At the midway point of the season, the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race looks a lot different than it did last December.

Before the season started the Tar Heels were supposed to battle Duke for the conference crown. Now it looks like a three-way battle between Duke, NC State and Wake Forest with Duke threatening to make the race a runaway again. Carolina and Maryland rate the darkhorse nods with Clemson, Virginia and South Carolina down in the lower echelon.

Here is the way the race looks from here: NORTH CAROLINA—The Heels have been the disappointment of the year this far (only Syracuse can threaten them for that title). During four straight losses, the Heels have looked like the worst team in the conference instead of the best. But the potential is still there and they could develop.

With Billy Cunningham and Bobby Lewis, Coach Dean Smith should have the two best players in the conference, but they must get help. Sophomores Tom Gauntlett and Ian Morrison have helped at times and may be the answer Smith is looking for.

Bubas Has Another Powerhouse

DUKE—It looks as if Vic Bubas has come up with another powerhouse at Durham. The Blue Devils are leading the nation in scoring with a 96.8 average and have lost only to powerful Michigan.

Junior forward Jack Marin has come into his own this year and should be a shoo-in for All-ACC honors. Sophomore Bob Verga has given the Blue Devils the added scoring punch they needed and if center Hack Tison begins using his 6-11 height to advantage, the rest of the conference will be in trouble.

STATE—Press Maravich hasn't lost a game since taking over for Everett Case and the Wolfpack is now 8-1 on the season. Forward Pete Coker, a 6-5 transfer from Dartmouth, has given the Pack more muscle under the boards, and sitting out a semester hasn't hurt Larry Lakins.

Maravich's squad has probably already set some kind of record. All five State starters, Lakins, Coker, Jerry Moore, Billy Moffitt and Tommy Mattocks are married.

WAKE FOREST—On certain nights the Demon Deacons can be as tough as anyone. Bones McKinney has two of the ACC's top performers in Ronny Watts and Bob Leonard and has come up with a top sophomore in Jim Boshart.

After routing the Tar Heels 107-85 Wednesday, the Deacons are now 4-1 in the conference and 6-5 over-all.

MARYLAND—Bud Milliken is fighting to hold his job at College Park and the only way to do it is have a winning season. Sophomore Jay McMillen and junior Gary Ward have done heroic jobs thus far but they need some help. If the sophomores continue to develop, Milliken's team could be heard from before the season is over.

Randy Could Be Best Of Group

CLEMSON—Bobby Roberts is another coach who is having to depend on sophomores in this year of the rookies. The Tigers start three first-year men, Randy Mahaffey, Jim Sutherland and Hank Channel, and two other sophs, Joe Ayoub and Walt Ayers are the top two reserves.

Mahaffey has already proved that he is the best of the Mahaffeys (however he has a younger brother who will probably wind up at Clemson next year). Randy and Sutherland are averaging over 18 points per game.

VIRGINIA—The Cavaliers have surprised some people already and may get better. Mac Caldwell has been getting scoring help from Jim Connelly and Jerry Sanders. However, Bill Gibson still has a long way to go before he has a contender.

SOUTH CAROLINA—There are few bright spots for Frank McGuire in his first year at Columbia. Sophomores Gary Gregor and Al Salvadori hold the key to what little success McGuire can expect. The Gamecocks are probably the weakest team in the conference.

And as an added attraction here are this week's predictions: NORTH CAROLINA AT DUKE—The Tar Heels are erratic, to say the least, but the players have pledged maximum effort for tomorrow night. Gotta stick with the Heels. Carolina by 8.

WAKE AT VPI—The Deacons are better, but the Gobblers are tough at home. Wake, by 3.

VIRGINIA AT SOUTH CAROLINA—If the Gamecocks are going to win one, it'll be tonight. USC, by 7.

MARYLAND AT CLEMSON—The Tigers are tough at home. Clemson, by 2.

VIRGINIA AT CLEMSON—Ditto. Clemson, by 20.

MARYLAND AT SOUTH CAROLINA—The Terps break the Gamecocks winning streak at one. Maryland, by 10.

