

At UNC: Week's News In Review

Last week was one of beginnings and endings.

It was the beginning for UNC-C President Bonnie Cone and her institution and students and for 67 new Morehead scholars.

It was the beginning for Heels' ACC Tournament effort and the beginning of the end for fraternities and sororities with discriminatory clauses in their constitutions.

NEW BRANCH

It happened Tuesday in the House and the legislators who had argued and heard financial reports for a week and beaten back amendments to change the bill finally passed it and they created the fourth branch of the Consolidated University and they called it the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and they made a woman happy. She's Bonnie Cone.

And this was the reward for her struggle to make the little Mecklenburg school a part of the University and she started the fight in 1958 when she became president of the institution and it was a junior college then. But she had a goal.

And the House passed the bill that was approved the week before by the Senate and rejected an amendment to delay the effective date of the measure until the school was accredited and decided to make it immediate and they did.

And that same day students at the new branch of the University got together and rang an old farm bell they keep on campus and celebrated and didn't waste any time painting a new sign for the school and putting it up. "UNC-C," it reads.

CLAUSES

Student leaders expressed approval of the Faculty Council's resolution calling for an end to discriminatory clauses in fraternity and sorority constitutions.

IFC President Ned Martin said he was pleased and that "each fraternity should be free to choose any boy in the school."

Student Body President Bob Spearman said he was "delighted."

Panhellenic President Jean Dillin called it a "necessary step for the University."

The Faculty Council passed the resolution Friday and set Sept. 1, 1966 as the compliance date for Greek organizations.

Chapters not complying by that date will be asked to disband.

Martin said all fraternities with such clauses have investigated the possibility of obtaining a waiver from their national.

Some national fraternities have allowed local chapters to waive national membership clauses when the administration disallowed them.

BAN BLASTED

"The single most important problem facing our academic community," is the way Student Body President Bob Spearman branded the Speaker Ban Law Thursday night before Student Legislature.

In his State of the Campus address, Spearman said: "The alleged aim of the Speaker Ban is to protect students from communist subversion. Its actual effect is to cripple the exchange of ideas in a great university."

He called for "rational, determined and effective action" against the law, rather than emotional reaction.

CAMPUS RADIO

Speaker Don Carson told the Student Legislature Thursday that he would not introduce any more legislation for the campus radio proposal "because of the political situation."

He said: "There has been no rational discussion on this bill and I refuse to see this project destroyed because of partisan politics."

Communications Committee Co-Chairman Armistead Maupin said a poll has been conducted among 400 students and that 64 per cent are in favor of the proposal while 20 per cent are against it and 16 per cent undecided.

ELECTIONS

Campus political activity picked up steam last week as candidates started a long series of dorm meetings.

The Student Party nominated Eric Van Loon as candidate for student body treasurer. Van Loon will take the place of Hugh Blackwell on the SP ticket.

Blackwell, who declined the nomination last Sunday, was nominated to a Student Legislature seat from Men's District

II.

Junior Rick Kramer announced Tuesday that he will seek re-election as president of Carolina Athletic Association. Kramer, CAA president for the past year, was recently defeated for the University Party nomination to that post.

Norwood Pratt, who announced last week that he will seek the Daily Tar Heel editorship, failed Thursday to get the approval of the Publications Board.

Board chairman Hugh Blackwell said Pratt "did not have a record of the prior experience and ability that would be necessary to get the Tar Heel to press every day."

Pratt commented: "Either the Publications Board did not understand a word I said in the course of my interview with them or this decision is entirely political."

To get his name on the ballot, Pratt must present a petition with 145 signatures to the board 12 days before the March 23 election date.

He will oppose DTH managing editor Ernie McCrary.

MARTIN ELECTED

Frank Martin was elected Interfraternity Council president Monday. Tom White was elected vice-president.

Martin defeated Neil Thomas in a run-off election.

Bernard Dodson was elected secretary and Bom Combs won the post of treasurer.

67 AWARDS

A record number of 67 boys was presented Morehead Awards here Tuesday.

The John Motley Morehead Foundation trustees voted this year to increase the value of the awards by $125 per year effective Sept. 1. They will now be worth $5,800 each to in-state residents for four years of study and $7,500 each for out-of-state students.

GAG HIT

The Di-Phi Senate voted unanimously Tuesday night to condemn the Speaker Ban Law. It was the second similar action in the past two years.

A resolution calling for a test case for the law, to be sponsored by the senate, was introduced and will be voted on at Tuesday's meeting.

NAME CHANGE

University President William C. Friday stood fast against the proposed N. C. State name change Thursday at a public hearing in Raleigh.

"The University derives essential power and strength from faculty members, alumni, students and administrators. But we must remember that the University belongs to all the people of North Carolina . . . the good of all the people of the state must be the basis of decision," he said.

Friday, representing the position of the University trustees, spoke to about 300 people, many of them N. C. State alumni. He was interrupted at least twice by laughter and jeering from the hostile crowd.

SPORTS

All the Tar Heel hopes ended Thursday in Raleigh.

A hot second half by the Wake Forest Demon Deacons lifted them over the Heels for a 92-76 win in first-round play at the ACC Tournament.
