Looking Good

The weatherman says enjoy Jubilee. Clear skies will prevail today, except for a chance of afternoon showers. However, they won't loose enough rain to wash out the festivities.

Symposium

Interviews for Carolina Symposium committee posts will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday in the Symposium office in Y Building. Applicants may sign up there or at GM. Applications will be accepted through Monday.

Retiring AFROTC Chief Honored At Military Fete

Retiring Professor of Aerospace Studies, Lt. Col. Gordon D. Kage, was honored by the entire Air Force and Naval ROTC units in a Pass in Review Ceremony held on Fetzer Field yesterday afternoon. A Pass in Review is long established tradition in the military.

Consolidated University President, William C. Friday, delivered the main address in which he cited Kage's fine work with the Air Force ROTC, the University and the community. He presented The Air Force Commendation Medal issued by the Air Force in recognition of Kage's service to the ROTC program since he came to Carolina in 1959.

Kage, retiring after 28 years in the Air Force, graduated from Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, in 1936. He received his reserve commission through the ROTC program the same year.

Since being called to active duty in 1942, he served in various command and staff positions in Illinois, Ohio, California, Guam and Japan.

He also served in the Secretary of Air Staff's office and the Reserve Forces Policy Board Office in Washington, D. C., before coming here to head the Department of Air Science.

Kage has also received the Tar Heel Colonel Award in recognition of his pronounced interest in the United States Air Force and dedicated work in the AFROTC program.

This Award was founded in 1948 to recognize exceptional contributions to the AFROTC program at UNC.

Kage's post is being filled by Lt. Col. Kenneth W. Slaker who has just recently returned from a tour of duty in Sembach, Germany.

Kage and his wife have decided to remain in Chapel Hill where he will be assistant vice-president of Central Carolina Bank. They have three daughters.

President Dickson Says 'No Police' At Jubilee

Student Body President Paul Dickson yesterday issued this statement on Jubilee.

"A meeting of the administration and student leaders was held yesterday afternoon to discuss Jubilee. It was again announced by Howard Henry, Director of Graham Memorial, that Jubilee would be held in Polk Place and that students and their guests would be admitted at entrance points that would be manned by GM personnel. It was agreed by a majority of the students, my staff not included, that there would be no coolers allowed at Jubilee or any other function of a similar nature. I would like to remind students that there should be no public display of alcoholic beverages and no intoxication.

"It was the consensus of the committee members Tuesday that I instruct the Attorney General to establish a student "police force" to control student discipline. Such action is not only hypocritical but unnecessary. The Honor and Campus Codes are effective because the student body wants them to be. We, the student body, make the system work. We can control the conduct at Jubilee ourselves. There will be no police force.

"I want to urge you to have a good time, but also caution you to abide by the Campus Code. The Attorney General has said that those who do not abide by the codes will be subject to prosecution by the student judiciary."

Jubilee Takes Off Tonight

The Four Preps will kick off Jubilee — UNC's biggest annual all-campus weekend — tonight at 7 p.m. in Polk Place... hopefully.

Student, faculty and administrative opposition to Jubilee policies this year has made it a highly controversial issue. But the fervor has died down now. Jubilee is peacefully settled in Polk Place, and everyone is anxious for it to begin.

Student Body President Paul Dickson issued this statement yesterday regarding Jubilee conduct:

In the event of rain Jubilee will be moved to Memorial Hall and tickets will go on sale at a first come, first serve basis.

Each UNC student and his date will be admitted with an ID card, as well as be allowed two guests. Date tickets may still be picked up at GM Information desk. Figures yesterday indicated that 1277 had been issued and were still going steadily.

The Athletic Department Tuesday announced that there will be no charge for date tickets for baseball games during Jubilee. Students may get free date passes upon presentation of ID cards at the ticket booth at Emerson Stadium before game time.

The Tar Heels will meet Clemson at 3 p.m. today and South Carolina at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

Following the Four Preps tonight a combo party featuring the Jammers Combo will be held in the parking lot between Caldwell and Bynum Hall until 12 midnight.

Tonight's free flick features Janet Leigh and Tony Perkins in the Alfred Hitchcock thriller "Psycho." It will be shown at 6, 8, and 10 p.m. in Carroll Hall. Saturday's festivities begin at 3 p.m. in Polk Place with the Modern Folk Quartet followed by the Platters and a local student dance band, the Sinfonians, at 8 p.m.

"The time was changed from 7 p.m. because of the Platters' crowded schedule," GM Director Howard Henry stated yesterday. He added that the Dynamics combo party in the Bynum - Caldwell parking lot will remain as scheduled until 12 midnight.

Showing at 4, 7, and 10 p.m. will be Saturday's free flick, "Peyton Place," starring Carol Linley.

