UNC Delegation Model U.N.'s Best

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Attacks On Reds Termed 'Stupid'

By ALAN BANOVA
DTH Staff Writer

The U. S. retaliatory attack on North Viet Nam was the "stupidest policy ever undertaken in U. S. foreign policy," according to Arthur Waskow, Friday night's Model U.N. speaker.

Dr. Waskow, Resident Fellow of the Institute of Policy Studies in Washington, told delegates in Graham Memorial after his speech that the attack "might force the USSR and Red China together."

"I had intended to make a speech here about long-term disarmament," he said, "but I am very deeply upset over the events of the past week. I have never given such an outspoken speech as I did tonight."

Waskow, surrounded by a tight-knit group of eager listeners, repeated his charge of "arrogance" among some Americans. "I detect an increasing number of Americans who are willing to use nuclear weapons whenever we can against North Viet Nam or anyone else."

"If we can fire upon another country just to show we can get away with it, it will be disastrous for the United States," he asserted. "If I kill you because I want you to agree with me I don't do any good."

The short, balding, political scientist suggested that "pulling out troops and putting in the Peace Corps" might have worked five years ago. But, "if you make mistakes for five years you can't undo them."

One delegate, from The Citadel, disagreed vigorously with Waskow's speech and opinions. "Someone has to tell him he's out to lunch," the student shouted after the talk.

A fellow cadet from the military college advised him to calm down and uphold the dignity of The Citadel blazer he was wearing. The heated delegate replied: "Sure I know I'm wearing a Citadel blazer; and I'm glad I am. I'm an American and I'm proud of it!"

Waskow was somewhat apologetic about such reactions. "My job isn't to criticize totalitarians; I know how nasty they are. My job is to try to understand and outsmart them."

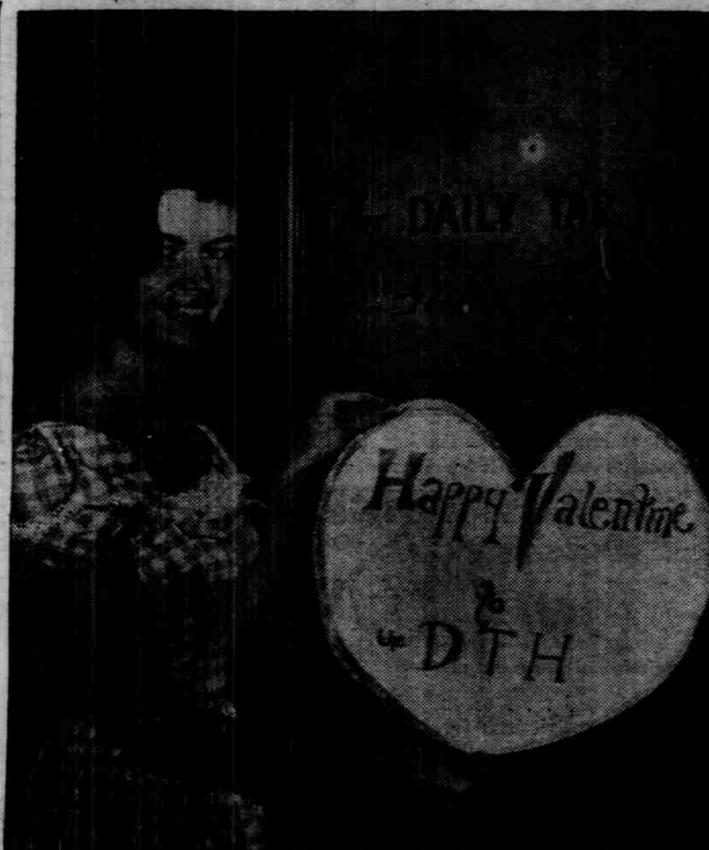

"People must realize that within the American family we can and must differ on policies."

Interviewed later at the Carolina Inn, Waskow said: "I very much hope U Thant can do something about the crisis. But friends in the U.N. have told me not to depend upon a meeting of the Security Council."

He reiterated his suggestion that Japanese, instead of U.N. peace-keeping forces, be asked to guard the Vietnamese border after a ceasefire. The U.N. is "paralyzed," he asserted, because the U. S. would object to the USSR's vote in the Security Council.

"But if Thant called for a restoration of the New Year's truce, the U. S. wouldn't strike north and wouldn't have a reason to do so."