Experience Is Word For UNC Thinclads

Five UNC trackmen will travel to Richmond, Va. tonight to open the indoor track season in the Chesterfield Invitational, and the rest of the team will meet N.C. State in the Tin Can at one p.m. tomorrow. Coach Joe Hilton will take sprinter Dale White and a two-mile relay team of Art Maillet, Eddie Daw, Co-Captain Charlie Little and Bill Janowitz. White will compete in the 60-yard dash tonight, and holds the ACC record in it as well as the 100 and 220 outdoors. Maillet and Little may compete in other distance events.

The main strength of the teams appears to lie in the 2-mile, dash, mile and broad jump.

Maillet, the defending ACC indoor champ, and Jim Meade provide the returning experience in the two-mile. Both are capable of 9:20 performances. Jerry Smith, Drummond Bell, Charles Worley, Ross Putnam, Trip MacPherson, Stu Matthews and Charles Leifer are also available.

Hilton has three excellent prospects in the dashes in White, football star Connie Jackson and sophomore Jon Levin. White and Jackson finished 1-2 in the 60 in the 1964 championships. Jackson holds the UNC record in that event of :06.1, while both have been clocked at 9.6 in the hundred. The holder of every freshman sprint record, Levin also has done a 9.6 hundred and could be a serious threat to the other two.

Little, Baillet and Meade will also be handling the mile, while Harvey Whitley and sophomore Hoppie Ancarrow will broad jump. Ancarrow also is strong in the triple jump.

In addition to Jackson, the football team is represented by Bo Wood and Max Chapman, who along with Dick Jonas are throwing the discus. Co-Captain Bill Graham will toss the shotput.

Milton Bauges and Adger Stokes will handle the hurdles, while Eddie Daw, Bill Janowitz, Worth Helms and Obie Whitcraft will run the 880. In the 440 will be Ritchie Ambrose and Al Dobritch.

Pat Tone (javelin), Jim Moore (high jump), Bill Busby (pole vault), and Joe Huffman (high jump) are other returnees.

Two Former NC Coaches Nominated

Former UNC coaches Carl Snavely and Jim Tatum were among twelve retired coaches nominated for the National Football Hall of Fame, it was announced Wednesday.

Snavely coached here in 1934 and 1935 and later from 1945 to 1952. Tatum was first here in 1942, and later returned for three years starting in 1956 before his untimely death.

A pioneer in the use of films as coaching aids, Snavely compiled 58-35-5 record. Tatum engineered numerous powerhouses here and at Maryland (his '53 Terrapin team was number one in the nation), and had a 19-17-3 record in Chapel Hill. His son is a freshman at UNC presently.

One of the twelve will be picked at the NCAA meeting this weekend in Chicago.

Also nominated were Eddie Cochems (St. Louis), one of the first to emphasize passing, Lou Young (Penn), who revised the "spinner" attack, Frank Leahy (Notre Dame), and Chick Meehan (NYU, Syracuse and Manhattan).

The others were Park Hill Davis (Lafayette), Handerson (Dutch) Van Surdam (Marietta and Sewanee), Myron Withan (Purdue and Colorado) and Clarence (Doc) Spears. Spears has already been inducted as a player.

To be nominated a coach must have been retired for at least three years.

Chapin Gets Committee Post

Professor F. Stuart Chapin Jr. of the University here has been appointed to the Committee of Urban Economics, established five years ago with a grant from the Ford Foundation to Resources for the Future, Inc., of Washington, D. C.

The committee administers a fellowship program open to persons from the social sciences who intend to write a Ph. D. thesis with an urban economics theme.

Professor Chapin is a member of the department of City and Regional Planning here.

He has also held office in the American Institutes of Planners and is a member of the American Society of Planning Officials and the Regional Science Association.

Receiving his A.B. from the University of Minnesota, Professor Chapin was awarded the Bachelor of Architect in City Planning and the Master of City Planning from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He is the author of "Urban Land Use Planning," and a contributor to "Local Planning Administration," "The Urban South," "Readings in Urban Geography" and various journals.

He has had wide experience in planning, with work for the Tennessee Valley Authority, the U. S. Naval Reserve, the War Department and was a director of planning in Greensboro.
