

Voice Recital Set Sunday

Soprano Joan Melton will present a voice recital at 8 p.m. Sunday in Hill Hall.

Miss Melton, a student working for her Ph. D. in musicology, will present a program of modern, classical and romantic masters.

Accompanist will be Michael Kelly, a rising junior piano major from Martinsville, Va.

Miss Melton, who is a pianist as well as vocalist, appeared at the age of seven as the youngest soloist ever to perform with the N. C. Symphony. She did her undergraduate work at East Carolina College and later attended the University of Mississippi.

SUMMER CINEMA

"I'm All Right Jack" will be tonight's Summer Cinema at 7:30 in Carroll Hall. The English-made comedy will be the summer's last free movie.

'Waiting For Godot' Opens

At Triangle Theater

"Waiting For Godot," the controversial tragi-comic play by Samuel Beckett, will open Tuesday for a two-week run at Durham's Triangle Theater.

The production will run nightly at 8:30, except Sunday and Monday, through Sept. 4.

Playing lead roles will be Wayne Martens, a member of Triangle's permanent repertory company, and Mike Levin, who will be making his debut with the company.

Martens, who has been seen previously this summer as Inspector Voss in "The Physicists" and the magistrate in "A Shot In The Dark" will perform the role of Estragon.

Levin, a graduate of the University of Minnesota with a master's in theater arts, will perform the role of Vladimir.

His varied experience includes summer stock in Connecticut and Virginia, independent equity productions in Minneapolis, and a two-year stint with the Tryone Guthrie Theater in Minneapolis.

Performing the role of Pozzo will be John Sevier, a permanent member of the Triangle company who has been seen in all of its summer productions.

"Waiting For Godot" is the second production of Triangle's "extended season" and ushers in a more serious fare of drama to be presented by the theater through Oct. 2 and during its initial winter season.

After "Godot" will be productions of Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes," Sept. 7 to 18; and Thomas Wolfe's "Look Homeward, Angel," Sept. 21 to Oct. 2.

-Construction Continues-

pushed back when the rising stage is in place.

Air-conditioning ducts have been installed, but finances are not at present available to install the cooling unit. The auditorium is equipped with the most up-to-date ventilation system available. There will be a constant, even flow of air at all times.

The total cost of the building will be approximately $1,725,000.

Chase Cafeteria was started in April, 1964. The cafeteria will be in full operation for the opening of fall semester.

There will be 1,000 seats, with an hourly capacity of 4,000 people. The kitchen will be equipped with the latest in modern cafeteria appliances.

The building is constructed to include six private dining rooms which will be available for organizations. These rooms can be converted into one large dining area. The cafeteria will be completely air-conditioned. The "scramble" system of self-service will be featured to prevent long lines.

When completed, the building will cost approximately $1,710,000.

Morrison was started in March, 1964. Completion is expected Sept. 10.

The building will reach 10 stories, with a housing capacity of 1,042 students. The rooms are designed for two students and provide adequate storage space.

The approximate cost of the building upon completion will be $2,544,000. It is designed to be completely self-liquidating over a period of 15 years.