Late permission until 2 a.m. for coeds will be granted Saturday night only. Friday night the regular one o'clock closing hour will be observed.

Sunday's finale will be "country style," featuring the Johnny Cash show with June Carter, the Statler Brothers Quartet and the Tennessee Three at 2:30 p.m. in Polk Place.

Two Sunday cinemas — "Thunder Over Mexico" and "Blood of a Poet" — will be shown at 7 and 9:30 p.m.

Faculty members and families are invited to Jubilee but no children will be admitted without parental accompaniment.

In MRC Awards

Craige Takes Top Three Residence Hall Trophies

Craige Residence Hall received first place awards in two categories and the leader of the Mavericks was recognized as best dormitory president at the Men's Residence Council's annual awards program in the main lounge of Graham Memorial Wednesday night.

Newly-elected vice-president of the MRC Bob Payton presented the welcoming address to the dorm presidents, MRC representatives and guests.

Secretary Paul Russell presented certificates of recognition to the MRC dormitory representatives, citing their part in the improvement of the council this year.

Russell then introduced outgoing president Jim Fullwood who addressed the group, commenting on the progress that the MRC has made this year, especially in reference to the group's image among the students.

He praised the members of the council for their work in the organization of the new Residence College system, and challenged them to carry on the trend of progress, particularly in improving the MRC court.

Emcee Sonny Pepper, new president, then made the presentation of trophies on behalf of the council.

The award for outstanding MRC Residence hall representative went to Wayne Cannaday, who has served this year as MRC representative for Manly.

The bulk of the large gold cups went to the Maverick delegation.

A. D. Frazier was presented with the trophy for outstanding dormitory president.

Frazier also carried home a first place trophy in the two areas of residence hall judging, having the Most Improved and the Most Outstanding Dormitory overall.

Craige has been in the news throughout this year for work on such outstanding projects as the formation of the Maverick House "night club" and the Maverick "Push to Durham to collect money for the Heart Fund."

Everett received second place honors in the Outstanding Residence Hall judging, and Stacy took the trophy for third.

Ehringhaus also received a trophy for having the Most Outstanding dormitory for the year 1963-64.

The trophy failed to arrive in time for the awards program last year.

After the awards were made, new officers of the MRC were officially sworn in. They are Sonny Pepper, president; Bob Payton, vice-president; Paul Russell, secretary; Howard Croker, treasurer; and Wayne Cannaday, vice-chairman of the court.

and his residence hall took first place in both the Most Outstanding and Most Improved Men's Residence Hall judging.

A. D. FRAZIER HOLDS THREE TROPHIES presented to him at Wednesday night's MRC Awards Program. Frazier, president of Craige, was awarded the Best Dorm President trophy, and his residence hall took first place in both the Most Outstanding and Most Improved Men's Residence Hall judging.

Marines Retaliate Against Snipers In Santo Domingo

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — U. S. Marines went into action against snipers in this revolt-torn capital yesterday less than 24 hours after their landing to safeguard Americans caught in a Dominican civil war.

Snipers opened up on the U. S. embassy from concealed positions and a detachment of marines fired back from the cover of automobiles parked on the tree-shaded lawn. The firing lasted less than 15 minutes and there were no reported casualties.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said the sniper fire was "reasonably heavy" and added that the El Salvador embassy also had been attacked. He gave no further details.

Marine units supervised the withdrawal of Americans to ships off shore.

On the fifth day of fighting in this Caribbean country there were these other developments:

— France ordered two warships from Martinique to the Dominican Republic to evacuate any French citizens who feel their lives are in danger.

— As expected, the Soviet Union, Red China and Communist Cuba assailed the landing of U. S. Marines in such terms as "monstrous," "cynical," "hideous" and "a threadbare pretext."

— At the United Nations, U.S. chief delegate Adlai Stevenson told the Security Council the marine landing was "to protect American citizens still there and escort them to safety from the country."

Some Latin American diplomats predicted privately the reaction to the landing would be bad in their countries and would help Fidel Castro.

— In Washington, the Organization of American States appealed for an end to the fighting. Some congressmen blamed communists for the strife.

There were about 2,000 Americans remaining in the country.

Mrs. UNC

Today and tomorrow are the last days students will be able to vote for their favorite UNC wife in the "Mrs. UNC" contest sponsored by local merchants.

Ten women sponsored by local student wives clubs are competing, and their pictures appear at each polling area.

Anyone interested in voting may do so in any store in Chapel Hill which displays a "Mrs. UNC" announcement.

Voters may cast their ballots in all stores participating, and are only limited to casting one vote at each store per day.

ADA Chapter To Be Formed

Support for the formation of a local chapter of the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) was voiced Wednesday night at a meeting of interested faculty members and students in the Faculty Lounge.

