

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.
Britt Gordon, speaker of Student Legislature, needs a pretty, young thing who can take shorthand, to serve as official recorder at legislature meetings. If you know one, call SG offices.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Don't Panic,
Ticketholders

Those of you who shelled out $1.50 last week in anticipation of the appearance of Otis Redding, but were disappointed when Otis failed to show, can get their cash back from 1-3 p.m. today in Y-Court inside the front door.

Vol 74, No. 11

CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA — WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1965

Founded February 23, 1893.

Dickson Outlines New SG Program

By ERNEST ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

Speaking before a group of Ehringhaus residents Monday night, Student Body President Paul Dickson said that the Student Government is considering retaining a lawyer to advise it on legal matters.

Dickson, making a tour of various residence halls, also enumerated programs he wants enacted this year. Dickson also talked at length about the possibility of establishing a student co-operative to sell books, clothing and other items for reduced prices.

Contending that current prices, both downtown and in campus stores are too high, he mentioned the possibility of Student Government "taking over" the Book Exchange.

A student raised the question of whether or not Student Government could legally operate a business on campus. To this, Dickson replied that it might be necessary for Student Government to incorporate itself, and that this was one of the reasons that the organization wished to hire a lawyer for legal advice.

During a question period following Dickson's informal 20-minute talk, several students asked the student body president about his recent conviction on a Campus Code violation.

"If you don't want me in office," he told his audience, in reply to one question, "you have the right to remove me."

Jurors Picked For Rinaldi

HILLSBOROUGH (AP) — District Solicitor Dick Cooper Jr. said Tuesday 96 jurors have been summoned for the second murder trial of former UNC graduate student Frank Rinaldi Oct. 11.

Rinaldi is charged in the slaying of his wife. Cooper said he plans to confer with State Bureau of Investigation agents and other officers Friday "concerning the evidence we plan to present."

Rinaldi, 35, a former graduate student and part-time English was convicted last Nov. 18 of first degree murder with a recommendation for mercy. This carries an automatic life sentence under North Carolina law.

The North Carolina Supreme Court, in a 5-2 decision, ruled June 20 that Rinaldi was entitled to a new trial.

The high court said certain state evidence introduced at Rinaldi's trial was prejudicial to his case.

Rinaldi's wife, Lucille, 34, was found slain in an apartment in Chapel Hill on Christmas Eve, 1963.

Carson Denounces Dickson, SP

Charges 'Scandal, Irresponsibility'

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

Former student body vice president Don Carson leveled charges of "scandal" and "irresponsibility" against Student Body President Paul Dickson and his administration Monday night at a meeting of the University Party in Gerrard Hall.

Carson said his remarks were meant to "set the record straight" about the UP's role during the aftermath of Dickson's conviction this summer for a campus code violation.

Dickson received an official reprimand from the Men's Council for taking a coed into a closed fraternity house.

In the resulting crisis, student leaders, University administrators and 1,500 students attempted in vain to get Dickson to resign.

"It is regrettable," Carson told the group of nearly 150 "that in order to camouflage their own irresponsibility the members of the opposition party have begun a desperate attack against this party."

"They are charging that we are in collusion with the administration and have given information to the state press," he said.

"I want to tell you of the role played by the University Party in this situation."

Carson said UP leaders had quietly kept counsel with Dickson and his advisors during the early days of the crisis.

According to Carson, when Dickson refused to resign, Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey threatened Dickson with the possible review of his case by the Faculty Review Board.

Carson said Cathey implied Dickson would be thrown out of school by the Board if he didn't resign from the presidency.

Ease Pressure
The UP leaders who had previously asked Dickson to resign then sought ways to ease the administration's pressure, according to Carson.

Carson blasted top Dickson advisors Arthur Hays, Roger Foushee, John Randall and former student body president Mike Lawler for their reaction to the administration's demands.

"It was disgusting to sit there and listen to the hysterical proposals these four made," he said.

Carson said the four advisors, whom he referred to as the "fearsome foursome" of the Student Party, advocated "hiring lawyers, suing the administration, and even moving Student Government across Franklin Street."

"Mike Lawler, who I understand holds certain tactics used in the Berkeley riots in high regard, told Dickson, 'No course of action you take in this matter could be too radical,'" Carson said.

