On the Monday before Thanksgiving vacation began, the University Party elected John Roney as its new chairman.

On the Tuesday before Thanksgiving vacation began, the University Party elected Jim Hubbard as its new chairman.

And therein lies a strange and confusing tale.

What happened between Monday night and Tuesday night is a first-rate lesson in campus power politics of the kind found only within the confines of the University Party.

It encompassed many people, many factions. After the show was over, there was a great deal of bitterness on all sides, and the Student Party gleefully jumped on the situation with full speed ahead.

So what's the story? To begin with, the University Party announced it would hold an election to choose a successor to Jeff Adams, who had resigned the week before. Notice of the meeting was duly printed in the DTH, and fraternities, sororities and residence halls were notified.

There were two nominees: Jim Hubbard and John Roney.

Hubbard, a former freshman class officer, student legislator and campaign manager for Student Body VP Don Carson, was the choice of the party's executive committee. Roney, the party vice-chairman, brought along his fraternity plus another from across the street.

Roney won in a landslide with the fraternities support. The next day, Roney resigned for the good of the party.

As he was still the titular

All But One CR Suspects Are Released

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Going ahead with plans to carry its case to a federal grand jury, the Justice Department dropped charges Friday against a 20th man arrested in connection with Mississippi's civil rights slayings.

James Edward Jordan, 38, an admitted member of the militant White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, was freed at the government's request by a U.S. Commissioner at Biloxi.

Government attorneys said evidence against Jordan and 20 other white men would be turned over to a Grand Jury just as soon as it is reconvened by Federal District Judge Harold Cox. Cox was at work at his office here today, but refused to talk with newsmen.

Although not present at yesterday's preliminary hearing at Meridian for 19 of those arrested, Barnette figured prominently in the proceedings before U.S. Commissioner Esther Carter.

Miss Carter stunned Justice Department lawyers by refusing to allow an FBI agent to read a purported confession by Barnette on the grounds it was "hearsay" evidence. When they declined to offer any additional evidence, she ordered the 19 men released.

In Oslo, Norway, where he received the Nobel Peace Prize, Dr. Martin Luther King called the action a "tragic miscarriage of justice" and said he would appeal to President Johnson.

King called for an economic boycott against all products made in the state of Mississippi.

Nineteen of the 21 men were charged with conspiracy in the midsummer slayings of Michael Schwerner, James Chaney and Andrew Goodman.

Justice Department attorneys carefully guarded what they said was a signed confession by Barnette. The FBI has charged that Barnette was among the 10 conspirators assigned to carry out the crime.

Rosenbluth's Marks Fall

Cunningham And Tar Heels Smash Three Game Records

By LARRY TARLETON
DTH Sports Editor

It was a night for breaking records Thursday at Woolen Gym.

Billy Cunningham personally broke two school records, most points scored, 48, and most field goals made, 21 as the Tar Heels rolled over Tulane, 111-74. Rosenbluth's former highs of 47 points and 20 field goals against Furman in 1957.

In addition, the Tar Heels broke a school mark by making good on 47 field goals. The old mark was 44 against South Carolina in 1958. The team fell four points shy of the team scoring record of 115 against William and Mary in 1956 and equaled against South Carolina in 1958.

Cunningham fell just three rebounds shy of his school record, but he did move into second place among all-time Carolina rebounders. Entering the game, Billy trailed Rosenbluth by 14 rebounds, and his 25 easily surpassed the career total of the 1957 Player-of-the-Year.

Needs 54

Now the Kid needs only 54 recoveries to top Pete Brennan as the leading Tar Heel rebounder. Brennan is now tops with 854 grabs. Cunningham has 801 and Rosenbluth 790.

Billy could have scored a "hundred" Thursday night, but Coach Dean Smith elected to rest him after he had broken the school scoring record. By sitting out the last six minutes, Cunningham missed a chance at Ron Shavlik's ACC record of 55.

But the crowd wanted more. "We want Billy. We want Billy," was the cry while Billy sat on the bench.

The basket which gave Billy the record was, as he describes it, "Just an attempt to put the ball in the hole, break the record, and get out of the game."

One More

Before his last basket, assistant coach Ken Rosemond informed him that he needed only one basket to break Rosenbluth's record, so Billy grabbed a defensive rebound and took the ball the length of the court, running over three opponents as he sank his 47th and 48th points.

"I knew I was going to charge, but it gave me the basket, so I didn't really care," said the sensational southpaw.

When asked about the crowd's chanting, Billy replied, "I was so tired I was just glad to get out. It's a great honor to top Lennie and I hope I'm worthy of it."

The 48 points is his college high, but he once scored 61 at Erasmus Hall High School in Brooklyn.

"We won the game 144-40, and I got 61 in three quarters before they took me out. It was against Fort Hamilton, but they weren't too good."

The only disappointing part of the evening for Cunningham was his foul shooting. The Tar Heel All-American hit only 6 of 15 foul shots. Time and time again he threw his hands up in disgust after missing charity tosses, and once even looked to the bench as if calling for divine intercession.

