Torrid Heels Continue Win Streak

Zarro Freed By Hung Jury In Mock Trial

(Ed. note: This is the result of the Law School's annual mock trial. Zarro was not charged by police.)

The peeping tom trial of UNC gridiron star Richie Zarro, sponsored by Phi Alpha Delta law fraternity, ended Friday night in a hung jury.

Law student lawyers for the prosecution Roy Aycock, Charles Robertson, and Bob Thompson failed to prove to the nine men and three women on the jury that Zarro had been guilty of peeking into the dormitory window of a coed and of watching her as she dressed for bed.

Elizabeth Taylor of Chapel Hill had charged Zarro with looking into her Cobb Dormitory residence. Zarro was arrested Tuesday night after a five-day investigation by Chapel Hill police.

Miss Taylor called police after receiving two anonymous letters describing her behavior as she prepared for bed.

When attorneys for the defense Lane Brown, Tom Bolch, and Frank Montgomery asked Miss Taylor why she had "made it so easy for someone to see" into her window, she replied, "it would have been pretty hard to undress underneath a bathrobe." She testified that her window shade was broken and would not close.

A typewriter, found in Zarro's room at the time of arrest, was identified by a typewriter expert as the machine used to write the anonymous letters which Miss Taylor had received.

Zarro's lawyers argued that the typewriter had been in a typewriter repair shop on the days the letters were mailed.

A large telescope belonging to Zarro was admitted as one of 15 pieces of evidence by the prosecution. Zarro testified that the telescope was used for "stargazing" in connection with a course he was taking in astronomy.

Judge E. L. Ervin of Charlotte presided over the trial.

26-Mile Run Wins Bet For Freshman

A UNC freshman ran 26 miles yesterday to collect a $45.50 bet. Fred Schmidt of Sea Girt, N. J., wore only shorts and track shoes during most of his 9:30 a.m. to 1:55 p.m. marathon run in 30-degree weather.

The idea for the marathon started in a "bull session." Schmidt was originally bet $10 that he could not run 26 miles in six hours.

By Saturday morning 14 other bettors had joined in and raised the ante to $45.50.

104 Laps

He ran the 104 laps of the quarter-mile track in just under three and a half hours, and is still collecting his money.

His friends, who referred to him as "obstinate," watched from the sidelines of the cinder track at Fetzer Field and cheered him on during the final laps.

Lying on the ground after his last lap around the field, he said, "I'm really fatigued, people, I'm really fatigued."

Did he want to sleep the rest of the day?

Needs Beer

"Who the hell needs sleep? What I need is beer."

Was it worth it?
"Yeah, I think so. My winnings will amount to about $4 per blister and $10 for each toenail that's going to fall off, but I guess it's worth it."

Aside from the money involved, Schmidt said he made the run to "bring attention to the plight of lefthanders at UNC."

He said some classrooms have no lefthanded desks and this is a "great inconvenience" for lefthanders like himself.

No One Injured

Pellet Hits Kenan

A pellet was fired through a Kenan dormitory window Friday night where two coeds who spoke at the Y-Court protest rally were sitting.

They were not injured and Campus Police Chief Arthur Beaumont said, "Nobody tried to shoot anybody."

The women, Carolyn Schmidt of Detroit, Mich., and Billie Jean Barns of Horseshoe, are graduate students. Miss Barnes is secretary of the UNC-NAACP. Another graduate student, Sandra Milstead of Lake Worth, Fla., was in the room. She was in charge of the office desk and was also uninjured.

Beaumont, investigating the incident with Chapel Hill Police Detective Arthur Summey, said, "There was a hole in the window you couldn't even put a pencil through. The hole was about eight or nine feet above the floor and there were no marks on the screen on the lower half of the window."

He said the dormitory faces a residential area and "it could have been a kid playing — it looked accidental to me."

Billy Sets Record In 86-84 Victory

By LARRY TARLETON
DTH Sports Editor

CHARLOTTE—Billy Cunningham broke a North-South scoring record with 36 points here last night to power the Tar Heels to their fifth straight win, 86-84 over Clemson.

The fabulous Kangaroo Kid broke the record of 35 set by Ronnie Collins of South Carolina against UNC last year.

It took a supreme performance from the Tar Heels to down the hot-shooting Tigers, who displayed a fantastic shooting exhibition in the second half.

At one time the Tigers with sophomore Jim Sutherland and junior Gary Helms hitting from outside, scored 14 consecutive times.

"It took one of our best efforts to beat them," said UNC coach Dean Smith. "Those weren't layups they were shooting during that streak. We were charging them on defense, but they just couldn't miss. That Clemson team is tough."

Turning to the performance by his All-American center, Smith said, "Billy has played well since the Maryland game. He knows he has just a few more college games to play and he is putting everything into it. He has been playing every phase of the game well. I think he is going to be a fine pro because he can play defense as well as score."

In the first half Johnny Yokley and Cunningham kept the Tar Heels to a 39-37 advantage. Yokley, who hit a career high of 17 points, took some of the pressure off Cunningham and Lewis by hitting from outside.

Cunningham was really the Kangaroo Kid as he leaped high to block seven Tiger shots while contributing 12 points to the Carolina offense.

Clemson scored two quick buckets after intermission to take a 41-39 lead. But Cunningham hit a free throw and Yokley hit two from the line to give the Tar Heels the lead.

The Tigers never lead again, although the score was tied five times, the last time at 78-78 with 2:43 left in the game.

Lewis then hit a jumper and after Tom Gauntlett stole a Tiger pass, Cunningham passed to Lewis for a layup to give the Heels an 82-78 margin with 1:45 left.

With 13 seconds to go, Randy MaHaffey fouled Cunningham and The Kid hit the free toss to match Collins' record, and pad the Heels' margin to 86-82. Joe Ayoub hit the last bucket with four seconds left.

Trailing Cunningham, with 10 rebounds, were Bob Lewis with 18, Ray Respass with 11 and Yokley.

The Tigers never led again, second defeat, placed three men over 20. MaHaffey had 24, Helms 21, and Sutherland 20.

Riding a five-game winning streak, the Tar Heels close out the season next week with home games. They host Virginia Tuesday night and Duke Saturday.

They are now tied for second place in the ACC with an 8-4 mark. They are 13-8 over-all.

UNC's CHARLIE LITTLE is a tired, but happy man as he finishes the two-mile run in 9:05. The run broke the ACC indoor track record set by Jim Beatty. For full coverage of yesterday's track meet here see page 8.
