

IT'S A CAT'S LIFE: It may be, but Gray doesn't seem to mind. Gray is the pet of UNC's Penny Clark, Miss North Carolina. The busy beauty finds fewer and fewer moments to pause with her pet as she prepares for her trip to Atlantic City for Miss America competition.—Photo by Ernest Robl.

-UNC-C: It's Official-

(Continued from Page 1)
 Tar Heel earlier this week.
 "As the guests arrive they'll find the walk leading to the library (where the ceremonies will take place) all lined with flags . . . U. S. flags and North Carolina flags . . . with music in the air, the flags flying and bunting everywhere, you know that we're preparing for a great celebration," Miss Cone continued.

Miss Cone declined to speculate on her future role on the campus.

She has been appointed acting chancellor by President William Friday of the Consolidated University. Her term will expire within a year. Miss Cone explained that all administrative positions at UNC-C are "temporary" until the Board of Trustees meets.

She made no predictions about what action the board might take. "I'll be happy to serve in any way my talents permit," she said.

The growth of the 1,000 acre campus has been so rapid that as parts of new buildings are completed, these parts are put into use, while construction continues on the rest.

Charlotte College began in 1946 as an eastern extension of the University of North Carolina, organized to accommodate the flood of GI's returning to school immediately after the war.

"The college was started to meet an emergency; now it's a new era. We are preparing to take care of the children of those GI's," Miss Cone said.

The institution held its first sessions in the Central High School Building in Charlotte. Today an old farm bell which comes from the old Elizabeth High building, close to where the college held its first sessions, stands in the middle of the campus.

On March 2, it pealed joyously to announce the happy news.

(Continued from Page 1)
 dents come on their own because they feel a need of discussion. Like all medical assistance rendered in the Infirmary, there is no report to the administration, and all details are kept in professional confidence.

A large number of the cases handled within the consultation program fall within the range of "accentuation of normal." This is a healthy individual who has reacted to a situation with an increased response.

The function of health service psychiatrists is not to eliminate the problem, but to lessen the degree of reaction.

Referral Service
 Hospitalization is arranged for students with more severe cases. Longer outpatient treatment is also available on a referral basis through the health service to the outpatient department or a private psychiatrist at the University. Problems requiring long-term help are sent to a specialist because of the Infirmary's limited resources.

Psychiatrists are available for consultation at all times. They normally see patients on an appointment basis, but facilities are available for immediately handling urgent cases.

All services of the health facility are paid for by students at registration.

On The Upswing
 Reifler said that as the enrollment here swells, there will be an increase in the number of unnecessary outcomes of which suicide is only one.

He said psychiatry is striving to prevent illness, rather

Zoology Grants
 Two National Science Foundation grants totaling $72,500 have been awarded to UNC Department of Zoology members.

A $25,000 grant will go to Donald W. Misch, assistant professor.

The $47,500 grant will be under the direction of Misch and Dr. Irvine R. Hagadorn.

The two research projects are related and Misch will use the electron microscope to be purchased with these funds for his study of changes in the fine structure of the various cells of the flesh-fly as they change during growth and metamorphosis.

than just waiting for it to strike.

Self-Help
 Reifler said that many students feel it necessary to "do it themselves" when faced with emotional problems. He said the job of a psychiatrist is to increase the individual's capacity and ability to "do it themselves."

Often, he said, the nature of the problem clouds possible solutions from the student's mind. But a psychiatrist, providing an objective, uninvolved approach, can help the student become aware of possible solutions or alternatives.

Most important, he said, is that this is done in a framework of confidence so that the student is assured that the details of his interview are kept inside the consultation office.

State Department Selects Perry

The State Department has selected the dean of the School of Education here to serve as a visiting lecturer and consultant in Argentina this fall.

Dean Arnold Perry will lecture on organization and administration of schools and confer on problems of utilizing new media of instruction at the National Ministry of Education in Buenos Aires.

This will be Perry's 12th trip to Latin America in the past 40 years. He is currently chairman of the Committee on Latin American Relations of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. In 1950, he served as official representative to the Inter-American Seminar on Education held in Montevideo, Uruguay.

Perry's appointment to Argentina is made under the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961, known as the Fulbright-Hays Act. Under this act, grants are made annually to about 2,300 United States citizens to go abroad and about 5,600 foreign nationals to come here.

Perry has been dean of the School of Education since 1954. He will retire from the post in August and will return to his position as professor in the spring semester.

This Week's Doings At The Intimate

IN THE OLD BOOK CORNER—

Sale This Week—Art Books Tuesday

Today through Saturday the Old Book Feature Case will be filled with a collection of Official Records of the Civil War—marked down from $5.00 or thereabouts to $1.98. On the big front table, there'll be a load of assorted junk from North Carolina attics, priced at 29c for the first volume, 9c for each additional volume. Don't miss it.

When you get back from your long Fourth of July week-end, you'll find the Old Book Feature Case filled with a collection of books on ART. Some good buys here for early birds.

IN THE PRINT ROOM—

Engravings from Old Books

We are trying to go through our old illustrated books which are beyond repair, and remove the etchings, color-prints, maps, or other illustrations suitable for framing. You'll find them in the Print Room, upstairs, mostly priced at 10c, 15c, and 25c, but don't shoot us if something extra good shows up at more.

IN THE TEXT DEPARTMENT

Help for Graduates and Teachers

Graduate Record Exams., Teacher's Exams., all sorts of academic third degree shindigs are scheduled in the next few weeks. Our review books really seem to help a lot, but you'll need to give yourself time to use them if you want top grades. You'll find them all spread out on the text counter.

IN THE WHOLE DARNED SHOP—

Browse in Air-Conditioned Luxury

The big old Intimate has spread a glorious intellectual feast, just to tempt you into an hour's luxurious, air-conditioned loafing. Be tempted, won't you?

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin Street

Open Till 9 P.M.

THE PINE ROOM SNACK BAR

Announces . . .

the addition to its menu of these
NEW SPECIALS

Thursday through Wednesday

CALIFORNIA HAMBURGER PLATTER

Jumbo Charcoal Broiled Hamburger
 On Toasted Bun, Tomato, Lettuce, Fresh
 Onion Slice, Cole Slaw, Pickle Chips,
 And French Fried Potatoes

75c

COLD BUFFET SALAD PLATE

Sliced Broiled Ham, Salami, Cold Beef, Turkey, American
 Cheese, Provolone Cheese, Pimento Cheese, Tuna Salad,
 Chicken Salad, Egg Salad, Sliced Tomato, Cole Slaw,
 Pickle Chips, Boiled Egg on Crisp Lettuce and Saltines

$1.00

SPECIALIZING IN—

HOT DOGS 15c

Hamburgers

COMPLETE CARRY-OUT FOOD SERVICE

Open: Mon.-Fri. 6:45-1:00
 Sundays 4:00-1:00

Closed: Saturdays