He said some good might come of the Viet Nam crisis if it ends peaceably. He noted that "one value of the Cuban crisis was that everyone was so frightened that the nuclear test ban resulted."

"BE M VALENTINE." That was the wish conveyed yesterday by cute coed Carol Johnston who pins a big heart on the Daily Tar Heel office door. The Short Hills, N. J., senior is reminding Carolina Gentlemen that today's the day for Cupid to roam with his arrows, and also the day when sweethearts and mothers tend to be mad when forgotten. —Photo by Jock Lauterer

Campus elections are just over a month away and student political activity is picking up steam.

Legislature

The special session of Student Legislature called for Tuesday night has been canceled, according to Speaker Don Carson.

The meeting had been called for SL to act on measures for the proposed campus radio station. The regular SL session will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in New East.

The SL Ways and Means Committee will hold hearings on the radio proposals and other bills from 2 to 5 p.m. Monday in Graham Memorial.

Interviews for students wishing to run for legislative seats on the UP ticket will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday in 206 Davie.

Don Wilson Named Next President

By MIKE YOPP

UNC's Byelorussian delegation to the Model United Nations was selected yesterday as the best at the four-day session here.

The selection was announced at Saturday's business session where UNC sophomore Don Wilson was elected president of next year's General Assembly.

Chuck Neely was chairman of the winning delegation. Members were Harry Johnson, Tom Wilson and Wright Dolye.

This is the second consecutive year a UNC delegation has been named the session's best. At last year's Model U.N. at Duke the UNC Yugoslavian delegation won the honor.

Neely said his committee "appreciated" the award, but added "there were other delegations worthy of the award."

"The real value of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations and the Model General Assembly," he said, "is playing a role in espousing the policies of the nations which each delegation represents. Greater understanding is fostered of the U.N. of international relations and of the policies the world's nations stand for."

Wilson completed for the presidency with Baxter Linny, another UNC delegate. The vote was 17-10.

Wilson will preside over next year's General Assembly to be held at Duke. Duke was selected as the site over Wake Forest and N. C. State.

Tim Anna of Duke was elected secretary general of the next session. Vice president will be Ross Barber of Eastern Carolina.

Assembly Action

Four resolutions were presented to the General Assembly during the last session.

The only one to gain approval was one presented by the winning UNC delegation which condemned apartheid in the Republic of South Africa.

The resolution demanded South Africa "cease its discrimination and repressive measures of apartheid," and "release all political prisoners and all per-

Anti-Gag Petition Goes To Trustees

A petition circulated on campus by Student Government will be presented today to a committee of the University Board of Trustees.

Through Friday some 1,000 names were signed to the petition which urges that all responsibility for the "internal affairs" of state supported colleges in North Carolina be vested in the board.

Similar petitions have been circulated by UNC-G and N. C. State student governments.

The petition will be presented by Student Body President Bob Spearman.

Liberian Visitor Angered

African May Protest 'Insult'

By FRED SEELY
DTH Co-Editor

A Liberian student from Benedict College in Columbia, S. C. claimed Friday that he had been insulted because of his race and charged yesterday that administration and student officials had overlooked the incident.

He also said he may make a formal protest to his government.

Wilnot P. K. Hage, a delegate to the Middle South Mock United Nations General Assembly, said he had been called a "nigger" as he walked by a group in front of a Columbia St. fraternity house and that his companion, UNC graduate student James Gardner, was called a "nigger-lover."

In a letter to the Daily Tar Heel, the Chapel Hill Weekly, Dean of Men William G. Long and the Durham Morning Herald, Hage said he "did not wish to judge the behavior of the entire community by these incidents, but (the participants) seemed to enjoy the protection of the police and other authorities and therefore in some way represent a part of the atmosphere in which we as guests here were expected to live."

Gardner, in a letter to the Chapel Hill Weekly, mentioned the "seeming indifference of the Chapel Hill police and University officials to sidewalk and street behavior by fraternity students."

Long termed the charges of "indifference" as being "completely unbased."

"Within five minutes after we learned such an incident had taken place, a representative of my office, Larry McDevitt, was on the scene," Long said. "The police were present when he arrived."

"We did not know a foeigner had been involved until 11 p.m., when Mr. Gardner called me back," Long added. "When he informed me of the incident in the afternoon he only said he
