Students Get New Outlet For Classroom Complaints

By JOHN JENNICH
DTH Staff Writer

Students who have gripes about the way their classes are being run, but have been afraid to say anything for fear of angering the man who hands out the grades are going to get their big chance this month.

Over 300 courses and the professors who teach them will soon go before the critical eye of their students when a program culminating years of preparation is finally put into effect by the Student Government Academic Affairs Committee.

This evaluation, which has nothing to do with the Course Evaluation Booklet, consists of a 40-item questionnaire administered by each participating faculty member to his students. All answers are given anonymously.

Courses are evaluated at the request of the professor, and only he will ever see the results. Classroom data, compiled by an IBM computer, will not be accessible to any student, administrative, or faculty groups.

The purpose of the program is to provide constructive feedback to the instructor involved. Two UNC students are mainly responsible for this program. Franklin Adkinson, senior psychology major from Forest City, has been working on the course evaluation program since his freshman year. He is now in charge of the computer programming and other details of the evaluation.

John Froneberger, senior chemistry and political science major from Lincolnton, is acting chairman of the academic affairs committee and has worked on this program for a year and a half. Both men will enter medical school next fall. Adkinson at Johns Hopkins and Froneberger at UNC.

Letters and application cards were sent to 700 faculty members during the week of April 5-10. Adkinson said "any instructor teaching a university sponsored course in Chapel Hill, in any department, graduate or undergraduate, may request and obtain this service."

He said their "wildest dream" was evaluation of 100-150 courses this spring, but response has been so enthusiastic that the committee now expects over 300. This would involve as many as 7,500 to 10,000 questionnaires.

Laurel, Hardy Films Tonight

Two films starring the famous comedy team of Stanley Laurel and Oliver Hardy will be shown tonight at 8 in Carroll Hall. The program will be a memorial tribute to Laurel who died recently.

The movies to be shown are "The Music Box," and "Swiss Miss."

"Music Box" concerns Laurel and Hardy's futile and hilarious efforts to deliver an old, upright piano to a house which can be approached only by climbing a very high terraced rise of steps.

In "Swiss Miss," Laurel and Hardy are lugging a piano across a swaying rope bridge a thousand feet over a Swiss gorge. They are halfway across when they meet a gorilla coming from the other side.

When this study was begun, the academic affairs committee consulted 15 to 20 other universities with such programs. In the spring of 1964 a preliminary questionnaire was administered to ten classes comprising 500 students. Revision of the questionnaire was done with the help of the UNC psychology department.

Last fall, Froneberger and half the committee evaluated this pilot project. From their experience, it was decided that data processing was essential to handle the great bulk of classroom data.

The Durham Telephone Co., has donated to the committee the use of its equipment. After students have marked the IBM cards with special electrographic pencils, this equipment punches holes in the cards, which are then processed at UNC's computation center. After analysis, the information for a particular course is given to the instructor.

Adkinson said that, "For the first time, a significant portion of the student body will be involved in course evaluation to provide informative feedback."

The administration of the test is done during class and takes 10 to 15 minutes. Adkinson stressed that all data will remain anonymous.

Very few of the professors who have declined this course evaluation have done so on the grounds of opposition to the study. Some are retiring in June, are currently on leave, are teaching extension courses not in Chapel Hill, or feel that their classes are so small they already have adequate feedback.

A BRIEF SUMMARY OF CAMPUS NEWS

Senior Women Honored

Five outstanding senior dormitory women were honored Sunday in the Faculty Lounge of the Morehead Building.

Awards, which are presented annually to five seniors by the Carolina Women's Council in recognition of service to the dormitory and to the university, were given to Kay Elizabeth Phillips, New Bern; Nancy Gayle Raulerson, Miami; Judy Stacy Scales, Martinsville, Va.; Sara Anne Trott, Kannapolis; and Helen June Troy, Liberty.

Miss Raulerson was honored as the one most outstanding senior dormitory woman of 1965.

YDC To Elect Officers

Members of the UNC Young Democrats Club will elect officers at their regular meeting tonight at 7 in Gerrard.

