Fighting Rages On In DR; Security Council To Meet

From The AP

The Soviet Union, charging aggression and armed interference, tried but failed yesterday to get an urgent Saturday meeting of the U. N. Security Council on U. S. military landings in the Dominican Republic.

The meeting was called for Monday morning, with fighting there continued yesterday. The explanation that some of the 11 ambassadors on the council were away for the weekend and difficult to reach.

Former Dominican President Juan D. Bosch said yesterday there is "absolutely no justification" for the landing of American troops in the Dominican Republic, but called on the rebel forces supporting his return to power not to fire on U. S. soldiers.

"I have lost my homeland," Bosch said in an interview over a San Juan television station. "My country is occupied."

Bosch had just gone before cameras to broadcast an appeal to the Dominican rebel forces that have been trying to reinstate him to the presidency, from which he was ousted in September 1963, not to attack the Americans.

Asked if he had contacted President Johnson to protest the landings, he replied: "What's the use?"

Even as he spoke fighting raged on in the Dominican civil war despite a cease-fire agreement and a third U. S. marine was killed by a rebel sniper's bullet.

Rifle fire was intense in the predawn hours, slackened during the morning, then picked up again.

The marine was killed on the U. S. embassy ground. Two others were killed and 17 were wounded Friday. The U. S. 82nd Airborne, arriving in the city from the east, had eight wounded.

All were engaged by rebel forces trying to bring Bosch back from exile. The rebels are opposed by troops of Brig. Gen.

Dr. Kildare At Premier

Richard Chamberlain, television's Dr. Kildare, will be in Chapel Hill Tuesday and Wednesday for the premiere of M.G.M.'s "Joy In The Morning," at the Carolina Theater.

Chamberlain will arrive at Raleigh - Durham airport Tuesday, at 4 p.m.

The mayors of Raleigh, Durham, and Chapel Hill will present him with a newly designed key to the Research Triangle.

Secretary of State Thad Eure will then officially welcome Chamberlain to North Carolina. Chamberlain will autograph pictures at the airport while the Nomads combo provides music.

DTH Today

Today's Tar Heel is full of pictures and words about the thing that's been on everybody's mind all weekend - Jubilee.

Dave Rothman describes the festival as he saw it in a story on page 3. Pages 1, 3 and 6 feature pictures of the fun by DTH photographer Jock Lautner.

Today's Campus Calendar is on page 7 for those of you who are rested up enough after the weekend to participate in campus activities.

The DTH's gripe section, the Letters To The Editor Page, is located on page 5 today.

Elias Wessin Y Wessin, commander of special units.

In all, about 4,000 U. S. troops moved into this beleaguered Dominican capital. U. S. marine tanks and heavy troop carriers rumbled about the western part of the city, now fully under marine control.

Marines established barricades on the borders of the international zone created with the approval of the Organization of American States to safeguard Americans and other foreign nationals. The zone is three miles long and stretches 15 blocks inland from the waterfront to the U. S. embassy.

A total of 591 evacuees, mainly Americans, arrived in San Juan, Puerto Rico from the Dominican Republic aboard a U. S. Navy ship.

The arrivals included the Belgian ambassador to the Dominican Republic, Charles Pigault de Beaupre, seriously ill with a chronic kidney condition. He was carried off on a stretcher by navy personnel, the first person to disembark.

Cobb Is Searched After Bomb Scare

Chapel Hill police received an anonymous telephone call after midnight Friday saying there was a bomb hidden in Cobb.

Chapel Hill officers and Campus Police went immediately to Cobb to search the building, but found nothing.

Campus Police Chief Arthur Beaumont said that the call was apparently the work of a prankster.

Three In Finals

Mrs. Carolyn Worsham, Mrs. Phyllis Jack and Mrs. Theo Robinson led balloting for the Mrs. UNC contest.

The winner will be announced Wednesday night at the world premiere of "Joy in the Morning." The winner will receive $700 worth of prizes from local merchants.

Mrs. Worsham was sponsored by the Chem - Fems, Mrs. Jack by the Med Wives and Mrs. Robinson by the Law Wives.

housemother Mrs. Eleanor Carter searched "all areas where a male could get under normal conditions" and found nothing suspicious.

Beaumont said the group actually searched the residence hall twice - once as soon as they got the call, and again after 1 a.m. when a combo party held near the dormitory was over.

Chapel Hill Police Chief William Blake said they received the call relayed by a long distance operator. They have the male voice on tape.

Beaumont said the caller "sounded like he was drunk." Police tried to trace the call, but there was not enough time. The call consisted of the single phrase, "There's a bomb in Cobb."

Perpetrating such a call in the state of North Carolina is considered a felony and is punishable by both imprisonment and a fine.

Police have no lead as to the identity of the caller.

Weissman, Farmer

'Rebels' Set Campus Talks

Two "rebels" will speak on campus, one tonight and one tomorrow.

Tonight's "rebel" will be Steve Weissman, a leader in the Free Speech Movement at Berkeley. He will speak at 8 p.m. in Gerrard Hall on "Berkeley: The Crisis of the American University."

James Farmer, who will speak at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Memorial Hall, is a rebel against discrimination in America. He is now national director of Congress of Racial Equality.

Weissman was active at Berkeley last fall as chairman of the Graduate Coordinating Committee of the FSM and a member of the overall Steering Committee.

Weissman is now a member of the Students for Democratic Action, the group which coordinated the march on Washington on Easter weekend. Carolina Forum will sponsor the program.

Farmer's last appearance in Chapel Hill was in January last year. He spoke the same day as the "freedom march" from Durham to Chapel Hill, and demanded that the town completely desegregate by Feb. 1, 1964.

Farmer helped organize CORE in 1942 at the University of Chicago. Since that time he has been involved in civil rights work, speaking and taking part in demonstrations in all parts of the nation.

His address will be sponsored by UNC NAACP.