Intervention
He said the UP leaders intervened for Dickson, spoke in a group to Chancellor Paul Sharp, and got the University to withdraw its threat.

"I can tell you now," Carson said, "that had it not been for the intervention of the leaders of the University Party, the president of the student body would be singing 'I got my troubles, you got yours' to the tune of 'going home to Raeford.'"

"I will say to John Randall that if he and the other members of the SP old guard had advised without regard for petty patronage the University would have been spared its latest trip through the journalistic mud of the state's news media."

Open Defiance
Carson criticized SP leaders for suggesting the open defiance of the University administration, which he praised for its support of Student Government in the past.

"Being a student is not a license to gratify every whim, to incite protest or to dictate to the administration," he said.

Attacking the "incompetence and irresponsibility" of the Dickson administration, Carson expressed distress that "the ability and creativeness of men like Bob Wilson are stifled by an arteriosclerotic administration."

"The present administration is filled with men who have a higher regard for their own twisted philosophies of student autonomy than they do for the good of the University," Carson said.

"The Dickson administration reminds us of a child playing in the driver's seat of a car," he said. "It doesn't matter to the child that the car isn't going anywhere, just so long as he's steering."

Interesting Story
When he heard of Carson's remarks to the UP, Dickson said yesterday, "That's an interesting story."

Student Body Secretary Sherry O'Donnell (SP) said in a statement issued yesterday, "I was most shocked to find Don reversing in his address to his political party the positions he had taken previously in confidence."

She said Carson had taken part in several discussions about the Dickson crisis "in a spirit of non-partisan concern for the University."

"Although this may be politically expedient for Don," she said, "I cannot help but feel that the damage his ill-considered remarks may do to Student Government and this University are so great that expediency alone cannot justify them."

"In fact," she said, "I consider Don's statement malicious and indefensible, irresponsible in the extreme."

"Since Don feels the proposals made at these meetings were 'hysterical,' I can only conclude that Don's endorsement of them was made then in a similar state of mind," Miss O'Donnell said.

It Is No Secret
Student Body Vice President Britt Gordon also told the party, "It is no secret to any of you that a deep and serious crisis surrounds your Student Government at this time."

"I stand ready to give all that I have, including subjecting myself to the personal abuse that I will surely receive, in defense of the honor of the University and the integrity of this Student Government," he said.

UP Chairman Jim Hubbard also criticized the current Student Party administration and outlined a program for party progress during the next year. "This party will never lower itself to the point that its commitment to this campus is to criticize or slander," he said.

Toronto Chorus Will Perform Here Tonight

The University of Toronto Chorus will appear in Hill Hall at 8 p.m. tonight as part of the Graham Memorial entertainment series.

The performance is free to the public.

Termed "one of the finest musical organizations in Toronto and the province," the group has distinguished itself in every type of choral music, but especially for its precision and sensitivity in the interpretation of 16th century a capella works.

The all-variety mixed chorus is on a tour of American universities, which began this week and will run through the first week in October.

They arrived in New York City in mid-September and performed at the Lincoln Center for Performing Arts during the International University Choral Festival.

CLICK, CLICK, click, click, click. Student Government secretary Judy Fletcher labors over a stack of letters, forms, notices, and press releases from campus politicians. It's people like Judy and her faithful box of carbon paper that keeps Carolina student government running smoothly. — DTH photo by Ernest Robl.

White Says 'Patience, Restraint' Essential In Solving Ban Problem

State Sen. Tom White of Lenoir County defended the speaker ban law Monday, saying that no solution could be found without "the exercise of patience and restraint."

Addressing the Durham Rotary Club, White called the possible loss of accreditation to state-supported institutions a "veiled threat" and said the thinking of some educators and board members of the UNC board of trustees has switched from rational to emotional.

Psychological Explanation
The chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, a longtime supporter of the ban, used a psychological explanation in pointing out the errors of state educators.

"Psychologists tell us a suggestion that the community is threatened is more potent than a direct statement to that effect," White said. "When this sort of an idea is introduced indirectly by suggestion, it gradually penetrates the entire mental processes of any person involved and becomes a part of his outlook."