All members are asked to sit on the main floor in the auditorium. Visitors, who will be requested to sit in the balcony, will not be permitted to vote.

A new president, graduate and under-graduate vice presidents, secretary, treasurer and executive council will be chosen.

Civil War Requiem

The Phi Alpha Theta history honorary fraternity is sponsoring a "Requiem for the Civil War" in Dey Hall Faculty Lounge today at 4:30 p.m.

It will consist of a panel discussion of the historical literature that has resulted from the current Civil War Centennial and an interpretation of its trends and conclusions.

The public is invited. Refreshments will be served.

SPE Holds Charity Raffle

Tickets are on sale in dormitories, fraternities and sororities for 25 cents for the Sigma Phi Epsilon Charity Raffle.

The drawing will be held Saturday night of Jubilee for prizes including date tickets for all of next year's home football games, $10 gift certificates from Kemp's, Town and Campus, Campus Laundry and Dry Cleaners, and $10 worth of movie tickets from Varsity Theater, a steak dinner for two at the Pines Restaurant, a $12 bowling kit from the Sport Shop and 12 free golf balls.

McNamara Accuses Viet Nam Of 'Flagrant' Aggression

From DTH Wire Reports

Heavy communist casualties in South Viet Nam have forced North Viet Nam to start sending regular army units into battle there, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said yesterday.

McNamara reported in a news conference this new turn in what he called "progressively more flagrant and unconstrained" aggression by North Viet Nam.

Evidence gathered in the last month, McNamara said, has confirmed the presence in a central highlands province of a battalion of the regular North Vietnamese Army.

McNamara said, "There is no military requirement for the use of nuclear weapons in the current situation."

He added that no useful purpose can be served by "speculation on remote contingencies" in which such weapons might be brought into play.

This did not alter a disclosure over the weekend that the U.S. government is retaining the option to use nuclear weapons in North Viet Nam in the proper circumstances — perhaps, for example, if Communist China should enter the war on a mass scale.

McNamara discussed the situation against a background of nearly three months of almost daily U. S. and South Vietnamese air bombing of highways, railroads, bridges and other targets on the North Vietnamese routes used to infiltrate men and arms into South Viet Nam.

"The carefully controlled air strikes will continue as necessary to impede the infiltration and to persuade the North Vietnamese leadership that their aggression against the south must stop," McNamara said.

SOVIET STATEMENT

The Soviet Union yesterday launched a general attack on U. S. foreign policy, including U. S. operations in Viet Nam, and accused the United States of using "nuclear blackmail" against countries of Southeast Asia.

The attack was made before the 114-nation U. N. Disarmament Commission by Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko, who charged the United States was trying to hinder disarmament talks while leading the world in a "mad arms race."

U. S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson said he would reply. Fedorenko repeated Soviet charges that the United States had used toxic gases in Viet Nam and asserted this was "a crime against mankind, a violation of the norms of international law, and the trampling of the elementary procedures of morality."

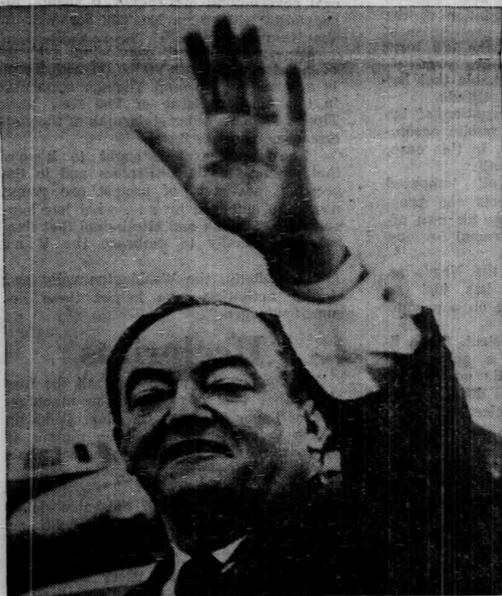

He declared further that the United States had nuclear submarines in the Southeast Asia area, as well as missiles with nuclear warheads. He suggested that the United States is now regarding "another Asian country" as an objective of the same kind of weapons used against Nagasaki and Hiroshima during World War II.

