leader of the party, however, he retained some control, and called a party meeting for that night to elect his successor.

Fraternities, sororities and residence halls were duly notified, and Jim Hubbard was chosen as party chairman that night by a unanimous vote.

So everything is fine and dandy. But what caused Roney to resign "for the good of the party?"
Full Story
The full story can now be told with all its implications, but first something must be explained about the University Party and its method of doing things.

The UP does not elect its chairman, nor does it nominate its nominees. In the words of a UP member, "It ratifies them."
A word should be said about the type of person suitable to be UP chairman. He must be able to take orders well, as Spearman and Carson prefer to have things run their way.

So Carson talked to Roney, who by this time was feeling a few pangs of guilt. Roney knew that Carson had been double-crossed, and since the vice-president had been his original sponsor in the party he was apparently a bit remorseful.

So Roney offered to resign. Some say he was brow-beaten into it, and it is true some pressure was placed on him. But Roney, like so many student government workers, has political ambitions, and to alienate Carson, plus the entire UP leadership, would spell death.

Not So Bad
So the story isn't as awful as the Student Party would have us believe. There were no double-dealings by Carson and his crowd, just a following of time-honored UP procedures.

But the story lies in the attempted take-over by the ultra-conservative bloc. They did show a great deal of sense in trying to put their point across through a democratic process, and they were honorable enough to run John Roney, who as vice-chairman of the party certainly had cause to seek the office.

Crampton and Maupin are now alienated by the UP. The UP is now alienated by Crampton and Maupin.
So where do the ultra-conservatives go from here?
Go Nowhere

They probably will go nowhere, though it is a certainty they will try, and try hard, to do something.
Spearman still has this albatross about his neck, having appointed Crampton and Maupin as co-chairmen of the Communications Committee. We supported this move at the time, as Maupin is an excellent writer and Crampton is a good organizer. But Spearman is sorry today he made such an appointment, as it lends prestige to the ultra-conservative movement.

Right now the ultra-conservatives are mulling over their future. Maupin is their only good candidate, and he can either 1) run for President of the Student Body as an independent, or 2) try for editor of the DTH in the spring elections.

The latter would seem to be out, as Armistead has almost no newspaper experience and would find it difficult to get up a qualified staff even if he could pass the Publications Board.

It would also be hard to rouse up enough support as a candidate for president, as Carson has widespread appeal and the Student Party's possible candidates, Sonny Pepper and Paul Dickson, are also popular.

Then the question of another attempt at taking over a party comes to mind. Pepper, who is quite conservative, probably would not be above taking Crampton, Maupin and Co. under his wing, especially if it would assure him the SP nomination.

He is the only possible candidate the ultra-conservatives are at all satisfied with, as he was the only one who gave any sort of support to their anti-NSA campaign.

Pepper signed the anti-NSA endorsement letter, and this made the boys happy. Later, however, he admitted to several pro-NSA people that he had voted their way and had sent people door-to-door in his residence hall to expound upon the virtues of the national student organization.

UP Happy
So the UP is happy, and the ultra-conservatives aren't. It is doubtful the multiple elections for chairman hurt the party to any great extent as the Student Party doesn't seem to have the skill to do much about it except to whine about things everybody knew anyway.

So the situation, at least on its surface, can expect to get back to normal. The UP and the SP can go back to their bickering, the Open Forum can raise all grades of Cain and the ultra-conservatives, now homeless, will go back to their plotting.

Student Instructed On Brick Breaking

By IVAN HARDESTY
Ever see a karate expert break a brick by smashing it with his bare hand?

The casual observer might think it takes years of practice and training.
But I shattered a brick after one minute of instruction, then broke two more to prove it wasn't a fluke.

It's easy and painless when you know a few simple tricks.
The lesson started after blue belt holder P. J. Kane expounded to me about the merits of karate. He has taken lessons and can disarm a man holding a cocked pistol in his stomach before he can pull the trigger.

I know—he did it to me. But back to brick-breaking.
"It's easy. Anyone can do it, even you," P. J. said.
"Surely you jest," I replied.
"The psychology major persisted. 'Come outside and I'll show you.'

P. J. got three ordinary building bricks and put two of them on the ground slightly less than a brick-length apart. Then he placed a third across them.
"That's the one you'll break," he said.
I doubted it.

Mr. Thomson....please!

Please tell me how you manage to make me look so great on campus. The only thing I can't pass now is a crowd of boys. Those vertical stretch pants follow the sleek line of most resistance. And guarantee the least resistance on campus. Then, total recovery (only the pants, Mr. Thomson, not the boys). The reflex action of your proportioned stretch pants is second only to the reflex action of that Psych major I've had my eye on. And the fit! Mr. Thomson, please, how did you get them to fit so well? I adore you, Mr. Thomson!

A HIT AND A MISS!
Miss America steps out on campus in the high-stepping Oldsmobile 442

If you can tear your eyes off pretty Vonda Kay Van Dyke for a moment, we'd like to tell you about the car: Oldsmobile's new 4-4-2. Earns its name from a 400-cu.-in., 345-bhp V-8... 4-barrel carb... and twin pipes. Red-line tires, heavy-duty suspension, three transmission availabilities live up the package—no matter which F-85 V-8 coupe or convertible you pick for your 4-4-2 action! But the real clincher is price: 4-4-2 prices start lower than any other high-performance car in America designed for everyday driving! Vonda, by the way, is not included. But that's no problem for a tiger like you!
Watch for the 4-4-2... coming to your Oldsmobile Quality Dealer's soon!
