Junior Playmakers Plan Original Musical Comedy

"Con Amore," an original musical comedy by Chapel Hillians Mary D. Mack and James Holmes, will be presented at 8 p.m. July 23 and 24 at Playmakers Theater. The show will be premiered by the Junior Carolina Playmakers, a group of selected high school students studying here for the summer.

Mrs. Mack, a former Playmaker, has set her story in Italy where she spent six years as an official in the U. S. Embassy in Rome. Holmes, the show's musical director, is a graduate student in the Department of Music.

Leading parts will be played by Edna Randall and Mike Smith.

Miss Randall, a Junior Playmaker who is no newcomer to the stage, has been in several local productions and some with the Durham Theater. She will enroll in the North Carolina School of the Performing Arts in the fall.

Smith is a graduate of the University of Puerto Rico and is presently taking courses in the Department of Dramatic Arts here.

Another of the featured players is Lynn Barnhart, a 16-year-old blonde from Patomac, Md. In the musical production, Miss Barnhart plays the role of a Swedish starlet.

Tickets go on sale Monday at 214 Abernethy Hall.
