Is Named New Medical Dean

DR. TAYLOR

Dr. Isaac M. (Ike) Taylor will move up to the post of dean of the UNC School of Medicine Sept. 1, succeeding Dr. W. Reece Berryhill.

In announcing the appointment last week, Consolidated University President William C. Friday said Dr. Taylor was nominated by a 11-member selection committee headed by Dr. Kenneth Brinkhaus.

Dr. Berryhill is stepping down after 23 years to return to teaching and research.

Dr. Taylor, a 43-year-old native of Morganton, graduated in the UNC Class of 1942, and three years later received his medical degree, with honors, from Harvard University.

He immediately moved to Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston for a year of internship training, followed by a year as assistant resident in medicine and a year as resident in medicine.

He was an assistant medical adviser to Harvard University for a brief period in 1948 before becoming a research fellow in biological chemistry and a fellow in medical sciences of the National Research Council, both positions at Harvard. These were two-year assignments.

During this two-year period, he served also as a clinical fellow in medicine at Massachusetts General Hospital.

In 1951, the year prior to his return to Chapel Hill, Dr. Taylor became chief medical resident at Massachusetts General Hospital and assistant in medicine at Harvard University.

Dr. Taylor joined the UNC medical faculty as an assistant professor of medicine on New Year's Day, 1952. He was promoted to associate professor six years later and became a full professor this year.

He was appointed in 1954 as one of 25 Markle Scholars in

$110,000 Law Suit Is Filed For 'Blood On The Old Well'

Pebbley Barrow, UNC fencing coach, has filed a $110,000 libel suit in U. S. Middle District Court in Greensboro against Sarah Watson Emory, author of the controversial "Blood on the Old Well," published last summer.

The book purported to be an attack against alleged left wing activities on the University campus here, and enjoyed a good sale across the state and elsewhere.

This is the first known suit filed in connection with the allegations in the book.

Barrow said a man now living in New York had considered entering suit against Mrs. Emory, but said he didn't know whether the man had.

Mrs. Emory is the wife of former UNC Professor of Philosophy

Stephen A. Emory. They now live in Dallas, Texas, where he is on the faculty of Cook County Junior College in nearby Greenville.

Prospect House of Dallas, listed as the publisher of the book on the fly leaf, is also mentioned in the complaint. Inquiries last summer failed to turn up a Prospect House in Dallas.

University officials have remained silent about the book, and reportedly discouraged any comment about it.

Barrow said, "The University and others might try to ignore it, but I don't feel inclined to do that."

He charged, "What she (Mrs. Emory) says is just not true. Her facts are erroneous and the conclusions she draws are also erroneous."

There is a one-year statute of limitations in North Carolina on libel suits. If the complaint is not filed within one year from the offense, there is no cause of action, according to the law.

"We're filing partly to preserve our right to file within the year," Barrow said. "Otherwise, the statute of limitations would catch up with us."

Attorneys Robert Cooper and Barry Winston of Chapel Hill are handling Barrow's case.

RETURNS TO EGYPT

Dr. Khatab M. Hassanein, assistant professor of biostatistics at UNC will leave for Egypt Aug. 24 where he will teach statistics at the University of Cairo's Institute of Statistics.

Dr. Hassanein is a native of Cairo, and, prior to coming to UNC in 1958 to work on his Ph.D. degree in biostatistics, was an instructor in mathematics at Victoria College in Cairo.

11,200 Students Expected Here For Classes In Fall

Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey expects 11,200 students to enroll here this fall, an increase of 600 over last year's record enrollment.

The total number of freshman students will be approximately 1,950. A maximum of 2,000 was set last fall.

Cathey fixed the number of transfer students at approximately 810, or ten more than the ceiling set last fall. The number of transfer students is based on the available space in residence halls.

Approximately 2,250 graduate students will be here this fall.

The Housing Office said the increased enrollment meant that many rooms will be tripled this fall. There are 150 men on the waiting list at this time, and vacancies in rooms will be filled according to the date of application. A few beds will be set up in basements until the rush is over, and some students will have to live off campus until vacancies occur.

The Dean of Women's Office reports that some double rooms will be tripled to handle late applications from women.

Dean Cathey stressed that the housing situation would be greatly improved with the erection of Morrison Residence Hall, a nine-story dorm to be completed by September, 1965.

The Office of Records and Registration reported an enrollment of 4,384 students for the second session of summer school.

The total of visitors and undergraduates is 2,715. There are 1,747 males and 968 females enrolled for a ratio of 1.7:1.

Post graduate and baccalaureate students and professors total 115. Male enrollment is 112 and female is three.

The total graduate enrollment is 1,554 with 915 males and 639 females.

Total enrollment, excluding irregular and extension students, includes 2,774 males and 1,610 females.

A total of 5,912 students attended the first session of summer school.

Total enrollment for the 1964 summer session is 985 students larger than the 1963 total of 9,311. An increase of 447 students was recorded for the 1964 first summer session over last year's total of 5,465. Second session has noted an increase of 538 over the 3,846 total for 1963.

$2 Million For Union

A $2 million loan for construction of the Frank Porter Graham Student Union here has been approved by the Community Facilities Administration of the Housing and Home Finance Agency in Washington.

Construction of the three-level building will begin within three months, with completion, scheduled in 18-24 months, University officials announced. The building will be constructed in the new complex on Emerson Field. Other buildings in the complex include the $1,300,000 Robert B. House Undergraduate Library and a new Book Exchange building.

The ground floor of the new student union will include 12 bowling lanes, 16 billiard and pool tables, coin refreshment machines.
