FOR TERRY SANFORD . . .

Long Way From Presidency Of Manly To State House

By KERRY SIPE
DTH Staff Writer

It's a long way from the presidency of Manly Residence Hall to the Governorship of North Carolina.

Terry Sanford, who traveled that long road, will speak tonight at 7:45 in Carroll Hall. In honor of the retiring Governor, Student Legislature has declared today "Terry Sanford Day."

Since 1814, when the first Carolina alumnus to become governor was inaugurated, the state has had 48 chief executives. Twenty-nine of them have been UNC alumni.

The political career of the 29th began May 4, 1938, when, as a junior, Sanford defeated Harvey Jonas for the presidency of Manly Residence Hall.

One step led to the next as he climbed the political ladder. He was Speaker of Student Legislature and President of his Senior Class in 1939.

As the war in Europe grew more intense, the Governor-to-be felt a calling. "Wartime emergency measures," read the Daily Tar Heel of Jan. 6, 1942, "reached deep into the Carolina campus during the Christmas holidays and deprived UNC's Student Legislature of its quiet, soft-spoken chairman, Terry Sanford."

Just three months short of his LL.B. degree, Sanford was drafted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for special wartime work. Because of an outstanding record and special training received under Professor Albert Coates of the Institute of Government, Sanford was handed the dubious honor of going to war.

There wasn't enough action in the FBI to suit him. In November of that same year, he resigned, and joined the Army as a buck private. At Fort Thomas, Kentucky, he volunteered for paratroop duty. As an officer in the 517th Parachute Combat Team he took part in five European Campaigns and earned a Bronze Star, the Purple Heart, and five battle stars.

After the war the young 1st lieutenant returned to Chapel Hill to complete his law course. With him was his wife, whom he married on Independence Day, 1942. She was the former Margaret Rose Knight of Hopkinsville, Ky., a UNC graduate of

TERRY SANFORD
... as UNC senior

of the class of '41—the first Carolina Coed ever to become First Lady of the state.

She went to work in the Dean of Women's Office to help put her husband through school. In his undergraduate days, Sanford made his own way by waiting tables in Lenoir Hall and delivering the Daily Tar Heel.

"Terry had it in mind to be governor while he was on campus," graduate student Alonzo Squires remembers of his former classmate. "And he didn't have any qualms about saying so."

He was quiet but he wasn't a hermit here. He was always in the middle of everything. Armed with a degree and a license to practice law, Sanford and his wife moved to Fayetteville. From there he served in various capacities in state and local government. In 1960 after three hard-fought campaigns, the primary, the regular election, and a run-off, Terry Sanford became the 29th Carolina gentleman to be governor of North Carolina.

Name Change Urged By Consolidated SC

The name of "North Carolina State University" for the University's Raleigh campus was endorsed by the Consolidated Student Council in its regular meeting here Sunday.

Delegates from Greensboro, Chapel Hill and Raleigh voted 14-9 in favor of a resolution supporting the name and expressing disapproval of the name "University of North Carolina at Raleigh."

Bob Self, chairman of the N. C. State delegation, introduced the resolution and called upon the delegates to "support State in the fight to retain its identity."

John Atkins, president of the NCS student body, also lent strong support to the measure, saying that any other name "would damage the international reputation of North Carolina State as an institution of excellence."

Atkins was opposed by Mike Chanin of the Chapel Hill delegation, who said the resolution was injurious to the concept of unity for the entire resolution. Some members of the Greensboro group also contended that they had borne the change in name without difficulty and State should do the same.

The proponents of the issue contended that they were not attempting to promote animosity among the University's institutions, but only wished to protect the name and reputation of their school. After a lengthy discussion the measure was passed.

The body also heard presentations from Wyatt McCallie, chairman of the UNC National Merit Committee and Al Sneed, head of the State Affairs Committee. They gave brief discussions of their respective committees in order to supply guidelines for the other campuses.

