Sharp Announces Faculty Changes For Coming Year

Faculty changes for the coming year have been announced by Chancellor Paul F. Sharp, following the approval of President William C. Friday and the Board of Trustees.

Sharp announced 32 promotions within the University, eight resignations, 14 leaves of absences, 20 new faculty members.

The trustees also approved all personnel changes for the UNC Health Center. There were five appointments and 15 promotions.

Faculty promotions follow: William E. Jenner has been named chairman of the Mathematics Department and William F. Little, chairman of the Chemistry Department.

Those promoted to the rank of professor, listed with their department or school, are as follows: Kenneth R. Byerly and Joseph L. Morrison, Journalism; Joffre L. Coe and Richard L. Simpson, Sociology; Milton S. Heath Jr., Institute of Government; William F. Little, Chemistry; Gino L. Rizzo, Romance Languages.

Promoted to the rank of associate professor are Samuel G. Barnes, Charles E. Edge and Siegfried Wenzel, English; Herbert L. Bodman Jr. and Yi Chu Wang, History; Charles V. Briscoe and Earl N. Mitchell, Physics; Ralph A. Gakenheimer, City and Regional Planning; M. David Galinsky, Richard A. King and Marcus B. Waller, Psychology; Max H. Hommersand, Botany; William C. McCrary, Romance Languages; Ben Overstreet Jr., Institute of Government; Richard C. Phillips, Education; Edward F. Renshaw, Business Administration.

Promoted to the rank of assistant professor are Edgar W. Butler and Miles R. Cramer, Sociology; Robert P. Fitzgerald and Howard M. Harper Jr., English; John A. Gorman, Psychology; Richard W. Kinard, Art; Thomas W. Noonan, Physics.

All of the 20 additions to the Academic Affairs Department become effective September 1 except that of Dr. Douglas W. Schoeninger, who will join the Psychology Department August 1 as an assistant professor.

The Zoology Department will add a professor, Dr. Howard Thomas Odum, a UNC graduate; and an assistant professor, Dr. Darrell Wayne Stafford, a post-doctoral fellow at Albert Einstein Medical School.

Edwin M. Collins Jr., a Ph.D. candidate at Ohio University, will join the English Department as an assistant professor. He now teaches at Millsaps College where he has served as Dean of Students and Assistant to the President.

Two assistant professors will join the Sociology Department. They are Marvin Jay Cummins, lecturer at the University of Colorado, and Thomas A. Stein, director of education for the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults in Chicago.

Tadeusz Zdzislaw Gasinski has been named assistant professor in the Department of Linguistics, Slavic and Oriental Languages. He presently teaches at the University of Pittsburgh.

S. Kenneth Howard will become assistant professor and assistant director of the Institute of Government. He now

Freshmen Themes To Be Published

Themes by two UNC freshmen will be published in "Themes for Study," a volume of model themes circulated nationally for study on college campuses. The students are Steve Balcom of San Diego, Calif., and Tony B. Owen of Salisbury. Balcom, a pre-medical student, wrote on "The Case for Advertising." Owen, a chemistry major and graduate of Salisbury's Boyden High School, entitled his work "Saturday Night."

teaches at the University of New Hampshire.

A visiting member of the faculty this past year will become an assistant professor in the Department of Philosophy. He is William Winslow Shea, who was educated at Yale.

Richard Grey Smith, alumnus of the Universities of Alaska and Wisconsin, will join the Geography Department as assistant professor, and Daniel Andrew Textoris, a consultant for the Illinois Coal Co., will join the Geology Department as assistant professor.

Robert James Troyer, faculty member at Indiana University, has been named assistant professor in the Department of Mathematics.

Three lecturers have been appointed for the School of Business Administration for three-year periods each. They are Robert Wesley Phillips, William Robert Sherrard and James Andrew Wilde. All three are candidates for the Ph.D. degree.

The Law School has an addition of one associate professor and four assistant professors. The associate professor, Walter D. Navin Jr., is a

Interviews For Summer SG Today

Interviews for 27 positions on the Summer School Student Government will be held today from 2 to 6 p.m. and Thursday from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Student Government Offices, second floor GM.

Applications for positions may be picked up then in the Student Government offices. Student Body President Paul Dickson noted that they preferred persons planning to come to both sessions of summer school but emphasized "this is not necessary."

