

PEP RALLY!

A good pep rally should have a lot of noise and even more girls. Right?

Right. And the first rally of the year will fill the bill. It will take place tonight at Emerson Stadium.

Sponsored by Student Government and the Daily Tar Heel, the rally will start at 8:50 p.m., and will feature cheers, songs and a huge bonfire.

Programs will be distributed throughout the stands, and will contain words to all cheers and several songs. The cheerleading squad, led by Dick Goldman, will run the show.

John Yesulaitis, UNC's new band director, warned that the band might not be good, "as we haven't gotten organized yet."

But, he added, "we'll make a hell of a lot of noise."

"Major Y" did say the majorettes would be good, and that head majorette Lois Ann Shepard would give a performance with blazing batons.

Tentative plans call for a motorcade to leave Graham Memorial about 8:30 p.m., and travel through town and campus recruiting spectators for the rally.

The rally is expected to last approximately 45 minutes. The motorcade, with the band and girls, will leave GM and proceed up Franklin St., past Big Fraternity Court, through the Residence Hall area and past Craig and Ehringhaus, then back to Emerson Stadium.

Goldman said there would be "plenty of noisemakers" for the rally.

"I hope everyone really turns out for the show," he added. "It is important that we get behind the team early and show them just how much the student body is behind them."

"The Tar Heels went to the Gator Bowl last year, and they attributed part of their success to the great spirit of the students. The Miami game was perhaps the best example.

"If the students will take the time to show the team how much we want them to win, then we will have taken a big step toward another bowl game."

Student Body President Bob Spearman echoed Goldman's comments.

"School spirit is something which must be spontaneous, and UNC has usually had good spirit.

"But every year is different, and we have to get out and prove to the team that we are 100 per cent behind them."

Fred Seely and Hugh Stevens, co-editors of the Daily Tar Heel, said mimeographed sheets with cheers would be distributed at the game, rather than the pep rally.

"We originally planned to put them out tonight, but it just won't be light enough to read them.

"But from what we know of the plans of Major Y and Goldman, it's going to be plenty loud, even if people don't know the words."

Major Y also put in a plug for his band.

"For the first time, students will get Physical Education credits for being in the band. I hope freshmen will take advantage of this and join us.

"Also, I would like to have anyone who is interested in music to come on over to Hill Hall and join," he added. "The band should lead the school, right along with the cheerleaders, and I hope students will give us a hand and come out."

He also mentioned the fact that he had more majorettes.

"They say it takes six majorettes to make a band. Well, we'll have 12, just to make sure."

Sorority Rush Begins Tonight

Carolina's newest hearts are beating more rapidly these days—sorority rush kicks off its week-long ritual tonight.

With the help of the Stray Greeks and an IBM machine, over 300 girls will troop through UNC's eight sorority houses hoping to find a new home.

First function on the agenda is a reception tonight in Graham Memorial from 7-9, sponsored by the Panhellenic Council. Prospective rushees are required to attend.

The first round of parties comes Sunday, with 55-minute sessions from 6-10:25 p.m. There will be four more sessions the next night, with girls visiting all sororities by that time.

As usual, there will be five rounds of parties, and rushees will be required to drop a sorority after each round.

Unregistered Cars Will Be Tagged

Today is doomsday for students who have not registered their cars with the University.

Campus police will begin tagging unregistered cars today unless students have registered their cars at the Dean of Men's office in South Building.

Four N. C. State students were found wandering around in the middle of Kenan Stadium late Wednesday night. No damage was found.

The students, who claimed they were "just reconnoitering," were released. Their names were sent to their dean in Raleigh for possible disciplinary action.

Panhellenic Council, said yesterday she was "very hopeful we will have a good rush."

"Everything has gone well so far, but it has been a lot of work," she commented.

Mary Cobb, president of the Stray Greeks, said that members of the organization would be available in all dorms to answer questions about rush. Members of sororities are not allowed to speak to rushees except during formal rush parties.

The Stray Greeks will staff the Panhellenic Post Office in Graham Memorial each day. Rushees will pick up their invitations and schedules there.

Most sororities required their members to return to school about Labor Day to prepare for skits, songfests, and other parts of the annual ritual. They found themselves almost alone.

Fraternities this year begin Deferred Rush, and the boys weren't around. One girl said she didn't know which she wanted most—rush to begin or boys to arrive.

Final night of sorority rush will be Sept. 23, when rushees will fill out preference cards. Each girl must list her top three choices, which are then compared with the sorority's list. The following day bids will be issued.

That night will be the annual Open House, and Carolina gentlemen flock to see the new pledges.

Carolina's newest sorority, Phi Mu, will rush at the same time as the seven established houses. Awaiting construction of a new home at Finley Golf Course, the girls will hold parties in the Congregational Church on Cameron Ave.