White based his argument on the premise that the possible loss of accreditation is more a "suggestion" than a threat. He said a person must exercise intellectual objectivity and emotional stability when considering the matter of the speaker ban.

"...patience and restraint..."
"The exercise of patience and restraint is essential," he said. "Honest and sincere efforts on the part of administrative officials, educators and legislators are necessary if any improvement in the situation is to be achieved."

The senator could not be reached yesterday to comment on what "improvement in the situation" he was referring to. Before mentioning the speaker ban Monday, however, White outlined how much money was appropriated to education by the General Assembly this year.

He said the legislators in Raleigh do have the best interest of UNC at heart, "despite all efforts of the liberal press to convince the public otherwise."

White then summed up the controversy as it faced this year's General Assembly. "The trustees of the University appointed a committee," he said.

"The chancellors made pronouncements. Efforts were made to evaluate the chances to repeal or amend the law," he continued.

Threat "Procured"
"In some yet unknown way an alleged threat of loss of accreditation was procured. The liberal press got into the act with acclarity and venomous zeal."

Concerning academic freedom as it applies to the University, White commented, "I do not know what is the accepted definition of academic freedom at the University of North Carolina or at other institutions of higher learning in the state."

"But if the present concept of academic freedom at institutions of higher learning includes as either necessary or advisable a program of having known Communists, other subversives and all kinds of oddball beatniks speak on the campus with the institutions' cloak of respectability draped around their shoulders, then, in my opinion, this concept ought to be revised."

Sen. White added that he would like to know just what the real situation was in regard to the many charges of rampant Communist influences at UNC.

He cited charges of possible Communist indoctrination of students in ideologies which North Carolinians would find offensive.

SEN. TOM WHITE — DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

Town Of Chapel Hill Will Get In On The Towing Act

As if the parking problem wasn't bad enough. The town of Chapel Hill is now stepping into action to free itself from the exhausting headache.

The Board of Aldermen Monday approved an ordinance giving police authority to tow away and impound improperly parked cars at the owner's expense.

Police asked for more detailed authority to deal with the cramped parking situation after University students returned to the campus several weeks ago.

Traffic congestion has been on the increase every year, and this year the problem has become critical.

New restrictions by the administration have forced many students to park their cars off campus.

The police request dealt with the parking problem along E. Franklin St., which was converted to four lanes this year.

Town Manager Robert Peck said there have been no accidents so far. But he warned that police have reported several close calls when cars were parked in the Franklin St. traffic lanes.

The towing arrangement established by the town will be similar to the one used by the University.

The University, using a new parking system this year, has a towing arrangement with several wrecker services here.

In other action Peck told the board he has received 65 replies from 154 bond holders who financed the town parking lot on Rosemary St., concerning a plan to convert the bonds in order to extend the lot.

At its last meeting the board adopted a plan by New York bond attorneys to recall all 3 per cent revenue bonds sold to finance the lot and to issue 2.25 per cent revenue bonds to finance the new expansion.

Eleven bond owners, holding $5,500 worth of bonds, said they would not go along with the plan. Peck said 54 holders agreed.

Further action was pending the receipt of more replies.

The board also urged the police department to enforce crosswalk regulation in the downtown area.

an up-to-date radar speed check device to replace the four-year-old one now in use.

Several recommendations by the police department concerning increased downtown parking space for two-wheeled vehicles were adopted.

The board accepted a low bid of $46,780 by Muirhead Construction Co. of Durham for several street projects.

It also voted to close an unnamed street between Burlage Dr. and Bolin Creek.

The area is scheduled to be developed as a "medi-center."

Notice

The Daily Tar Heel is published daily except Mondays and during examination periods and holidays in Chapel Hill, N. C. Editor is Ernie McCrary, Managing Editor is Kerry Sipe. The Daily Tar Heel distributes an average of 9,500 copies each publication day and is published by the University of North Carolina Student Government. Business manager is Jack Harrington.

HELLO... GM INFORMATION! If you ever call the GM Information Desk to ask for some cute coed's telephone number and you get an answer such as "36-24-33," don't be alarmed! The man at the desk is probably giving some other caller a mailbox combination over another line. DTH photographer Ernest Robl caught GM employee giving out information in such a two-phone conversation here. (We have to admit, the topic wasn't quite as interesting as the one we described.)