

Sunday And Tuesday

2 Concerts Set At Hill Hall

Two musical programs are scheduled at Hill Hall this week.

Soprano Joan Melton will present a concert of classical music at 8 p.m. Sunday. The Summer School Chorus will sing at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Miss Melton's concert will consist of Mozart's "Exsultate, jubilante;" "Franenliebe und-Leben," a song cycle by Schumann; and the Hermit songs of Samuel Barber, a collection of 10 short pieces.

Michael Kelly, UNC junior, will accompany her.

Miss Melton is both soprano and pianist. She has worked in opera, concentrating on modern opera. She has played with several symphonies in North Carolina. She has the distinction of being the youngest piano soloist ever to play with the North Carolina Symphony.

Miss Melton is now a part-time instructor at the University and is working for a Ph.D. in Musicology.

The Summer School Chorus is directed by James M. Chamblee.

The 25 students will present: "Psalm 81," arranged by Robert Shaw; "Call to Remembrance" by Richard Farrant; "The Heavens Are Telling" from "The Creation" by Haydn; "All Creatures of Our God and King" by E. T. Chapman; "What if I Never Speed" by Dowland; two songs from "Frostiana" by Randall Thompson, "The Road Not Taken" and "Choose Something Like a Star;" a spiritual "Ain't uh That Good News" arranged by Dawson; a folk song "When Ynug Men Go A'Courtin'" by Wilton Mason; and "The Yellow Rose of Texas" arranged by Robert Shaw.

Camblee, a graduate student, has had experience in choir directing at Chowan College.

The chorus will also be accompanied by Kelly.

TV'S IMPACT

Two former presidential press secretaries will give their opinions of television's impact on the political scene. Television presents "The Cathode Colours Them Human" at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. Pierre Salinger and James Hagerty, press secretaries to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Dwight D. Eisenhower, respectively, present their candid views in the "Intertel" report which will be telecast over WUNC-TV, Channel 4.

20 Students Are Enrolled In New Work-Study Program

Twenty students here are taking advantage of an unusual summer opportunity to earn money to meet college expenses next fall.

Under a federal work-study program provided by the 1964 Economic Opportunity Act, the Student Aid Office has arranged a number of jobs for students from low-income families.

As these students could not find work closer to their homes this summer, most of them are living in Chapel Hill and all are filling jobs connected with the University. All of the work being done this summer is work which needed to be done, but for which there was inadequate budget. All summer jobs are full-time ones.

Among positions being held by the students are library assistants, lab assistants, research assistants, classroom assistants, and office help. For example, two students are doing work at the UNC Institute of Fisheries at Morehead City, and three more are helping to clear land in the Morgan Creek - Laurel Hill area for a future botanical garden.

If a student participates for the full 14 weeks, working 40 hours weekly, he can earn as much as $840. The Student Aid Office requires that the students check with them each payday to deposit as much as possible with the University cashier. These savings are applied to next year's expenses. They total about half or more of the salary in most cases.

The federal government pays nine-tenths of the cost of the program and UNC subsidizes the rest. Some $23,940 is available to meet the summer payroll.

In the fall, students in a similar program will work part-time (up to 15 hours a week) while they attend classes. About 120 students are expected to benefit from the $58,320 allocated by the government for this program.

These students will fill already-existing part-time jobs, but will receive salary from work-study funds on an hourly basis in addition to regular hourly payment from the University.

Student aid officials say that the program is especially aimed at helping low-income students avoid incurring a large loan debt which would handicap them after graduation.

Research Grant Is Awarded UNC

The U. S. Public Health Service of the Department of Health Education and Welfare Friday approved a general research support grant of $294,300 to Dean W. F. Mayes of the University School of Public Health.

The grant will finance graduate traineeships for students interested in pursuing careers in public health. Students from across the U. S. participate in the program here.

The announcement was made by Rep. Horace Kornegay in Washington.

A REMINDER

All students who have borrowed from the National Defense or University Loan Fund, and who will not be returning to UNC in September, should come to the Student Loan Funds Office in Bynum Hall next week.
