Faculty May Report Today On Discriminatory Clauses

By PETE WALES
Associate Editor

The long-awaited faculty report on fraternity discriminatory clauses will be made public today or tomorrow, according to Dr. Herbert Bodman, chairman of the Faculty Committee on Fraternities and Sororities.

"We should have a report out tomorrow or the next day," Bodman said yesterday.

"The University should have a statement to make tomorrow or Saturday."

The announcement capped several months of waiting and speculation on the part of campus Greeks. Ever since Bodman replaced Dr. Clifton H. Kreps as chairman last fall, the main business of the committee has been investigation of the membership clauses of the national organizations.

Council Meeting

Observers speculate that the report will be presented at the Faculty Council meeting this afternoon. An administrative statement of policy may follow.

Little is actually known of what will be in the report. Speculation has it that fraternities and sororities will be given a deadline of one or two years to obtain waivers on clauses from the national office or disband.

Restrictive Clauses

Several fraternities which have restrictive membership clauses have allowed chapters to waive this provision when their college administration forbids the clauses. This has happened at several campuses throughout the North, Midwest and West.

Student Body President Bob Spearman hinted at a time provision in his state of the campus message to Student Legislature last night. He opposed nationally imposed restrictive clauses but said he would work to see that no chapter was treated unfairly if the administration were to act.

Adequate Time

The implication was that if the administration were to pass a ruling, fraternities would be given adequate time to obtain a waiver from the national office.

Spearman, along with outgoing IFC President Ned Martin, has been representing the students on the faculty committee this year.

Students have been preparing to meet an administrative ruling all year.

The IFC and the President's Cabinet have discussed the problem to determine what might be done and to prepare for any official administrative action.

There are four fraternities on campus with specific clauses restricting membership on the basis of race or religion: Kappa Alpha, Sigma Nu, Pi Kappa Phi and Alpha Tau Omega.

About six or seven others have clauses saying that members must be "socially acceptable" to the national.

Through IFC work this fall, all these have received permission from their national offices to obtain a waiver from these clauses, should the University ban them.

According to a DTH survey last year, there are four sororities which refuse to comment on their membership requirements and may have restrictive clauses.

These are: Kappa Delta, Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta and Alpha Delta Pi.

Of these, Kappa Delta is known to have a restrictive clause.

No work has been done by the Panhellenic Council on the problem.

Assistant Dean of Women Darrell Farrington has been in contact with individual sorority officers on this subject all year.

40 New NDEA Fellowships Awarded UNC

Dr. C. Hugh Holman, Kenan professor of English and dean of the Graduate School, announced plans Thursday for an expanded program of graduate studies in the University.

The expansion program is made possible by an increase of 40 in the number of three-year graduate fellowships awarded UNC by the U.S. Office of Education under the National Defense Education Act.

"Substantial Expansion"

Holman, just informed of approval of the new grants, said "This will permit a substantial expansion in both the quality and quantity of our graduate program."

"We have a large pool of highly qualified applicants out of which we can select recipients of these and other graduate scholarships and fellowships."

The 40 new fellowships are in addition to 15 new ones recently awarded UNC under Title IV of the Defense Education Act. Title IV of the act provides funds for the training of college-level teachers.

55 Total

The announcement means that in September a total of 55 new NDEA fellows will be pursuing their graduate studies here. The maximum number for any college or university is 75.

"Comparatively speaking, 55 is a very good percentage," Holman said. "We're very happy about it."

Academic departments approved for fellowships are Anthropology and Sociology, Botany, Chemistry, Comparative Literature, Economics, English, Germanic Languages, History, Philosophy, Physics, Political Science, Romance Languages, Statistics and Zoology.

Wallace Coordinator

The expanded program will be coordinated by Earle Wallace, associate dean of the Graduate School. A special committee of the Graduate School's administrative board will select winners of the 40 fellowships.

The fellowships are worth $2,000 each in the first year, $2,200 in the second and $2,400 in the third. In addition, each carries a $400 allowance for dependent and a $2,500 "cost of education" allowance to the University.

Pub Board Approval Not Given To Pratt

Norwood Pratt, who announced Wednesday that he will seek the editorship of the Daily Tar Heel in the spring election, failed yesterday to receive the approval of the Publications Board because of "a lack of knowledge concerning the actual functioning of the paper."

If the junior from Winston-Salem is to be accepted by the elections board as a candidate, he must present a petition signed by 145 students to the board at least 12 days before the March 23 election.

Pratt opposes DTH managing editor Ernie McCrary for the post.

Hugh Blackwell, chairman of the Publications Board, said that the board was "impressed with Pratt's interest and concern" in the editor's position, "but he seemed to lack knowledge as regards the technical aspect of the Tar Heel," Blackwell said.

Blackwell said Pratt lacked experience either on the Tar Heel staff or any other comparable publication.

"Although he was sincere," Blackwell said, "he did not have a record of the prior experience and ability that would be necessary to get the Tar Heel to press every day."