Fedorenko demanded the dismantling of all foreign military bases and the withdrawal of military forces from foreign soil. In this connection, he said the United States had more than a million men stationed on foreign territory.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., denounced Secretary of State Dean Rusk and McNamara in the Senate today and said both "should have been removed months ago."

Morse, attacking U. S. policy in South Viet Nam as "immoral and Godless," accused spokesmen for the Johnson administration of employing "smear tactics" against him and other critics of the policy.

Taking the floor on a point of personal privilege, Morse took issue with what he said was McNamara's assertion he did not believe Russia and Red China would enter the war.

HHH: 'No Room For Hate'

By ERNEST ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

"America, not only for itself, but for the cause of mankind, must be united.

"We must never permit vengeful radicals to dominate the American scene; there is no room in America for hate."

These were the words of Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey Sunday as he spoke at Bennett Place just outside Durham at ceremonies commemorating the last major surrender of the Civil War.

Possibly in Humphrey's audience there were some who only the previous afternoon had walked through downtown Durham in the robes of the Ku Klux Klan.

Humphrey said, "We must never permit the spirit of radicalism to poison the minds and the hearts of the American people. This is the real lesson we can learn from the Bennett Place."

"I believe the American people have learned this lesson. And now our great nation — under the leadership of President Johnson — is beginning a new era of unity.

The Vice - President, often digressing greatly from his prepared text, was interrupted by applause more than a dozen times. His strongest and most lengthy acclamation came from the statement that there is no room in this country for hate and vengeance; he repeated this statement several times in his speech.

Speaking about the ceremonies at Bennett Place, Humphrey said that he had often been disturbed by the reenactment of historic battles . . . "For too often they tend to make war seem romantic, to glorify the bloodshed.

"War is not romantic. War is ugly, cruel and senseless . . . Sherman was right, 'War is hell.'"

"We are not gathered today to commemorate a war — nor are we gathered to commemorate the end of a war.

"We are here to pay tribute to the valiant men of the North and South who met 100 years ago here at Bennett Place to seek not victory, not vengeance, but to seek peace."

Humphrey said that only an undivided America will be able to carry the burden of freedom in the world. He termed this a

"burden we must carry if we are to preserve democracy in the future."

The Vice - President commended North Carolina leaders, saying, "North Carolina is not known as a progressive state by accident. I believe the South will help lead the way during this new era of national unity.

"I believe the people of the South will help us lead the way as we fight to overcome the ancient enemies of man — ignorance, disease, poverty, and injustice."

Humphrey also read excerpts from President Johnson's proclamation on the Bennett Place commemoration and the joint resolution of Congress on the centennial observance.

Humphrey was introduced by Gov. Dan K. Moore who also made some brief remarks about the Bennett Place surrender.

About 4,000 persons braved somewhat chilly and slightly windy weather to attend the ceremonies commemorating the surrender of Confederate Gen. Joseph E. Johnston to Union Gen. William T. Sherman at the farm home of James Bennett on April 26, 1865.

Other speakers included R. O. Everett Sr., a Durham attorney who has served as chairman of the Bennett Place Memorial Commission for a number of years. He expressed the hope that the meeting Sunday would have the same effect on the next century as the earlier one did on the past century.

His son, R. O. Everett Jr., served as chairman for the ceremonies.

Other participants in the Bennett Place rites included 6th District Rep. Horace R. Kornegay and Sen. B. Everett Jordan.

Before the ceremonies, Vice-President and Mrs. Humphrey toured the two rebuilt Bennett Place structures.

Also participating in the commemorative events were the band of the 82nd Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, conducted by Ralph Liebchen, and the Cardinals, a singing group from North Carolina College, with Constance Allen conducting.

The ceremonies opened at 3 p.m. with the national anthem and concluded shortly before 5 p.m. with the audibly singing "America."

Humphrey arrived in North Carolina Saturday afternoon.