A discussion on what the purpose of a local chapter should be was led by UNC graduate student Phil Pavlik.

"Several people in the Department of Political Science wanted an all-inclusive group or forum for liberal viewpoints and causes," Pavlik said.

He proposed that a local ADA chapter be formed to serve as a "clearing-house" for other liberal groups.

Possible ADA involvement in such local issues as the Speaker Ban Law, Negro housing, civil rights and the peace movement was discussed.

An organizational meeting for a local ADA chapter will be held during the first week of summer school.

Alumnus Featured In Magazine

The Daily Tar Heel and the University were mentioned in the pages of Time Magazine this week in an article in the "Press" section about former DTH reporter Vermont Connecticut Royster.

Royster was recently elected president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

He graduated from Carolina in 1936 and went to New York, and according to Time, he was fired from a news service and "turned down by almost every paper in town."

Finally, he was hired by the Wall Street Journal, says Time, "on a temporary basis, and claims that he is still a temporary fill-in, though now he happens to be editor."

Royster was raised in Raleigh and went to prep school in Bell Buckle, Tenn., and then to UNC where he worked for the Daily Tar Heel. Elected to Phi Beta Kappa, "he was as busy as a bumble-bee," Time reports.

He won a Pulitzer Prize in 1953 for editorial writing and was named editor of the Journal in 1958.

"Royster is a North Carolina boy who was shrewd enough not to shed all his country ways in the big city," Time writes. "He still has a fetching Southern drawl, a dry wit that takes people by surprise, and a name that stands out even in New York."

JAMES BOND, alias Sean Connery and Claudine Auger, his knockout co-star in the new Agent 007 flick "Thunderball," frolic on the Bahama Island location of the film, UNC student Patty Nash was there with them. Connery's "much cuter than in the movies," she said.

On Location With Agent 007

DTH Staff Writer

Tanned, square-shouldered, and not a day over 35, agent 007 deftly reached over the gunwale of the speeding boat for a secret message wrapped in a shirt that was tossed to him from a waiting skiff.

The shirt fell into the water as they sped past the waiting craft.

"Cut! Cut!" the director yelled through a megaphone.

They had to shoot the scene over. James Bond, alias Sean Connery or agent 007, motioned to his bikinied feminine pilot, co-star Claudine Auger, to take the boat back to position.

The scene was Nassau, on location of the filming of the latest James Bond thriller "Thunderball," which will be released by United Artists next December.

UNC journalism major Patty Nash, of Lowell who was in Nassau during spring vacation, said it was a "dream come true" to watch James Bond in action. "He's much cuter in real life than he is in the movies," she says.

Patty went to Nassau with eight other members of the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority. She said that she had arranged to visit the "Thunderball" film set before she had left for her week-long vacation.

Patty wrote to the publicity people for the film a few weeks before vacation and she received word "the day before I left" that she would be welcome on the set. She is an employee for the Raleigh News and Observer.

"When I arrived I contacted Tom Carlie, the publicity director of "Thunderball," and he invited me to a cocktail party at his bikinied feminine pilot, co-star Claudine Auger, to take the boat back to position.

calendar, and I had a whole block to myself!" she said.

When they arrived on the set, Patty said, they were filming a helicopter scene. Rik Van Nutter (who plays Felix Leiter, Bond's CIA connection) and Bond were there. Bond was in the water.

"I was shocked when I saw three shark fins circling around Bond. But, in the nick of time, they were rescued and the three "fins" came out of the water and took off their scuba gear."

The scene in which Bond is supposed to pick up the secret message wrapped in the shirt, they kept having to shoot it over and over, Patty said.

"Two motor boats were moved into position and the director (Terence Young, who also made "Dr. No" and "From Russia, With Love") called out that they were ready to start filming." Bond and his two feminine opposites swam out to the boats.

"I, along with the photographers moved out into the water and aboard the press boat to watch the filming. Many spectators stood along the shore."

Bond's two opposites in the scene were Martine Beswick, who played in the gypsy scene in "From Russia, With Love," and Claudine Auger (the brunette on Bond's lap in the photo), the leading lady, Domino.

"Miss Beswick crawled into the boat farthest from the platform, while Connery and Miss Auger (Domino) swam to the other boat."

"Stand by shooting," "Turn over," "Scene 414, take two," "Action."

"Bond swam to the boat, where Domino was standing. He climbed in and struggled briefly with her, then jumped back, splashing water into the boat."

"Cut."

"The scene began again."

This time Bond almost fell over when Domino started the engine. The next time Bond dropped the shirt into the water.

"In all, they had to shoot the scene five times," Patty said, "but they finally got everything worked out."

Patty spent the whole day with publicity director Tom Carlie. "He kept introducing me to different people in the movie," she said. "I never knew who I was going to meet next."