Pratt said, "Either the Publications Board did not understand a word I said in the course of my interview with them yesterday, or this decision is entirely political."

"According to two former editors of the DTH, Wayne King and Chuck Wrye, I know as much about the operation of the Tar Heel as they did when they were endorsed by the Pub Board," he said.

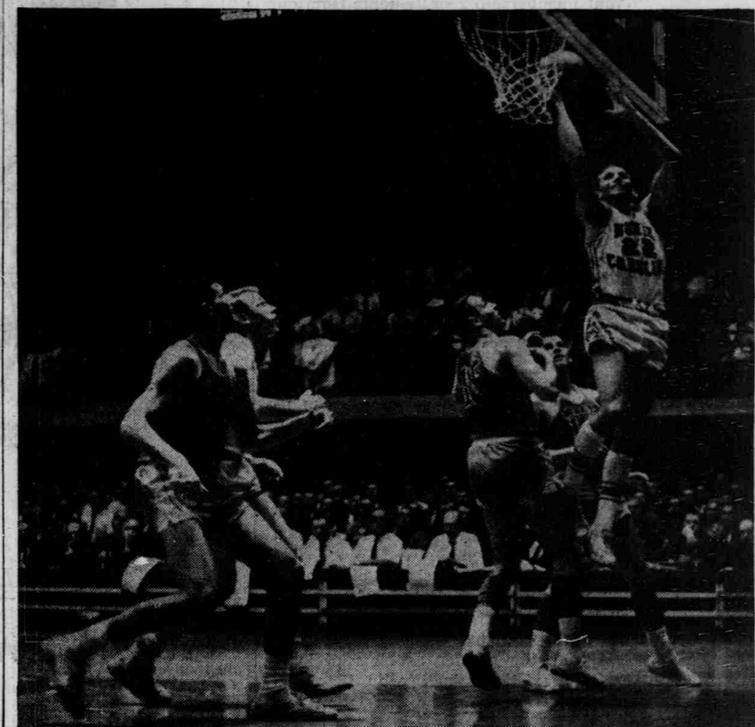

Blackwell said that the Publications Board did not consider political opinions of any candidate when passing on an endorsement. "We're only interested in getting people to run who are competent to handle the position," he said.

Forum Will Air Dorm Questions

The UNC Free Speech Forum will meet in Y-Court, noon today for a discussion on "Carolina Dormitories — Jungles or Communities."

FSF leader James Gardner said representatives from Everett and Maverick House will be present to participate in the discussion. Rick Edwards, YMCA president will be moderator.

On March 12 the forum topic will be "Fraternities and Discriminatory Clauses." Student Body President Bob Spearman will be moderator.

Friday Hits Name Change At Raleigh Public Hearing

RALEIGH (AP) — University President William C. Friday stood fast Thursday against the proposal to change the name of N. C. State, saying it would put a permanent crack in the Consolidated University system.

Friday presented the position of the University trustees at a public hearing on the name change bill held in the auditorium of the state legislative building.

Part of the crowd of more than 300 persons, heavily weighted with N. C. State alumni, was openly hostile to some of Friday's arguments. He was interrupted at least twice by laughter and jeering.

The bill would change the name of North Carolina State of the University of North Carolina at Raleigh to "North Carolina State University at Raleigh."

Speakers in favor of the name change called the present name embarrassing, confusing and meaningless. They also said it deprived the school of any individuality.

Friday, himself an alumnus of N. C. State, said:

"The University derives essential power and strength from faculty members, alumni, students or administrators. But we must remember that the University belongs to all the people of North Carolina . . . the good of all the people of the state must be the basis of decision."

Friday said that for more than 30 years after the Consolidated University was formed in 1931, its three institutions were separately identified. In 1963, he said, the General Assembly spelled out the functions as a monolithic institution and the name of each campus reflected this unity. "The question before us now is whether under this new law a component institution of the University of North Carolina will have a name that identifies it as a separate university," he said.

Same Way

He pointed out that states which have consolidated universities under one president and one board of trustees identify university branches the same way that UNC now does.

Friday closed by saying adoption of the bill would "effect a permanent division within the consolidated university that would, ultimately, disrupt the plan of one university with several campuses."

C. A. Dillon Sr., a Raleigh businessman, began the hearing by speaking with zeal in favor of the name change.

"The present name is completely unsatisfactory, causes great confusion among alumni, students and public at large," he said.

"Some persons want to confuse the issue by charging it would dismantle the Consolidated University. This is wrong . . . it is dripping with dishonesty," he added.

Carl Harris, a Durham textile manufacturer, said, "It seems so unreasonable and unnecessary that N. C. State should be asked to give up its complete identity without some compelling reasons."

Dr. Joe Pou of Greenville, a Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. officer said the present name "is a national joke."

Open House

UNC's writer-in-residence Reynolds Price will be guest at an open house from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Monday at the Kappa Gamma house.

The event will be sponsored by the YM-YWCA Writer-In-Residence Committee.

