Schlesinger believes that a million American troops would be needed to deal with Red China in a land war. Such an actions, he said, would drive the Soviets into an adament position too.

Scalipino said the communists, if they came to power in South Viet Nam, would sup-press their political opposition. He said that communism in South Viet Nam would not necessarily be "Titoist." He said he considers Thailand one of the possible targets of a future communist offensive.

He said, communists at times ignore geographical boundies, instead skipping from one country to the next according to political and economic considerations.

Scalopino said that a U. S. withdrawal from Viet Nam "would mean a more militant policy applied elsewhere" by the Communists.

Dr. Hans Morganthau of the University of Chicago attacked U. S. policy, saying that al-

The winner will be announced at commencement.

The award was established in 1878 by the two daughters of Willie P. Mangum from his estate after his death. At the time, the Dialectic and Philanthropic Literary societies were the only two on campus so the award was made a part of them.

The award is actual gold medal which the winner may keep. The Mangum estate presents a new medal each year.

The competition is open to all seniors. Applications for participation are available at the GM Information Desk and on posters located across campus.

According to Charles Allard, chairman of the Mangum Medal Committee, "all forms of endeavor insist on clear expression of ideas and this Competition for the Mangum medal is concrete proof of this ability. He noted that at the Ivy League schools and prestigious European schools, awards of this kind are held in highest esteem.

> "This award puts a high emphasis on the individual and therefore is to be valued for it reflects directly upon the individual's achievement and not upon chance," he said.

Judging will be based on a five to ten minute prepared speech by each contestant, designed to put across an argument on a topic of the speak-er's choice. Allard noted that "the award will be hard fought and should provide motivation since it is so highly personal."

In the early days of the award all members of the graduating class were required to participate and remain for the duration of the competition.

Frank Porter Graham and A. M. Coates, full professor of law are among past winners of the award.