"Prior experience is welcomed but certainly not mandatory," he added. Interviews will be held for assistant attorney general of the Men's Honor Council and for assistant attorney general of the Women's Council and for their staff. These two people will act jointly to direct action of the attorney general's staff.

Other positions available include nine on the Men's Council and nine on the Women's Council and seven on the Student Government Board.

The Board is the legislative controlling body which approves action and transfers funds of the Student Government during summer school. Dickson noted that any regular member of the men's and women's councils who plans to be in summer school will be automatically appointed. Other vacancies will be filled Thursday night by the Student Legislature.

He pointed out that time involved for the Attorney General positions depends on the number of cases that arise and that the Honor Council requires about one evening a week.

country when he saw the oncoming Castro dictatorship. "At first I was really for Fidel Castro, but then I saw what him and his brother, Raul, were doing, and I got out."

Casuso said he witnessed the execution of 40 Batista followers after the revolution. None of them had been given a trial. "Raul just lined them up and took a machine gun and member of the faculty at Washburn University, Topeka, Kansas.

Charles E. Dameron III, will serve as assistant professor and assistant dean of the law school. The other three assistants are Michael P. Katz, Martin B. Louis and Philip C. Thorpe.

The resignations follow:

Prof. Robert White Linker of the Romance Languages Department is resigning in October to accept a position at the University of Georgia. Professor Ruth Gilpin Wells, School of Social Work, will resign next February in order to pursue professionally.

Psychology Professor Dorothy Adkins Wood will leave in August to accept a position at the University of Hawaii. Vincente Cantarino of the Romance Languages Department will go to the University of Indiana in August.

Also leaving in August are Lewis Levine of the Department of Linguistics, Slavic and Oriental Languages; Donald K. Springen of the English Department; and Harry Jennings Crockett Jr. of the Sociology Department.

Levine is going to New York University, Springen to Brooklyn College, and Crockett to the University of Nebraska.

Donald Joseph Reeb of the City and Regional Planning Department will leave in July to accept a position at New York State University in Albany.

Faculty members granted leaves of absence and their schools or departments are as follows:

Herbert R. Baer, Law; Charles E. Bowerman, Sociology; Edward A. Cameron, Mathematics; Frank Wysor Klingsberg, History; Arnold S. Nash, Religion; Robert A. Rupe, Political Science; Alec T. Stewart, Physics; Henry Charles Boren, History; Thomas Harland Jerdee, Business Administration; Richard W. Liebman, Anthropology; Howard Cook, Mathematics; Joseph A. Cima, Mathematics; Mark Reed, English; and Gordon N. Cleveland, Political Science.

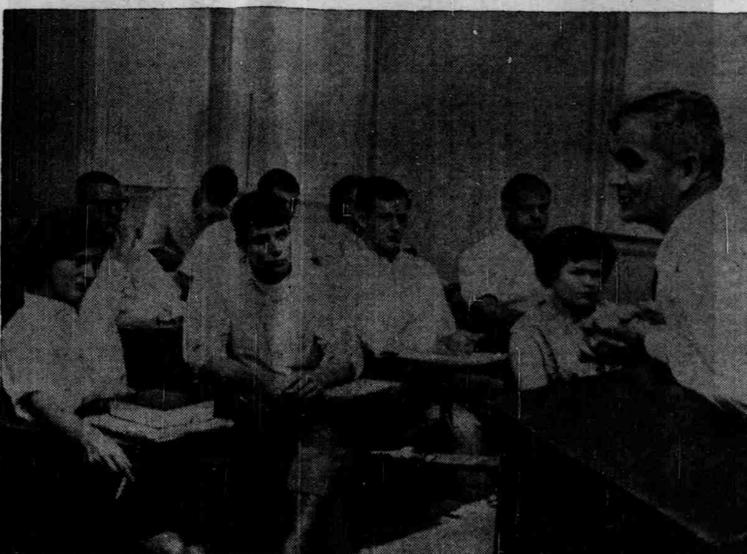

Three at the UNC Health Center, including the administrator of the Division of Health Affairs, were granted leaves of absence, four resignations — including a department chairman — were accepted and one leave of absence was extended.

VISTA Recruiters Move Into Final Day On Campus

Today is the last day VISTA will be on campus recruiting in Y-Court and Lenoir Hall. "The response has been terrific," spokesmen said yesterday, "but we've been besieged with people who are amazed at the 'washout rate.'"

VISTA, Volunteers for Service in America, is the working force of the "domestic Peace Corps" which was created under the 1964 Economic Opportunity Act.