The body also discussed a proposal for the selection of a Consolidated University Queen and a meeting with student government officials at Charlotte College, which is to become the fourth campus of the University in July.

SP Meeting

UP Unity Attacked By Wilson

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Staff Writer
Student Party Chairman

Don Wilson attacked the University Party for its lack of unity and methods of choosing leadership in a biting speech before the SP Sunday night in Gerrard Hall.

Wilson addressed most of his remarks to the recent election of the UP chairman, in which John Roney was elected by the party but stepped down to his opponent Jim Hubbard the next day during a meeting of UP leaders.

Calling for the "salvation of lost souls in the UP," Wilson said, "I met a UP member on the street the other day and I said, 'Brother, who is your Chairman?' And he replied, 'I don't know 'cause they haven't told me yet.'"

Citing what he termed "a lack of control over the party by UP members," Wilson said dissension within the UP was mounting.

Wants Conversion

Encouraging an active campaign of conversion, Wilson reminded SP members, "I would know of nothing finer than if each one of you went out and found two lost brothers from the University Party and brought them into our congregation."

He made special reference to a column in the DTH last Friday written by UP legislator Armistead Maupin.

Maupin attacked Student Body Vice President Don Carson (UP) in an allegorical tale about an idol named "Double Countenance."

Change Cited

"The University Party needs to change," Wilson said, "but they won't. I would like them always to remember that the SP is waiting to receive them into the fold."

In a statement issued yesterday, Hubbard said, "I am not really surprised by anything the Student Party would have to say about the UP."

"My only hope is that they would at least spell our party's name right," he added.

Handel Speech

Guest speaker at Sunday's meeting was Larry Handel, director of Education Travel Incorporated, an association affiliated with the National Student Association.

Handel outlined the discount benefits available to students from NSA-affiliated schools who utilize an ETI identification card while traveling.

The ETI identification card allows the student to receive reduced rates for transportation, accommodations and entertainment in the U.S. and abroad.

Handel cited as specific benefits the ETI discounts with the Sheraton Hotels, New York night clubs, and airlines operating regular flights to Europe and back.

"This year ETI is geared completely for the students, whereas it wasn't in the past," Handel said.

Chuck Neely, Speaker Pro Tem for Student Legislature, reported on the SP membership drive and urged SP members to work harder to gain new members.

The SP moved unanimously to direct its Student Legislators to slip announcements of SP meetings under the doors of their constituents before each meeting.

Carolina Coed Robin Link 'Maid Of Cotton' Finalist

Coed Robin Link is among 20 finalists in the 1965 Maid of Cotton contest.

The five-foot-six-inch resident of Danville, Va., is a junior, majoring in political science. She has brown hair and blue eyes. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority and the Attorney General's staff.

No stranger to beauty titles, she was the 1963 Danville Tobacco Princess and the 1964 Queen of Tobaccoland. She was a May Court attendant as a student at Sweet Briar College.

She will compete in the national finals of the Maid of Cotton contest in Memphis, Dec. 28-29. The winner will appear at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas before making an international tour.

Tar Heels Find Right Combination, Whip Cats

By LARRY TARLETON
DTH Sports Editor

CHARLOTTE — The Tar Heels exploded in the last five minutes of play last night and broke a close game wide open to walk out with an impressive 82-67 win.

Coach Dean Smith finally came up with the right combination in the last five minutes that clicked to perfection.

Billy Cunningham, Bobby Lewis, Tom Gauntlett, Ray Respass and Bill Brown broke the Wildcats' press to outscore them 20-8 in the final minutes.

Lewis finally found himself to pace the Tar Heels with 23 points and 14 rebounds. Cunningham, who sat out eight minutes of the first half with foul trouble and played the last 12 minutes with four fouls, scored 22 points and had 13 rebounds, 11 in the second half.

Carolina held a slight lead throughout the first half. Kentucky grabbed the advantage at 23-22 but otherwise the Heels stayed ahead, their biggest lead being 18-12 after a twisting layup by Lewis.

