

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Free Flick

Tonight's free flick at 7 and 9:30 in Carroll Hall will be "Suspicion," an Alfred Hitchcock production starring Cary Grant and Joan Fontaine. A provincial British girl marries an unprincipled charmer, whom she discovers to be a warped and lying cheat, and possibly a murderer.

Last Call, Otis Fans

The last chance to receive refunds for the MRC Otis Redding show will be today between 1 and 2 p.m. inside the door at Y-Court. You must have your ticket stub.

Vol. 74, No. 14

CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA — FRIDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1965

Founded February 23, 1893.

UNC School Of Medicine, Charlotte Memorial To Unite

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

The UNC School of Medicine and Charlotte Memorial Hospital will become affiliated next July providing a unique education and exchange program between the two institutions.

Dr. Isaac Taylor, dean of the School of Medicine, and John W. Rankin, director of Charlotte Memorial Hospital, made the announcement Wednesday.

Under the agreement Memorial's chief resident will serve under the joint sponsorship of the departments of medicine at both institutions.

Clinical Faculty

Six of Memorial's specialists in internal medicine will be appointed to the clinical faculty at the medical school here. Any teaching these men do, either here or in Charlotte, will be as part of the official medical school faculty.

A N. C. Memorial Hospital resident in medicine will be sent to Charlotte to become chief resident there.

Initially, the emphasis in Charlotte will be directed toward doctors who have graduated from medical school and are taking advanced training.

However, it is hoped that after a few years, senior UNC medical school students will receive part of their training in Charlotte once the exchange program is set up properly and under way.

First Small Step

Dr. Lewis Welt, chairman of the Department of medicine, said yesterday, "The University is taking its first small step toward the community hospitals of North Carolina to foster a better understanding between us, so that medicine may benefit and our knowledge can grow."

The affiliation is expected to spread to other departments in the two institutions.

If this happens Charlotte doctors in the 15 or so other specialties, such as surgery, pediatrics, obstetrics and gynecology, will receive appointments to the medical school faculty here.

This would also mean that residents in the other specialties would probably be exchanged between the two hospitals.

The program will give UNC a base in Charlotte on which the training of doctors could be expanded as required.

To implement this, members of the department of medicine here will commute to Charlotte to give lectures. In turn, Charlotte faculty members will come here to give lectures at the medical school.

Mutual Benefit

Members of the two hospitals said the program will "mutually benefit and strengthen the opportunities for graduate and undergraduate medical education."

In their formal statement, Taylor and Rankin said:

"The School of Medicine at the University of North Carolina and Charlotte Memorial Hospital are pleased to announce an initial step in an affiliation for graduate medical education between the two institutions.

Joint Sponsorship

"Beginning in July 1966, the chief resident in medicine of Charlotte Memorial Hospital (currently a member of the residency staff of the medical service at N. C. Memorial Hospital) will serve under the joint sponsorship of the department of medicine of Charlotte Memorial Hospital and the department of medicine of the UNC School of Medicine.

"The administrative officials and the members of the departments of medicine of the two institutions support this development enthusiastically in the belief that such an affiliation will be mutually beneficial in strengthening the opportunities for graduate and undergraduate medical education and will serve to improve the quality of medical care in North Carolina.

"It is anticipated that this initial affiliation may be extended at some future time to include other departments in Charlotte Memorial Hospital and the School of Medicine of the University of North Carolina."

Pep Rally!

Have classes started to get you down yet? Do you feel like screaming?

Well, tonight's the night to do it. At 7:30 p.m. the cheerleaders will be gathering forces for the biggest pep rally to hit UNC in years.

Head cheerleader Jerry Houle said yesterday to remind everybody to bring torches to the planetarium parking lot before 7:30.

When the crowd has gathered to mammoth size the great march will begin across campus; pep band, torches and all. The marchers will parade over to the upper quad, and down into the lower quad picking up forces along the way.

Then the cheerleader, with the band and the crowd at their heels will stomp into Emerson stadium for some good healthy yelling.

A giant bonfire will be waiting for the crowd when they get to Emerson. Cheerleaders said some necessary equipment for tonight's festivities, in addition to the torches, will be trash cans to beat on, or anything else that makes noise.

Just to show their confidence in the team the cheerleaders said that helium-filled balloons will be on sale at tomorrow's Virginia game.

Each time UNC scores, everybody will release his balloon, to the amazement of Virginia fans.

Remember, 7:30 in the planetarium parking lot. And bring torches and trash cans.

University Gets $2 Million, 700 Acres In Kenan Will

From the Associated Press

One of the largest bequests in the $100 million estate of William Rand Kenan, UNC benefactor who died last July 28 in Lockport, N. Y., was left to The Consolidated University of North Carolina.

He left his 700-acre Randleigh Farm at Lockport, plus $2 million, to the University, his alma mater.

Most of Kenan's estate was left for educational purposes. Kenan's will, filed in Niagara, N. Y. County Thursday, began:

"A good education is the most cherished gift an individual can receive."

Industrial Pioneer

Most of his fortune, which Kenan made as a pioneer in the carbon acetylene business and in Florida real estate, will be used to establish "professorships, instructor-ships, scholarships and fellowships."

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp said yesterday that "through the years, this will be a very great thing for the University." He added, "I hope that it will substantially enrich the Kenan Professorships."

Student Body President Paul Dickson on behalf of the student body:

"I wish to express a feeling of deep gratitude for this generous gift from a man who, in the past, has given much to the people of North Carolina through his gifts to its primary educational institutions."