Due to a misinterpretation in an interview Monday, it was erroneously reported that there has been only one VISTA acceptance in North Carolina. There have been well over 200 applications in the state but, spokesmen said, only one VISTA volunteer is out in the field. Many from North Carolina are now undergoing training.

Philip W. Conn, field representative for VISTA, said yesterday that spokesmen have been visiting about 25 classes a day to speak for VISTA. "We have spoken to over 60 classes so far," he said, "and we expect to see about 10 or 15 classes today."

Leo Kramer, Associate Director of the Office of Volunteers for VISTA, took time off to come to UNC this week to speak to classes.

Kramer, 39, is an author, scholar, trade unionist and internationalist. He has been associated with four AFL-CIO unions and has been a member of the State Department. VISTA volunteers have come mostly from young people and many are college graduates; the bulk of VISTA is drawn from retired people who can offer skills and technical knowledge to depressed areas. The youngest volunteer, an

Senior Wins Wolfe Award

A UNC senior from Wilmington, N. C., received the Thomas Wolfe Memorial Award Monday night for his short story about a boy-girl relationship and the mutual help they receive from each other. As winner of the Pi Kappa Phi annual creative writing competition, Raphael Mac Ira Jones was presented an inscribed silver plaque and a check for $100.

Jones, an English - Psychology major, said that "Absolute Control" is the first of his writings to receive amateur recognition.

The presentation took place at a reception for the contestants in Peabody Hall. Approximately fifty people, including judges Betty Smith, Bill Hardy and Reynolds Price, were on hand for the occasion.

The award was to have been made several weeks ago, but according to a Pi Kappa Phi spokesman, the high quality of the writing submitted demanded an extended period of time for the judges to make their decision.

18-year-old girl from Irvington, N. J., is now assigned to Operation Independence in Las Vegas, Nevada.

"Many people are surprised to find that poverty exists in places like this," spokesmen said.

The oldest volunteer is 82-year-old, Miss Elizabeth M. Brown, now serving in Welch, West Va.

She holds a BS from Peabody College, a Masters from William and Mary and has done advance work at Columbia University in the field of psychology.

VISTA may be contacted by mail at the Office of Economic Opportunity, Washington, D.C.

More Yacks Coming

An unexpected number of students braved the lengthy lines Monday and yesterday to receive their 1965 Yackety Yacks on the first two days of distribution.

And as a result — there were many disappointed students who heard the sad words yesterday afternoon: "Sorry, we ran out."

A new shipment has been ordered, and distribution will be resumed today at 1:30 p.m.

Talk In Church Picketed By YAF

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH News Editor

Civil rights leader Carl Braden denounced the House Un-American Activities Committee, the Speaker Ban Law, the North Carolina state legislature, the Ku Klux Klan and University administrators Monday night in an NAACP-sponsored speech at the Episcopal Chapel of the Cross.

While Braden spoke, between eight and 10 pickets representing the Young Americans for Freedom marched outside with placards attacking him as "a communist" who "betrays a good cause."

Braden had been denied speaking privileges on the UNC campus by University administrators over a week ago because he allegedly would have come under the jurisdiction of the North Carolina Speaker Ban Law.

The law prohibits known communists, persons who have pleaded the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution in connection with subversive activities, and persons who advocate the violent overthrow of the government from speaking at state supported institutions.

"I want to make one thing clear," Braden told the crowd of nearly 75. "I am not going to stand here and say I'm not a communist to get to speak at this place."

Free Speech

"This is a matter of free speech," he said.

Braden told several hecklers in the crowd that they would get their only chance to speak during the question and answer period.

"If there are any hecklers present they can go and hire their own hall," he said. Braden outlined his past career up until his current activities as Information Director of the Southern Conference Educational Fund, a civil rights organization.

After the 1954 Supreme Court decision outlawing school segregation, Braden said he was instrumental in securing a house in a white suburb of Louisville, Ky., for a Negro family.

"I haven't had a moment's peace since," he said.

"Trumped" Charges

Braden said charges were "trumped up" against him by Kentucky authorities, and he was sent to prison for committing sedition.

After being freed by a Supreme Court ruling, Braden went to work for SCEF.

"I have worked with the Southern Conference Educational Fund to help bring white people into the struggle for integration," he said. "We are very unpopular with people in the South."

Braden said he had been denounced by Governors Ross Barnett and George Wallace, and by several state committees on un-American activities.