LBJ Unveils Defense Secrets

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—President Johnson took the wraps today off two major defense secrets—radar to give almost instant warning, and systems to destroy nuclear-armed satellites.

This, obviously, was Johnson's reply to claims made by his Republican rival, Barry Goldwater, that his administration has failed to provide any new strategic systems for meeting a possible Communist attack.

Johnson, in a speech prepared for delivery from the steps of California's capitol, disclosed the development of a new radar that "will literally look around the curve of the earth, alerting us to aircraft and especially missiles, within seconds after they are launched."

The President said the first over-the-horizon radar units are being installed. They mark a major advance over the old systems which he said had "been limited to detection of objects within the line of sight."

"This radar will literally look around the curve of the earth," Johnson said, "alerting us to aircraft and especially missiles, within seconds after they are launched."

Johnson also revealed that the United States has put in place two tested systems "with the ability to intercept and destroy armed satellites circling the earth in space."

"Our only purpose still is peace. But should another nation employ such weapons in space, the United States will be prepared and ready to reply," he said.

He said work on these systems began in 1962 and 1963.

"I can tell you today," he said, "that these systems are in place, they are operationally ready and they are on alert to protect this nation and the free world."

News Show Dropped From Channel 4

By JIM NEAL

"We had a windfall for a year, and now we've lost it, and it's nobody's fault."

John Young, director of television for WUNC-TV, the University's television station, summed up his feelings at the loss of NBC's Huntley-Brinkley Report last week. NBC cancelled the show as of September 11.

"We are very unhappy about losing the program," Young said in discussing the situation last week.

He said many people in the area have called or written expressing concern about losing the popular news show. WUNC-TV was the only station carrying the program in this area. WRAL-TV in Raleigh carried the show until it switched its network affiliation

Barry Draws Thousands In The Carolinas

From DTH Wire Reports

RALEIGH — Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater today promised the farmer a sympathetic ear in the White House if he wins in November.

The Arizona Senator spoke before more than 300 people at a $15-a-plate fund raising breakfast, and later in front of the Wake County Courthouse where he drew a crowd that packed a plaza and filled the street for nearly a block.

He accused Robert Scott, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor in North Carolina and chairman of Rural Americans for Johnson, of spreading false stories about his position on agriculture.

Also in his courthouse square speech, Goldwater called for thousands of conservative Democrats to bolt their party, following South Carolina Senator Strom Thurman's lead Wednesday.

Later in Greenville, S. C., Thurman met Goldwater where they received a rousing reception of 15,000 that cheered practically everything Goldwater said. Scores of school children were excused from classes to attend the rally.

Goldwater called Thurman's action "one of the greatest acts of political courage I have ever seen."

Goed Gives Her Dollar To Arts Festival

Fine Arts Festival Nets Nearly $400

The newly-formed Fine Arts Festival is proving again that culture doesn't have to go begging in Chapel Hill.

The Festival, largely the brain child of Student Body President

Bob Spearman, reported an estimated $400 collection in two days' time by its booth in Woolen Gymnasium.

Organized earlier this year, the Festival will alternate yearly with the Carolina Symposium, and is patterned after it.

"Arts Festival Week," from March 31 to April 6, will feature the Esquire Literary Symposium, an art exhibit, free concerts, performances by the Carolina Playmakers and a jazz concert.

Festival treasurer Allen Morgan, who ran the booth during registration, was very pleased with the turn-out. "We are hoping to collect the same amount of money as the Symposium did last year," he said.

"Many people were interested in Esquire Magazine's participation in the program," Morgan said. "This is the first time the Literary Symposium has been held at a Southern university."

The money collected will be used to pay for the speakers' travel expenses, printing costs and production costs, according to Morgan.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A three-judge Federal panel, expressing concern over spreading Congressional powers, declared unconstitutional today a section of the Civil Rights Act as applied to a Birmingham restaurant.

The Justice Department said it would appeal the decision to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The judges referred specifically to interstate commerce in issuing a temporary restraining order preventing acting U. S. Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach from enforcing the public accommodations section of the act against Ollie's Barbecue.

Restricting its ruling to the Birmingham restaurant, the panel held that the Justice Department violated the Fifth Amendment in applying the public accommodations section against Ollie's.

"We conclude," the panel held, "that Title II of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as applied to (Ollie's) was beyond the competence of Congress to enact, and that its enforcement against plaintiffs under the circumstances of this case would be violative of the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, in pertinent part reading: 'No person shall be . . . deprived of . . . liberty, or property, without due process of law . . .'"

The Federal panel attacked the Civil Rights Act's basis for enforcement under the interstate commerce clause, noting that Congress passed the measure "without attaching 'legislative findings.'" The panel said these findings are traditional in such measures.