The Tar Heels shot a remarkable 60 per cent to only 27.8 per cent for Kentucky in the first period. But the Wildcats hit 11 of 11 from the foul line while Carolina was three for nine.

In the second half the score was close until Cunningham hit two foul shots at 5:27 to run the score to 64-59.

Lewis added two more foul shots before Randy Stewart hit a free throw to make the score 64-60.

After swapping baskets Cunningham broke under for a lay-up and was fouled in the process.

The Kid sank his free throw to give the Heels a 73-64 lead. Gauntlett, who had an eye for loose balls all night, then hit a 25-footer and the Tar Heels had an 11-point command, with 1:45 to play.

Stewart then hit a free throw and a snow bird for the Wildcats' final scores.

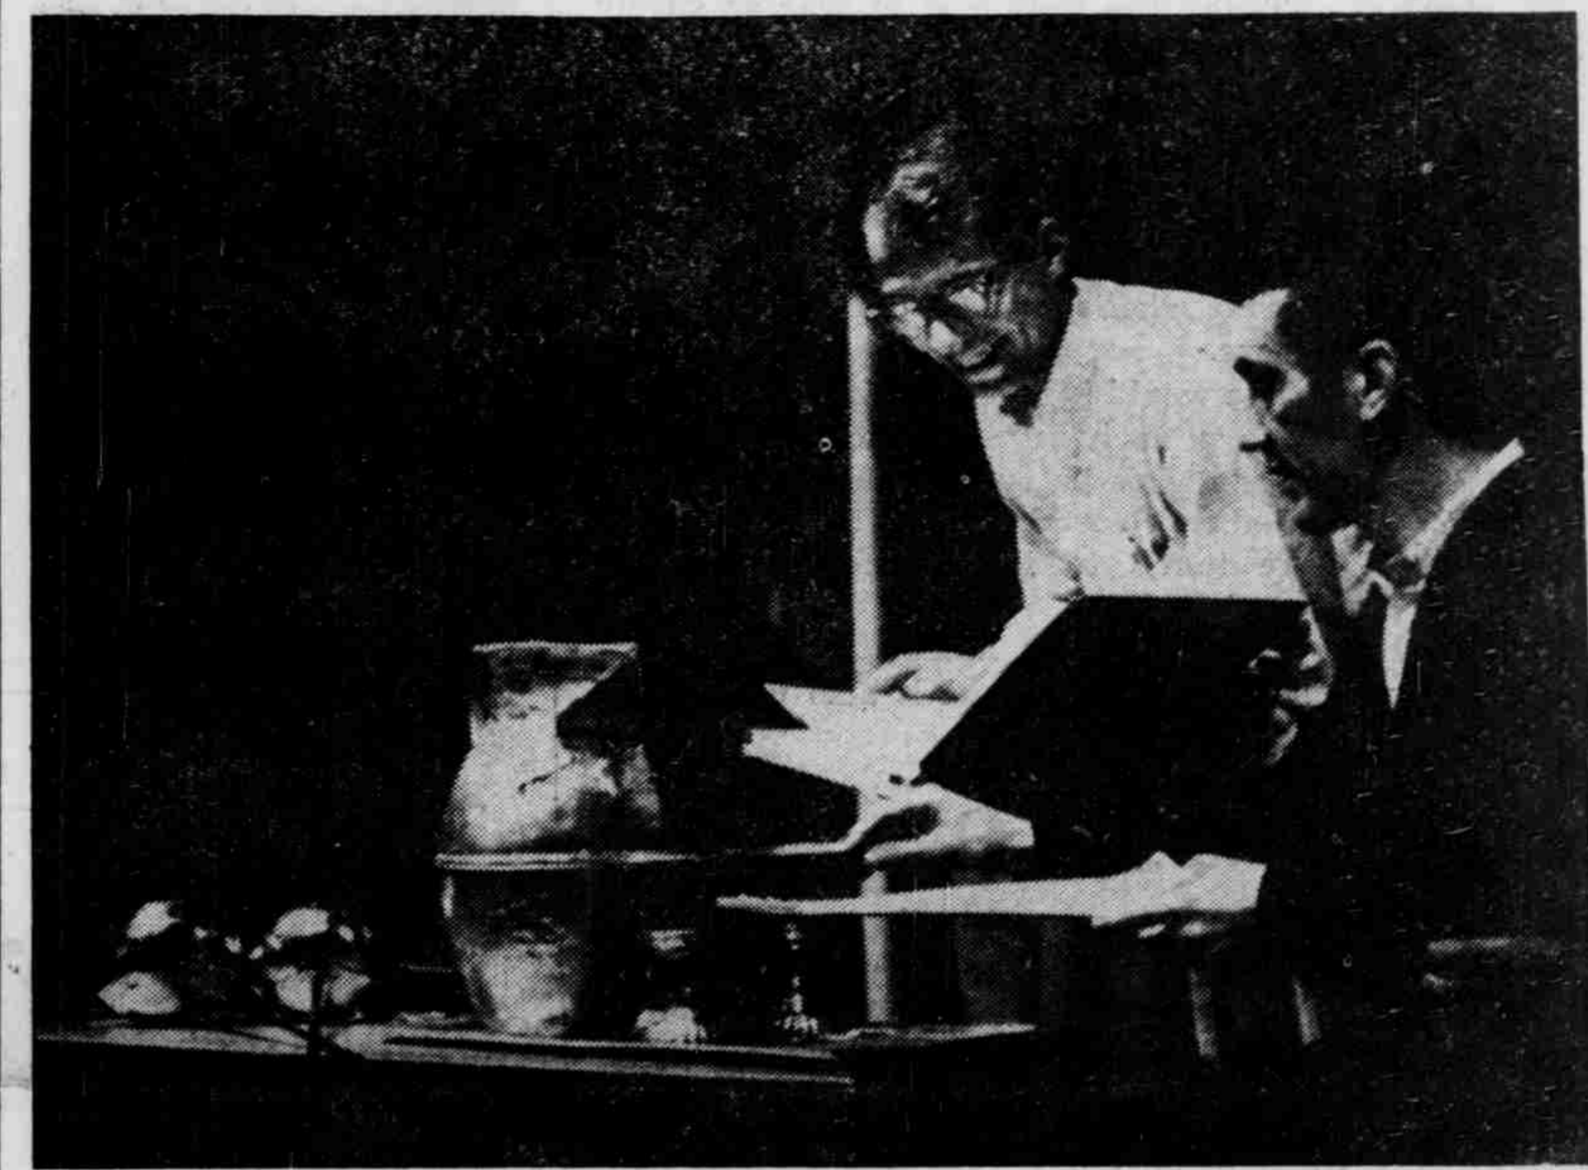

Respass connected on a three-point play and Brown added four more on a layup and two foul shots for the final margin.

For the night, the Tar Heels hit on 55.4 per cent of their shots to 30.5 per cent for the Wildcats.

The Tar Heels had 44 rebounds compared with 38 for Adolph Rupp's crew.

Trailing Cunningham and Lewis for the Heels were Respass with 13 and Gauntlett with 12.

Pat Riley paced the losers with 16. John Adams had 14 and Tommy Dron added 11.

Orange County ABC Board Votes Yes On Local Store

By ERNIE McCRARY
DTH Asst. Managing Editor

The Orange County Board of Alcoholic Beverage Control voted 2-1 yesterday to build a new liquor store in Chapel Hill.

Board Chairman Remus Smith said no site for the store has been selected yet because "we've had offers of two more lots to build on, and we want to look them over."

The first location submitted to the Board is on West Rosemary Street, adjoining the rear of Fowler's Food Store. University officials criticized the site for its proximity to the campus and Chapel Hill High School.