"There are more un-American activities committees than there are fleas on a dog that hasn't been washed in a year," he said.

Braden said the U. S. Congress House Un-American Activities Committee "called me up in Atlanta and tried to get me to be a stool pigeon."

"I told them my beliefs and associations were none of the business of the committee," he said.

No Power

"Congress has no power to investigate in an area in which it has no power to legislate."

Braden was found in contempt of Congress by HUAC, and he appealed the conviction to the Supreme Court on the basis of First rather than Fifth Amendment freedoms.

"In 1961 the Supreme Court balanced away my liberties," Braden said in commenting on the court's action to uphold his conviction.

"I have been a newspaper man for over 20 years," he said, "and I have seen this kind of thing happen under Hitler and Mussolini."

"You've got to take away the rights of the people for the protection of the state."

recent decision to investigate the Ku Klux Klan.

"To try and get off the hook and restore their respectability, Mr. Willis and Mr. Tuck say, 'Wouldn't it be nice to go down South and investigate the Klan,'" Braden said.

HUAC Attacked

He referred to Congressmen Edwin Willis of Louisiana and William Tuck of Virginia, the chairman and vice chairman respectively of HUAC.

To set HUAC out to investigate the Klan is like sending the fox to watch over the chicken coop," Braden said.

"HUAC lives on favorable publicity."

"In the end they'll decide it isn't the entire Ku Klux Klan that is at fault, but the 'holy terror' squads within the KKK," he said.

"Already they are laying the groundwork to make the civil rights movement the real target of their investigation."

Calling HUAC "a racist group," Braden said, "it attacks the same organizations the Klan does."

He said there was an "urgent need to prosecute some Southern people."

"We can't let the Klan run around like it does," he said. Braden quoted Dr. Martin Luther King as saying the HUAC Klan investigation was a "smokescreen."

"Slick Politicians"

When he was reminded that liberal Congressman Charles Welfelt of Atlanta, Ga., was on HUAC and supported the Klan investigation, Braden said, "Charles Welfelt has been taken in by the slick politicians who have been on the committee for 10 years or more."

"He is sadly mistaken and he will find out before long," Braden said.

Miller Is Shocked, Disillusioned

In making his introduction of speaker Carl Braden Monday night, Charles Miller, president of UNC - NAACP, said that "the men who run this University are so petrified of doing anything which will offend the state legislature that they are willing to trample both facts and fairness in their haste to build a reputation for the University as a 'safe' institution."

Miller said that the events of the past week, concerning Braden's being refused a forum on campus, "profoundly shocked and disillusioned me."

After recounting the events leading up to the meeting's being scheduled off campus at the Episcopal Chapel of the Cross, Miller said, "We still do not know on what grounds Mr. Braden has been denied a campus forum."

"We are told that several agencies were consulted, but we have yet to hear what they have charged or how they have substantiated whatever charges they have made."

Miller charged that "his University has failed in the past to produce or cultivate many leaders who will champion a freer, more just North Carolina."

"Witness the state legislators. I stand here, and I am appalled at how silent each and every one of us has been."

Says Liberation Army Leader

'You Can Expect A Free Cuba By March'

By EDWARD VICK

"You can expect a free Cuba by March."

This is the prophesy of Frank Edward Casuso, Financial Secretary of the Liberation Army of Cuba.

"We are training 20,000 boys in South America and have 4,000 more in the mountains of Cuba."

Casuso, a sincere young Cuban, was selling cut-rate magazine subscriptions on the UNC campus last week to raise money for the liberation movement.

He lives in Durham and earns money teaching judo and giving demonstrations of both judo and karate.

"Our boys here in America are taught kinds of unarmed combat in the Florida Everglades and in Louisiana," he said. "We are not allowed to teach armed combat in the states."

His home was Mira Mar, a town near Havana. He fled the country when he saw the oncoming Castro dictatorship. "At first I was really for Fidel Castro, but then I saw what him and his brother, Raul, were doing, and I got out."

"We have about $3,600 now in arms and need about $200,000 more. We can get a B-26 or a B-29 for $100 on a 99-year lease. Under United Nations regulations, they can't just give them to us."

He said his organization, working out of Atlanta, Ga., does not ask for donations because, "We want to give back something for the money given to us."

"In Santo Domingo, your Marines are being killed and it is our fault and we are sorry. Communist Cuban teams have infiltrated Santo Domingo. Our boys in Cuba wanted to stop them but couldn't."
