Mismatch Sees Blues Romp, 44-6

Esquire Writers On Panel

Five outstanding American writers will discuss "The Novelist as Journalist" as the Fine Arts Festival closes with the "Esquire Literary Symposium" at 4 and 8 p.m. tomorrow in Memorial Hall.

The panel, with Arnold Gingrich, Bruce Jay Friedman, Norman Podhoretz, Isaac Singer, Jack C. Richardson and Louis D. Rubin, will explore the "increasingly wavy line of demarcation between fact and fiction in contemporary literature."

Gingrich, who will moderate the afternoon panel discussion, founded Esquire magazine in 1933 and built its circulation to the current figure of over 900,000.

A native of Grand Rapids, Mich., Gingrich graduated from the University of Michigan in 1925 and started as an advertising copy writer.

Friedman, author of the best-selling novel, "A Mother's Kisses," is a graduate of the University of Missouri.

He has written, in addition to his best seller, "Stern," and "From the City of Glass," which is a collection of short stories.

Podhoretz, editor of "Commentary" magazine is unique among American literary critics for his writings on political speeches, television drama, newspaper and magazine literature and such peculiar problems of our time as genocide and integration.

Singer received the best foreign novel award early this year for his "The Magician of Lublin."

The Polish-born author, who writes in Yiddish, came to the United States in 1935 to work for the "Jewish Daily Forward."

DTH Picks

New Clothes

When spring comes could the Daily Tar Heel fashion edition be far behind? No.

Staff members have been stopping in local stores for the past week gathering information for the annual fashion edition which will be included as a supplement to Tuesday's DTH.

Read it if you want to be in the know for spring fashions or if you only want to look at a host of beautiful models.

"NUDE DESCENDING STAIRS?" Maybe . . . all depends what you see in the painting by Robert Collier which will be featured in the Westminster Art Show, today 3 to 7:30 in the University Presbyterian Church. Chairman Jean Anderson pauses beside the painting. See story, page 6. Photo by Jock Lauterer

Fight For Ban's Repeal 'Unwise'

Gov. Dan Moore told the N.C. Editorial Writers' Conference here Friday that he feels it is unwise for the University to advocate repeal of the Speaker Ban Law.

"I have . . . stated that it could possibly be amended to put this authority back in the hands of the trustees and the University administration," he said.

"I do believe it is unwise on the part of the University to advocate repeal.

"I believe if you put that thing up to a popular vote today . . . it would be overwhelmingly the law. The reason: the question is whether you believe in Communism or don't — that's not the case, but that's the way people see it."

Moore's speech dealt with the "Great and Good Community," which he has labeled his program for the State.

After his speech, one question concerning capital improvements for higher education came from former DTH editor Johnthan Yardley, now with the Greensboro Daily News.

Yardley asked if the governor foresaw the possibility of a bond issue for this purpose.

Moore explained that North Carolina is presently in receipt of a $100 million public school bond and more than $200 million in local bonds and will vote on a $300 million road bond issue.

"I feel as a matter of caution, we should not call for a capital improvements bond issue in the next two years," he said.

Beaver, Karrs Both Shine With Strong Passing Game

By PETE GAMMONS
Asst. Sports Editor

The Blues combined a tough ground defense with a devastating air attack to completely overwhelm the Whites 44 - 6 in an intra - squad scrimmage before a sparse crowd of about 1,000 yesterday in Kenan Stadium.

Quarterback Jeff Beaver led the Blues, completing 12 of 19 passes for 148 yards and two touchdowns, while freshman Tim Karrs threw two more scoring tosses in the fourth quarter after switching teams.

Max Chapman's 42 - yard field goal sent the Blues ahead early in the first period, and from there they were never headed. Chapman made it 9-0 when he rammed over from the one - yard line with 3:07 left in the quarter, and Beaver hit Bud Phillips down the sideline with a 46 - yard pass with 53 seconds left to make it 15 - 0. Chapman's placement upped the margin to 16-0.

With 9:51 remaining in the second quarter Karrs hit Bobby Knott on a 5 - yard pass to cut the lead to 16 - 6, but Sam Ray's extra point attempt was blocked.

The only scoring in the third period was Chapman's 40 - yard field goal with 4:28 remaining.

A four - yard pass up the middle by Beaver to tight end Bob Powell ran the score to 25-6 with 12:18 left in the fourth period, so Jim Hickey sent his starting backfield of Beaver, Chapman, Barden and Phillips to the bench.

Their replacements, Karrs at quarterback, Tom Lampman at fullback, Dave Riggs at halfback and flanker Charlie Carr proceeded to put three more scores on the board.

After Blue defensive back Gene Link recovered a fumble on the White 21 and a pass interference call moved the ball on the 4, Lampman crashed over to build the lead to 31-6.

Karrs kept firing and hit end George Zadjeka on a 52 - yard bomb and Powell on a seven-yarder to make it 43 - 6, and Rays, another refugee from the Whites, finished the scoring at 44 - 6 with a placement.

The game was more or less divided up along the lines of a first and second team, with the Blues predominantly potential starters.

Starting for the Whites in the backfield along with Karrs were Charlie Ephland at halfback, Leon Fonvielle at full and Howard Hackney at wingback.

Chapman was the game's top ground - gainer with 60 yards in 20 carries, while Lampman