One of the new sites offered the Board is "out near the Ranch House," Smith said. "The other is between Rosemary and Main Streets, closer to Carrboro than the first location."

Smith said delegations from Chapel Hill and Carrboro appeared at the two-hour meeting in Hillsboro to speak against the proposal.

"We listened to everyone who had anything to say," he said. Board member Dudley Carroll was the lone opponent of the measure. Chairman Smith and member Giles Long voted for it.

"We voted for the proposal because we think a new store will help in the control of sales and in law enforcement," Smith said.

He added a new store would also help ease the "traffic which has been so heavy at the store in Eastgate Shopping Center."

The Eastgate store did over $1.25 million worth of business last year, he said.

Some Chapel Hill merchants had spoken out in favor of a downtown liquor store, saying it would increase shopping business as a whole.

The Board's decision was not made, however, with the merchants' interest in mind, Smith said. "The Board is concerned with only three things—control of sales, law enforcement and the alcoholic education program."

Christmas Concert

The Chapel Hill Choral Club will present its annual Christmas concert next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall, not tonight as previously reported.

The Choral Club will be assisted by members of the University Symphony Orchestra in presenting Christmas music from several centuries.

Carol Arnold, soprano, and James Chamblee, tenor, will sing "A Christmas Story," by Heinrich Schuetz, 17th century German composer.

Barbecue

The freshman class will hold a public barbecue in the Tin Can room 4:30 to 7:30 Thursday, before the UNC - Tulane basketball game.

The supper will include herbaceous pork, potato salad, cole slaw, hush puppies and a soft drink. Tickets to the meal, at $1.25, are sold by freshmen.

Lampshade Order Adds 17 Members

The Order of the Old Lampshades made its first tapping of the year last night, adding 17 new members and two honorary members.

New "bulbs" are Nancy Grubb, Jean Liebold, Judi Flanders, Joanne Zaron, Barbara Lorek, Newell Oakley, Frieda Collins, Connie Newman and Carolyn Plott. Also Jeannie Anderson, Gael Murray, Linda Harrison, Betsy Stafford, Mary Linda Lewis, Jan Fox, Mary Carole Howard and Nancy Hurst.

Honorary members tapped were Mrs. Emily O'Neill, housemother of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, and Dr. Eloise Lewis, associate professor of nursing.

The order was founded four years ago in Nurses Dormitory to "recognize that oft-ignored group, the 'do-nothings,'" according to secretary Ellen Solomon. "Members are chosen because they are nothing, have been nothing and will never be anything."

"Unfortunately," she says, "many of the 'bulbs' have taken initiative to be active on campus. However, they are allowed to remain 'bulbs' because of the 'nothing' spirit with which they carry out their duties."

EXISTENTIALISM

Are you an existentialist? Dr. H. G. McCurdy, professor of psychology, will discuss this question tonight at 8 in the main lounge of GM, sponsored by the GM Current Affairs Committee.

INTERVIEWS

Junior Class interviews will be held today and Wednesday in Graham Memorial from 2 to 5 p.m. Interested juniors may obtain further information from the Student Government Secretary.

PETITE JUNIOR Phyllis Taylor puts the finishing touches on one of the huge Christmas trees bedecking Graham Memorial. GM was the flavor of the season Sunday by students participating in the annual decorating party.

ROBIN LINK

Concert Set By Orchestra At 8 Tonight

The University Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Earl Slocum, will present a concert tonight at 8 in Hill Hall Auditorium.

Edgar Alden, associate conductor, will assist in conducting the 70-piece orchestra.

The program features "Variations for Orchestra," completed in September by Jackson Hill, a graduate student here. A Morehead Scholar as an undergraduate, he has written in various mediums for string quartets, string orchestra, band, piano and voice.

Also included in the concert are Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5, in E-Minor, Op. 64, Otto Nicolai's Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and Ravel's orchestration of Debussy's "Danse."

The program is open to the public. Admission is free.