Laughing about his foul shooting after the game, Billy said, "I wouldn't mind hitting 40 per cent from the line every night if I could score 48 points."

It was a great night for the Tar Heels and their 6-6 center.

Probation Sentence Given For Cheating

One student was convicted and four acquitted in cheating cases from the same court in Men's Council trials Thursday.

The examination grader discovered similarities in the papers of two students who sat next to each other possible instances of cheating.

In the first case, both defendants pleaded innocent. They sat together, but had very few similarities in their papers. All their answers were checked against their class notes.

The council found both innocent. In the second case one student pleaded innocent while the other pleaded guilty to having copied from the first student's paper.

During the trial the second student changed his plea because he thought what he had done did not constitute cheating.

He told the council that he accidentally noticed a word on his neighbor's paper as part of the answer to the final question. The word helped his memory and he wrote the answer. It was wrong.

The council found him guilty and placed him on indefinite probation. The members decided that the infraction was slight and was accidental. They made the sentence indefinite so that the defendant would have to appear for a reinstatement hearing after one semester.

The council decided he would have to reconsider the exact meaning of the Honor Code since he did not fully understand it at present.

In the final case, only one of the two students charged was tried. The other will come before the council next week.

The defendant pleaded innocent and was acquitted. The council found evidence to indicate that cheating had taken place, but found nothing that would specifically implicate the defendant.

Combo, Singers On GM Schedule

The "Jammers" are featured in Graham Memorial's combo party at 8 tonight in the Rendezvous Room.

Ricks, a guitarist who plays country-style blues and traditional folk music, has performed throughout the country with the Johnson City Three.

Aaronof, a banjo player, has played extensively in Eastern coffee houses.

FOOTBALL BANQUET TONIGHT

Ray Elliot, the famed ex-football coach at Illinois serves as guest speaker for the Carolina football banquet tonight to be held in the Carolina Inn.

Elliot, a skillful tactician as coach of the Illini, is in constant demand as an after-dinner speaker.

The banquet is for members of the 1964 varsity and freshman teams. Several awards will be made.

Parley Starts Today

The Reidsville conference on the developing Residence College System will begin today at 2:30 p.m.

Nearly 50 representatives of the student body, the faculty and the administration will attend the two-day meeting to discuss the RCS as well as problems of the University.

The conference, which had been suggested as early as 1932 to improve student-faculty-administration communication, will consist of extended discussion periods and a plenary session.

Each discussion group will consist of approximately 10 members from all three branches of the University community, and each group will evaluate the RCS as a whole.

"I hope the members of these three branches of the University will become aware of those areas of University affairs in which their interest overlies," Student Body President Bob Spearman said.

Spearman initiated planning for the conference and patterned it after the earlier Southern Pines Conference between fraternity leaders and the administration.

"This conference is but another indication of the possibility of even greater acceptance of student self-government at all levels of the University faculty and administration," Student Body Vice President Don Carson said.

Pair Injured In Accidents On Thursday

Two UNC students were hurt in separate accidents Thursday night and were admitted to the infirmary.

Joe Freeman, a freshman from Elkin, was injured in the groin at Thursday's basketball game when his foot slipped between two steps as he climbed the bleachers.

He landed straddling one of the boards.

Freeman underwent surgery Friday morning at Memorial Hospital, he was reported resting comfortably in satisfactory condition. He will be released in a few days, officials said.

Harold Berry, a sophomore from Tryon, was bruised on the legs Thursday at 10 p.m. when he was struck by an auto as he crossed Cameron Avenue near Dey Hall.

Chapel Hill Police said Berry was struck by the auto and thrown onto the hood.

No charges were filed against the driver.

Former Dean Charges ABC Board Members Yielded To Pressure

By ERNIE MCCRARY
DTH Ass'l. Managing Editor

Dr. Dudley D. Carroll, the only Orange County ABC Board member opposing establishment of a new Chapel Hill liquor store, yesterday accused the other two board members of "yielding to pressure from West Franklin Street businessmen."

Chairman Remus Smith and member Giles Long outvoted Carroll at the Board's Monday meeting when plans for a new store were approved.

Carroll, former dean of the UNC Business School, said the Eastgate ABC store could handle 25 per cent more business with almost no increase in overhead, and another store is "absolutely unnecessary."

"The other board members say a new store would ease traffic problems at Eastgate. I say there is no traffic problem. I have visited the store at different times of the day and have never had trouble finding a parking place. However, I think traffic and parking would be a problem at a downtown store."

Bootleg Trade

Supporters of a downtown liquor store have said it would not be a bootleg trade.

Carroll denied that there is a serious bootlegging problem.

"Illicit liquor is scarce in Orange County. Our police chief tells me there is very little 'white lightning' here. Most of the bootlegging is re-sale of tax-paid whiskey bought in Gastate."

