UNC Asks $30 Million Budget

Rinaldi Indicted In Murder; Bond Hearing Is Next Week

An Orange County Grand Jury Tuesday indicted Frank J. Rinaldi, 35-year-old UNC graduate student, for first degree murder in the death of his pregnant wife last December. District Solicitor Thomas Cooper said his presentment to the Grand Jury included new evidence in the case, but the evidence was not disclosed.

Rinaldi, a University graduate student-instructor in English, is being held without bond in Orange County jail pending a bond hearing next week. No date for the hearing has been set.

Rinaldi's attorney Barry Winston of Carrboro, moved for postponement of a bond hearing Wednesday in order to file a writ of habeas corpus. Superior Court Judge Raymond Mallard agreed to the postponement and said he would set a day and time for the hearing next week.

The writ of habeas corpus will require the prosecution to show evidence why Rinaldi should be held without bond until his trial. He will be tried next December. Ordinarily defendants in capital cases are not entitled to bond pending trial.

The former Lucille Regina Begg, to whom Rinaldi had been married for five months, was found by her husband early in the afternoon of last December 24 lying on the floor of his North Street apartment here. She was gagged and had been struck on the head.

After a day-long preliminary hearing News Year's Eve, Rinaldi was freed when Chapel Hill Recorder's Court Judge William Stewart found no probable cause to bind him over for trial.

However, Chapel Hill police and SBI investigation began again after the hearing and continued until June, when District Solicitor Thomas D. Cooper Jr. was presented all evidence in the case for consideration.

Cooper presented the evidence to the grand jury Monday. On Tuesday morning the jury returned a true bill to Orange County Superior Court, now convened for a criminal session, and an instantar capias was issued for Rinaldi.

Cooper did not disclose the new evidence in the case, but said, "We have a good case. If we didn't, I wouldn't have sought the indictment."

SBI agent Frank Satterfield and Chapel Hill police detective Howard Pendergraph were named on the indictment as prosecuting witnesses. Only Satterfield testified before the grand jury, however.

Rinaldi's lawyer, said he had talked at length with his client

For New Buildings And Improvements

By MICKEY BLACKWELL

The University will make capital improvement requests totaling $30,803,000 when the Advisory Budget Commission meets here Tuesday.

Priority items include a new Law School building and major additions to the English department building (Bingham Hall), the Louis Round Wilson Library and the Carolina Inn.

The $30 million figure is not a final estimate, because the Budget Commission may not recommend some items. Several hundred thousand dollars, pledged to the University from private sources, and matching funds from the Federal Government will also reduce the figure in some areas.

If the top requests are approved, the Law School will move from Manning Hall to a site near the Institute of Government on the southeast edge of the campus.

New headquarters for the Law School have been mentioned in the past, but this is the first time it has received top priority.

UNC officials also are hopeful that they can convince the Advisory Budget Commission to provide money for an addition to Bingham Hall, home of the English Department. This small building is crammed with thousands of students taking English courses, and officials contend it needs to be expanded.

Another top priority is a $1,315,000 addition to the library. UNC Business Manager Arthur Branch said that $254,000 of this has already been pledged by private sources.

Other requests that will be made to the Advisory Budget Commission in the realm of Academic Affairs include:

—A new dramatic art building which would consolidate into one building the Playmakers Theatre, scenery shop and faculty office space;

—Addition to Ackland Art Center;

—Addition to the Institute of Government building;

—Residence Halls for 2,000 students. This is a long-range projection, and if approved will provide for new dormitories to open in the fall of 1967 or 1968.

—Air conditioning of Murphey, Manning, Bingham and Saunders classrooms.

—Acquisition of remainder of

Prof. Amon Dies At 37

Graveside services were held here Tuesday for Albert Amon, UNC psychologist who died August 9 at his home in Chapel Hill. Dr. Amon, who had been under medical care for high blood pressure, died of an apparent cerebral hemorrhage. He was 37.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Charles Jones of the Community Church at the Chapel Hill Memorial Cemetery.

Dr. Amon was conducting research for the U. S. Air Force and was developing a new decision-making system using electronic computers. He had been scheduled to present his findings before combined meetings of the American Psychometrics Society and the American Psychometric Society at Nigra Falls in October.

He had been an assistant professor in the Department of Psychology here since 1962, where he was a research specialist in the psychometric laboratory.

Dr. Amon majored in chemistry and physics at MIT and received a BA and a Ph.D. at the University of California at Berkeley. He had also taught at the University of Illinois.

He also was one of the original members of the local chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality.

Dr. Amon is survived by his wife, the former Anetha Walker, and a sister, Mrs. Aline Amon Goodrich of New York City.

Playmakers Give One-Acts Tonight

The Carolina Playmakers present a final bill of one-act plays tonight at 7:30 in the Playmakers Theatre. The productions, written for Prof. John W. Parker's first session playwriting class, are free.

"Two Little Tigers," by Lloyd Bray Jr. of Charlotte, will be directed by Edward Kenestruck, who also designed the set. Rhoda Blanton is stage manager, and the cast includes Sandy Darity, Sally Cook, George Rosenthal and Bob Montague.

Chapel Hillian Ben Jones' "A Million of Them" is directed by Amon Limer. Florence Johnson manages the stage. In the cast are John David Richardson, John Marshall Jones, Don Calvert, Scott Porter and Martin Woods.

"Sister Mae Lies Cold and Dead," by Elizabeth Smith of Danville, Va., is directed by Kit Ewing. Doug Barger manages the stage, and the cast is comprised of Lise Knox, Thomas McCleery, Ann Shuford and Elizabeth Hall. John Crockett designed the sets for "A Million" and "Sister Mae."

Discussion will follow each play.

Saturday Classes

Classes will be held this Saturday and Sunday, August 22, in all departments of the University. Final examinations for the second summer session will be given Monday and Tuesday, August 24 and 25.

EARLY START — The Fall gridiron season may still be a good many weeks away, but plans are already being made for its successful start and completion. Not to be left out, this "far-sighted" student has already picked out his seat for the opening game, and since he has a while to wait he brought along a friend to keep him company. See story page 8.

Friday Named To Committee

UNC President William C. Friday has been appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson to the National Citizen's Committee for Community Relations.

The committee, headed by Arthur Dean, will hold its first meeting at the White House Monday, Aug. 17. Friday will be unable to attend this initial meeting, however, because the State's Advisory Budget Commission will visit the University at Greensboro on the same day to receive new budget requests. The committee was named by President Johnson to work with the U. S. Commerce Department's Community Relations Service in efforts to obtain peaceful and voluntary compliance with the Civil Rights Act. Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges and former Florida Governor Leroy Collins, head of the Community Relations Service, wired President Friday last week expressing appreciation to him for serving on the committee.

President Friday is one of a number of North Carolinians named to the committee.
