Tryouts Monday

Carolina Playmakers will hold tryouts for their next major production, "Billy Budd," Monday at 4 and 7 p.m. in Playmakers Theater, The Louis O. Cox and Robert Chapman adaptation of Herman Melville's well-known short novel calls for an all-male cast of 25.

Director Foster Fitz-Simons has announced that scripts for "Billy Budd" will be available for those interested in trying out. They may be borrowed Monday afternoon from the Reserve Reading Room at the University Library or from the Dramatic Arts office, 307 Byrum.

Production dates for "Billy Budd" are March 30 through April 4.

best results occur when the student attends regularly and stays for the suggested 30 hours.

Before the student begins his reading lessons he is given a series of four tests to establish his capabilities and his present reading rate.

After taking the tests, the student has a conference with an instructor who interprets his scores and discusses the particular problems the student may want to overcome.

He begins his reading during the third hour at a level his pretests have indicated.

"We introduce them to a wealth of material," said Mrs. Campbell, "and it gives them an opportunity to find out what they need to work on."

Rapid Increase
One student, who was exceptional, began the course with a reading rate of 246 words per minute and completed with a rate of 3273 wpm.

Another student, who can be described as typical, began with 324 wpm and finished with a rate of 680 wpm with no decrease in comprehension.

This semester, in addition to the regular reading program, letters are being sent at random to freshmen inviting them to take part in a seven-week course in the development of reading and study skills.

Others will not take the course but participate in tests for comparative purposes. There will be a follow-up test given spring semester 1966 to determine the retention existing from the course work.

James Brown Is Coming ... he doesn't perform this way.

James And The Flames—On The Way

Tickets to the James Brown show March 9 will go on sale to all students at 10 a.m. Monday in Y-Court.

The rock 'n' roll show, sponsored by Men's Residence Council, will begin at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Brown will bring his famous flames and the rest of the show which includes Bobby Byrd, James Crawford and Elsie Mae T.V. Mama.

Brown writes and arranges most of his material. "I pity the cat who has to write it," he said. "You got to feel everything you do. Even as I arrange for the cats and girls in my stable, as we call it, I try to find their soul. Of course you've got to give up some of yourself, but I still try to find out what this cat or this girl feels."

Ranger 8 Photos Put On Exhibit At Planetarium

Photographs of the moon's "Sea of Tranquility" taken by the Ranger 8 probe Saturday are now on exhibit at Morehead Planetarium.

Two of the best moonshot photos have been incorporated into the Planetarium's current presentation "Sky Spectaculars." Others are on display in the Morehead Building.

Ranger 8's photos are important to the U.S. space program because of their detail and accuracy in revealing what the moon's surface is like.

"Until the photographs from Ranger 8 last August and the current shot, we were not able to see features smaller than a half mile in diameter," said Donald S. Hall, Planetarium assistant director. "Previously, we would have missed objects as big as the Pentagon Building."

With Saturday's Ranger 8 shots, objects as small as 18 inches in diameter were visible. "We can see features of the lunar landscape as small as an ordinary office desk," Hall said. "Some of the objects shown in the photographs cannot be seen with the world's best telescopes."

According to Planetarium director A. F. Jenzano, some of the most important pictures from the lunar probe included landscape features known as rills. Rills are less than two miles wide and up to 300 miles long. They are thought to have been formed when faults in the moon's crust, like those in the earth's crust, slipped and separated.

Even the best telescopic photographs have given us little more than outlines of these rills, but the Ranger 8 pictures show them in detail.

"Amateur observers should not confuse these rills in the photographs with rays, the long streaks five to 10 miles wide and up to 1,500 miles long, visible to the naked eye," Jenzano added. "The rays appear to be surface markings whereas the rills appear as crevices which probably resulted from 'moonquakes' caused by stresses in the moon's structure."

The first of the two photographs incorporated into the Planetarium show "Sky Spectaculars" was taken about 470 miles above the moon's surface, or seven minutes before the Ranger crashed. The other was taken at a lunar altitude of 151 miles, about two minutes before impact.

73 Students Arrive For Morehead Award

Interview Sessions

Forty-two North Carolina natives are among the 73 high school and private preparatory school boys being interviewed here this weekend for 1965 Morehead Awards.

The Central Selection Committee and the Board of Trustees of the John Motley Morehead Foundation will interview the boys today through Tuesday, when award winners will be announced.

This is the first year John Motley Morehead will not make the awards. Morehead died earlier this year at his Rye, N. Y. home.

GROSSMAN TO SING

Durham's Triangle Coffee-house will feature folksinger Bob Grossman tomorrow night. The one-night performance will begin at 9 p.m.

Church History

Here are the books to which a scholar turned when he wrote HIS books.

Theology

Definitely Protestant, with some good material on Luther.

The Reformation

Here was a period when theology and history met with a bloody bang. Our scholar got as close to the fireworks as books would allow, and you'll enjoy joining him.

*You can afford to. Prices start at less than $1.00.

Mother! I'd rather do it myself!

"I'd rather ask Ardis Veltman to the Freshman Follies. She's got wit and sparkle. (She also has 3 fraternity pins, and her own Thunderbird.) Most of all, she likes Schlitz. When we're at the Elbow Room with the gang, we order Schlitz together. Then we all sing the school song. (You know the part that goes... 'I love thee ivy covered halls'...)

I always sing: 'I love thee, Ardis Veltman.' She smiles over her glass of Schlitz. I know she hears me."