Price, a creative writing teacher, is a former Rhodes Scholar and Duke graduate.

"A Long and Happy Life," his first book won for him the William Faulkner Award for outstanding first novel. The book will be adapted for the screen.

He has also written "Names and Faces of Heroes," a collection of short stories, and will release another, "Clear Day," in June.

The Heels scored the last four points of the first half to open their half time lead to five. Ian Morrison's long jumpers kept McKinney's zone ineffective during the first half. Morrison had 10 points at halftime—none afterwards.

The Deacons scored the first five points of the second half to tie the contest at 43-43. But Cunningham's jumper gave the Tar Heels their last lead at 45-43.

Center Ronny Watts was a behemoth under the boards for the Deacons corraling 20 rebounds to go with his 18 points.

Lewis was high for UNC with 27 points. Totals: Wake 92—Leonard, 25; Anderson, 19; Watts, 18; Aktengarten, 12; Pool, 10; Boshart, 5; Herring, 2; Whitaker, 1. UNC 76—Lewis, 27; Cunningham, 13; Yokley, 10; Morrison, 10; Respes, 8; Art Hassell, 4; Gauntlett, 2; Bennett 2.

Hollywood Is Coming To The Hill

Hollywood will come to Chapel Hill May 5.

The world premiere of "Joy In The Morning," a screenplay adapted from Betty Smith's best-selling novel, will be presented that day at the Carolina Theater, it was announced yesterday by E. Carrington Smith, manager.

Richard Chamberlain, star of "Dr. Kildare" and the lead actor, will be in town for the premiere.

"We are trying to get the other actors to be here as well," said Smith. "Yvette Mieux, who plays the top role, has told us there is a good chance she will be able to make it."

Sidney Blackmer, UNC graduate who also appears in the film, has indicated he also will probably be here.

Smith said that other dignitaries will be invited for the premiere, including former Gov. Luther Hodges and Gov. Dan K. Moore.

"There will be various promotions along with the premiere, and we will have further details on these within a few weeks," Smith added.

The novel concerns the wife of a student in a university. Mrs. Smith, who first gained national attention with "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," sold the film rights to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who is producing the film.

A representative of the company was in town yesterday, and indicated that "all the stops will be pulled out to make the premiere a success."

A Tough Job, But She Loves It

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Staff Writer

Madeline Gray, Secretary of the Student Body, is a tiny girl (4 feet, 11 inches) who (1) has some definite opinions about her job and (2) runs a big office with clockwork efficiency.

"I have always felt that the office of student body secretary should be an appointed one," Miss Gray said during a rare off moment.

"This and the office of treasurer are not political positions, and the president should be allowed to appoint experienced, dependable persons to get the job done."

As secretary, she heads a seven-woman staff which works from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. five days a week sorting out the paper work and performing the clerical chores for 32 Student Government executive committees.

"There is no glory in our job," she said. "Most of us find it fun to work here, and the biggest thing we look for are compliments on our work."

Compliments will have to do as far as Miss Gray is concerned. Her position is unpaid, and the other girls work for the skimpy wage of 40 cents an hour. This is the first year the staff has received any salary at all.

'Be Patient'

"If you learn anything at this job, it's how to be patient," she said. "Patience and a sense of humor are real necessities."

"Most people think this office is very confused, but we don't. The only way you can understand this office is to work in it."

She laughed. "I get everything done that needs doing by yelling at people." The gleam in her green eyes and the pert wrinkle of her nose as she said it showed that yelling was rarely necessary.

"We're sort of cramped around here, but we have no great problems," she continued.

Many Duties

"Judy Niedringhaus takes care of a lot of Mike Chanin's and Bob Spearman's grind work," she explained. "She also coordinates communications and paper work between the four branches of Student Government committees."

"Two of our girls, Linda Simpson and Sylvia Wall, type reports, records and addresses and run errands for us."

"Sherry O'Donnell is Bob's corresponding secretary for State Student Legislature and Elizabeth Hazen has charge of all our filing."

"The press secretary is Miram Dorsey, who also writes material for our newsletter, the 'Student Government Report.'

"Bob's personal secretary, Patricia Williams, takes dictation in shorthand and types," she said. "She is the only staff member on full salary."

Miss Gray had to take over the job as student body secretary last year before she was officially elected because of the resignation of former secretary Bonnie Hoyle.

"Last year there were 20 girls on the staff, and each day of the week there were four different girls on the job. This year there is more continuity because of regular hours and assignments."

But she had words of praise for at least one person besides "her girls."

"Mike Chanin (presidential assistant) has been wonderful," she said. Chanin, who is also unsalaried, contributes to inter-office efficiency in Miss Gray's estimation, having cultivated his skills in the Capitol Hill office of a Georgia congressman.

"Sometimes it becomes difficult to listen to people saying, 'Madeline, do this,' and 'Madeline, do that,'" she said, "but it's an exciting and challenging place to work. I love it."

The women work from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. five days a week performing clerical chores for the 32 Student Government executive committees.
