ENTERTAINMENT WITH ELLEN . . . And The Arts ROBINSON

Students who are going to the mountains or the beaches this summer, or who need an excuse to go, take note:

Four outdoor historic dramas - two in the mountains and two on the seashore - will entertain North Carolinians this summer. "The Lost Colony," "Horn in the West," and "Unto These Hills" will open under the stars this weekend. "The Showboat" has been open for about a month.

This is the silver anniversary season for "The Lost Colony," opening Friday at Fort Raleigh on Roanoke Island. The nightly performances, except Sundays, will run through Sept. 5. "The Lost Colony," created by Chapel Hill playwright and former UNC professor Paul Green, first opened July 4, 1937.

The tragic story of Sir Walter Raleigh's colony unfolds as the drama runs through the settlement of the colony, birth of the first English child in America and the trials of life in the New World.

"Horn in the West" opens its 14th season at Boone Friday and will close Aug. 29. It tells of the pioneer struggles in Western North Carolina and recounts the story of Daniel Boone.

"Unto These Hills," is staged on the Cherokee Indian Reservation in the heart of the Great Smoky Mountains. Many of the actors are Indians. Its 16th season opens Saturday and will run through Aug. 29. The Cherokee drama, complete with colorful costuming, covers the story of the removal of the Indians by a forced march from their homeland in the southern Appalachians to West.

The story of the USS North Carolina will unfold in "The Showboat," a light and sound production given at the battleship's mooring just outside of Wilmington.

FILMS

For more accessible entertainment, an International Film Festival will be held at

DISCUSSION GROUP

Students interested in forming a panel and discussion group on American foreign policy should meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in upstairs Y-Building. Persons not able to attend at that time may leave their name with anyone at 942-5742.

DANCING

"Rhythm" and "phrasing" will also be available in the Graham Memorial Rendezvous Room Friday and Wednesday. On Friday, a combo party with The Rhapsodians will start at 8 p.m., and on Wednesday, the Jammers will play at 7:30 p.m.

the Presbyterian Student Center on Henderson Street, sponsored by the Baptist Student Union, Wesley Foundation, Westminster Fellowship, YMCA and YWCA. The shows will be on Tuesday evenings.

Next in the series will be "Eclipse," at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Completed in 1962, the film stars Alain Delon and Monica Vitti, with music by Giovanni Fusce. This simple story of lovers conveys the complexity of modern relationships.

For those with more bizarre tastes there is always "The Black Fox," tonight's Summer Cinema in Carroll Hall. The Louis Stoumen documentary tells the story of Nazi Germany in an unusual light using the framework of the folk tale "Reynard The Fox."

Next Thursday's Summer Cinema will be "Freaks." All shows start at 7:30.

MUSIC

The Department of Music will have a long program of concerts throughout the summer. For the musically inclined, three concerts open to the public are included on the program of the 15th Annual Clinic for Piano Teachers and Students scheduled to begin Monday under the direction of W. S. Newman.

A four-level recital by students will be held at 8 p.m. Monday in Hill Hall. Performances of the evening will include works by Bach, Kuhlau, Chopin, Debussy, Schumann and Liszt.

Back for the fourth time in 17 years is Arthur Loesser, internationally-recognized concert pianist. His recital will start at 5 p.m. Tuesday and resume at 8 p.m. after an intermission.

A third attraction open to the public will be a demonstration of dalcroze eurhythmics by Shirley Ann Griffith at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in Hill Hall. This Canadian expert will conduct the demonstration with local children and adults. In case you didn't know, dalcroze eurhythmics is a style of dancing developed for musicians in order to help them get the physical feel of the rhythm and phrasing of the music.