"The bootlegger buys the legal maximum at the ABC store, then returns to his home where he sells it to his customers by the drink."

Police Chief William D. Blake told the DTH that this is an accurate representation of the problem, but added, "Most of the bootleggers exist now because of the distance to the Gastate store."

It costs about $1.75 for a taxi trip to Eastgate and back, and many buyers can't afford it.

The number of bootleggers has decreased from 60 to 12 since the legal liquor store was established. We feel that if one store makes this much difference, another would help even more."

Three Sites

Three sites for the ABC store have been offered the County Board. One is adjoining the rear of Fowler's Food Store on West Rosemary Street, another is between Main and Rosemary near Carboro and the other is near the Ranch House Restaurant.

AED Speaker

Pre-medicine and pre-dental students are invited to Alpha Epsilon Delta, pre-medical and pre-dental fraternity, to hear Dr. Jack Wilkerson of Stantonsburg speak at 7 p.m. Tuesday in 226 MacNider on the increasing demand for general practitioners.

Coed Is Suspended; Plagiarized Story

A coed was suspended for one semester and another was placed on two semesters probation by the Women's Council Thursday night.

In the first case the student was charged with having plagiarized an English I short narrative. She pleaded not guilty. Her defense argued that the similarities in her narrative and that of a short story by Katherine Mansfield were due to a peculiar set of circumstances and a case of complete recall on the part of the defendant.

The council judged from the evidence presented that the paper was plagiarized due to the fact that the sequence of events and the choice of details were the same, and the student's paper seemed a close paraphrase of the Mansfield story and in many places a word-for-word copy.

The council decided that if the defendant had the ability to recall so precisely, that she should have also been able to recall the fact that this was a Mansfield story which she studied last spring.

The defense argued that events in the student's paper were based upon his personal experiences on her 16th birthday. The Mansfield story also deals with a girl on her 16th birthday.

The defendant testified that, when she studied this story last spring, she was struck by the similarities it presented to her own birthday. The council decided if, this linkage was made the first time, she should have recalled the Mansfield story when she wrote her narrative about her birthday and recognized the danger of plagiarism.

In the second case, a student was charged with remaining out of the dormitory overnight without permission. She pleaded guilty.

The student testified that, after being at a party several hours, her blind date went to get something to eat. After eating they sat talking until they realized it was 1:30 a.m.

The student testified that she was too scared to come back to the dormitory and thought that by returning the next day, her absence would not be noticed.

She did not call her dormitory hostess to report her lateness because she thought all phones were cut off at closing hours.

After making the decision to stay out all night the couple returned to the party. Witnesses verified this fact and that they stayed there until after 5 a.m. The defendant returned to her dormitory at 6:30 a.m.

The council found her guilty and put her on probation for two full academic semesters.

Mortar Shot Just Misses UN Building

NEW YORK (AP)—A homemade mortar, bedecked with a Cuban flag, fired a single shot across the East River Friday at United Nations headquarters. The shell exploded alarmingly but harmlessly in the water 100 feet short of the building.

Inside at the time, in the sealed-off General Assembly Hall, Cuba's Ernesto Guevara was haranguing the United States. The blast from the river rattled windows in the 38-story international headquarters. But the noise failed to penetrate the chamber and Guevara was not interrupted.

Outside, simultaneously with the explosion, wild confusion broke out. Anti-Communist Cuban pickets surged against police lines, and a leather-jacketed woman in black, waving a knife and screaming hysterically in Spanish, tried to force an entrance to the building. Police quoted her later as saying she was bent on killing Guevara.

There were no injuries of any consequence and no damage during one of the wildest episodes since the UN moved into its East River headquarters in 1952.

Found—One Burro, What!

Have you lost a burro lately? Yep, that's right—a B-U-R-R-O.

Don't laugh, because somebody lost one. Four members of Delta Upsilon were working on the Inter-Fraternity Council's cleanup project about a mile east of town Thursday afternoon. All of a sudden, a three-foot high burro came ambling along the road toward them.

Not knowing what one is supposed to do when encountered by a burro, they held a hasty conference on the situation.

Then, wild-west style, off they went in hot pursuit of the burro who was by now traversing hill and dale and a nearby field.

Like all modern cowboys, they pursued not on horseback but in a raring MG. Back to the DU ranch they hiked with the trophy.

Unfortunately, they found they knew very little about the care and feeding of burros.

Police were called to see if they had a lost and found burro division. The answer was no, but they did have a solution. So over walked a policeman and led the burro to a new temporary home, the Vine Veterinary Hospital.

Dr. Vine is anxious to hear from anyone who knows the burro or its owner.

Meanwhile the burro is being bedded well fed and is happily bedded down in a stable.

DTH SECRETARY Becky Timberlake received perhaps the most unusual lost and found item of the year Thursday when Delta Upsilon fraternity reported the discovery of a burro. The coed couldn't restrain her curiosity and had to check on the find herself. "He's real," she said.
