

At UNC: Week's News In Review

Money. That was the word on campus last week.

For students it meant that it will cost more to attend UNC next fall. For the Consolidated University it apparently meant appropriations from the General Assembly will be slashed.

It will cost UNC students at least $24.50 more to come to school next year. The $12.25 per semester hike is the result of a fee increase effective fall semester.

Most of the increase will go to finance the $2 million Frank Porter Graham Student Union. The University has borrowed $2 million from the federal government for construction of the union. The loan is self-liquidating, to be repaid with student fees and charges.

Summer school students will start paying their share of the bill in 1966. Fees will be raised to $20.70 per session.

Cost of the union accounts for $9.60 of the hike per semester. A $5 per year increase in student athletic fees accounts for most of the remaining increase.

Another increase went into effect this semester for men students who live in residence halls. Social fees were raised from $1.50 to $1.80 per semester this year to pay intramural managers' salaries. The extra 30 cents could not be billed in time for payment last semester so a 60-cent charge was made this semester to make up the difference.

Forty-eight per cent of UNC's total 1965-67 budget request was recommended to the General Assembly by the Advisory Budget Commission.

Although this recommendation is not binding on the Assembly, it is usually followed closely by the legislators when voting on appropriations.

The entire "A" budget, $4,577,402, was approved. This is the money needed to maintain services of the University at their present level.

The "B" budget requested was chopped 66 per cent, from $9,041,676 to $2,049,311.

The "C" budget, for capital expenditures, was sliced 57 per cent, from $20,569,094 to $8,766,000.

Consolidated University President William C. Friday may succeed in getting some cuts restored when he appears before the Joint Appropriations Committee later in the session.

OTHER THINGS

But there were other things to keep students occupied as they returned to campus. For some it was a long week in the basement of Hanes standing in drop-add or registration lines. For others it was adjustment to new professors or maybe to a new roommate, or several of them.

Some spent all week looking for a used textbook before breaking down and buying a new one Friday. Others chose

In the news, the rest of the week went like this:

MEN'S COUNCIL INVESTIGATION

Student Legislature voted Thursday to investigate procedures of the Men's Council.

The action came after a speech by University Party legislator Britt Gordon, who charged students were placed in possible double jeopardy. He cited three cases tried in the fall semester in which students who pleaded not guilty and were later convicted, were tried for lying in their original plea.

Gordon based the charge on a brief prepared by former UP legislator Bo Edwards who said in the report: "I believe there exist certain rights to all Americans under the Constitution which cannot be abrogated by the UNC Honor Code or its Honor Council."

Student Party Floor Leader Arthur Hays called for the investigation.

"The student was tried and convicted both for committing an act and for denying that he committed it. Thus he is being tried and convicted twice in cases arising from the same act."

'CARPETBAGGING' CHARGED

In an address to Student Legislature Speaker Pro Tem Charles Neely hit the University Party for "carpetbagging."

Neely based his charges on the recent moves of three UP leaders into key legislative districts.

Freshman Class President Bill Purdy and UP Chairman Jim Hubbard have or will move from Gimes and the Phi Delta Theta house, respectively, to Ehringhaus. Freshman Class Vice President Buddy Nester moved from Grimes to Old West where he will take over the legislative vacancy created by the resignation of former UP Floor Leader Mal King.

UP Chairman Jim Hubbard refuted the charges and said the moves were non-political.

SORORITY TO DISBAND

Alpha Gamma Delta sorority

announced plans to suspend operations on campus and become an alumnae chapter June 7.

A house spokesman said: "We just couldn't keep up the house. After rush it became evident we would not be able to continue. Our international headquarters did everything possible, but we finally decided to go inactive."

The sorority will not participate in spring rush.

The move leaves UNC with seven sororities.

GOVERNOR'S SPEECH

Gov. Dan K. Moore said Thursday that he will attempt to prevent the controversial Speaker Ban and N. C. State name change from interfering with the University's progress.

The statement was included in Moore's "State of the State" address to a joint session of the General Assembly.

Education in the Tar Heel State occupied an important part of Moore's address. He urged the legislators and the people of the state to step forward from "the threshold of greatness" by endorsing a legislative program concentrating on education.

Moore lent his strong approval to the concept of consolidation and called the University the "single most important factor in higher education in the state."

Moore endorsed Charlotte College as the fourth branch of the Consolidated University.

TRUSTEES

Consolidated University President William Friday and acting UNC-G Chancellor J. S. Ferguson agreed last week that "ability," not alumni affiliation, should determine the composition of the Board of Trustees.

This was in reaction to Gov. Dan Moore's remarks to the General Assembly that recommended a study of the role of the trustees, the method of their selection and representation of the various campuses. He urged "every effort be made to equalize representation more fully."

Friday said that while the decision is a legislative judgment, "my thought would be more to the qualifications of people than their particular alumni status."

Ferguson said: "Some very able trustees come from the ranks of the alumni of UNC-G, and I would welcome an increase in their number. But at the same time, I would not like to see anything done to stimulate the development of blocs within the board."

REBELLION ON CAMPUS

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp warned last week that rebellion on American campuses results from a student revolt against the "older generation" and a lack of student-administration communication.

Sharp said he saw "no overt signs" of rebellion brewing on this campus. He spoke Tuesday to the Dean of Women's staff at an in-service training program.

He said the need for universities to analyze themselves was "brought to mind by Berkeley." He said the controversy there was a symptom of the growth of the rebellion which may last as long as a generation.

UNC, he said, is "relatively free of that kind of restriction, with the exception of the Speaker Ban, but we ought to familiarize ourselves with it."

NAME CHANGE

The controversial N. C. State name change went back to the General Assembly Friday.

Rep. George Wood of Camden introduced the bill to change the name to "North Carolina State University at Raleigh."

Wood was confident of the bill's passage. "The bill has favorable support in the House and a lot of grassroots support," he said.

The current name of North Carolina State of the University of North Carolina at Raleigh was a compromise of the heated debate in the 1963 General Assembly.

OLD WEST NO. 1

Old West was the No. 1 residence hall during the 1963-64 academic year, according to figures released last week by the Dean of Men's office.

The 20 residence halls were ranked in five categories with the top spot going to the residence hall with the best overall ranking.

Old East finished second with Avery and Grimes tied for third. Aycock and Battle-Vance-Pettigrew tied for fifth.

It was also announced that damage per man in residence halls last year was 38 cents, enough to get a comment of a "fine record" from Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey.

SPOT THE SPOT

Spot The Spot finally came to an end early Wednesday morning when Van Johnson correctly identified the two tie-breaking spots.

Pictures of a doorway to the University Laundry and of the bell ringers list in the bell tower stumped 23 of the 24 finalists, but not Johnson. He made the call at 1:34 a.m. and picked up the prize of 12 record albums from Kemp's Wednesday afternoon.