Kenan, a North Carolina native, was born in 1873 and graduated from the university in 1894 with a B. S. degree. He was a football letterman, playing halfback.

His gifts to the University over the years were many. He and his family set up the Kenan Professorship Fund, which supplements salaries of distinguished professors.

WILLIAM R. KENAN

The University's football field, Kenan Stadium, was a gift from Kenan in 1926, as a memorial to his parents, William R. Kenan and Mary Hargrave.

At that time it had a seating capacity of 24,000 and cost $375,000. Kenan also directed building of Kenan Fieldhouse in the east end of the arena at a cost of $28,000.

In recent years the stadium capacity was increased to 43,000 permanent seats, at the expenditure of more than $1 million, with funds made available by Kenan.

Last fall two new wings costing $100,000 were added to Kenan Fieldhouse.

Press Box
Another Kenan gift, in 1949, made available funds for construction of a new press box and a guest box on the opposite side of the field.

While at the university, Kenan and Dr. Francis P. Venable were co-discoverers of the commercial use of carbon acetylene.

UNC, Town Argue Route Of By-Pass

Officials of the University and the Town of Chapel Hill are in disagreement with the State on a proposed route for a northwest by-pass linking Carrboro and Airport Road.

The State Highway Department has apparently chosen a route which:

- almost parallels the proposed thoroughfare plan road.
- will take up 10 acres of university-owned land.
- blocks off 10 more acres of "the best undeveloped land the University owns."

- creates a dog-leg connection with Estes Drive causing a possible traffic hazard which will be compounded when Airport road becomes a four-lane highway.

According to UNC Business Manager J. A. Branch, the Chapel Hill thoroughfare plan, which has been approved by the state, shows the by-pass meeting Estes Drive at Airport Road.

The by-pass would be part of the secondary road system. The new route proposed by the state shows an intersection of the Airport Access Road, some distance south of Estes Drive.

The Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen Monday voted to use "all possible influence" to persuade the Highway Department to return to the original plan, and make a direct connection with Estes Drive.

Branch said the University is opposed to the new state plan "for two reasons." First, "it takes 20 acres of the best land we have, ten acres for the road and the ten which would be shut off by the road."

Branch said the state plan has no connection with the local thoroughfare plan, but if they were both built the thoroughfare road and the state road would be almost parallel.

"We think some road is necessary," Branch said, "so we will try to find out why another plan couldn't be used. All we can do is try to work out a suitable plan."

Branch added that state officials have been "very cooperative and considerate in the matter." He will meet next week with the Highway Department's district engineer to try to work out a new route.

Final action by the University will be up to the board of trustees. Because the road is part of the secondary system, the University is being asked to donate the right-of-way.

Attorney General Reverses Moody's Concession Stand

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Chuck Erickson, UNC's director of athletics, was delighted by the attorney general's Wednesday ruling that state public schools can sell food and soft drinks at athletic events.

Atty. Gen. Wade Bruton's opinion overturned Deputy Atty. Gen. Ralph Moody's decision, which many educators feared would have raised school taxes or curtailed extra activities because of loss of funds from concession stands.

The original opinion did not directly affect fund raising activities at UNC.

Erickson called the refreshment stands an integral part of high school football, saying they attracted many spectators who otherwise would not attend the games.

He said loss of the funds would have "cut down freshman high school squads, and we need to develop this talent. The boys are at a formative age, and if possible, we'd like to help the late-bloomers."

"That's why we'd like to see as many boys as possible playing ball."

"Kind of A Shock"

"It was kind of a shock to see Moody's ruling — especially since the concession stands have been operating for 50 years."

Bruton apparently agreed with the director of athletics, commenting that "various fund raising activities in the public schools" and related activities are "traditional and accepted."

"I do not think the school laws are to be interpreted as prohibiting such activities so long as they are reasonable and kept within supervenable, appropriate limits by the various school administrative authorities."

"The activities of the hundreds of different schools are too numerous and varied to enable me to set forth a definitive list of activities which a school is legally authorized to conduct."

Asks Clarification

Bruton suggested that the 1967 General Assembly clarify how the "government in business" section of the general statutes apply to public schools.

Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction, had requested the attorney general's opinion.

Bruton said the so-called government in business law

"does not mean that schools have been given legislative authority to enter unrestrainedly into the field of retail merchandising without limitation or restriction."

He did not "think it would be proper for a school to operate a commissary or store that competed generally in the entire field of retail merchandising."

Miss Mississippi To Date N.C. Boy

Some lucky North Carolina male will have the honor of dating the first runner-up to the 1965 Miss America this weekend.

Lovely Patsy Puckett, Miss Mississippi, will arrive here Friday evening and will fill out an "Operation Match" questionnaire.

The data from her questionnaire will be telegraphed to the computation center in Cambridge, Mass. which will process the data and telegram back the name of the boy who from the data on his questionnaire seems to be the ideal date for Miss Puckett.

Her plane will set down at Raleigh - Durham Airport tonight at 7:55.

UNC students are urged to join Duke and Wake Forest students to greet her here.

After a brief press conference at the airport, during which she will be officially crowned "Miss Match," a caravan will bring her to Chapel Hill for a tour of the UNC campus.

She will spend Friday night at the Pi Beta Phi sorority house.

After an 8 a.m. breakfast with Gov. and Mrs. Dan K. Moore in the Governor's Mansion Saturday, she will attend a reception at Erdahl-Cloyd Student Union at N. C. State.

At noon she will be back at Carolina for a press conference at the Kappa Sigma fraternity house. Television stations WRAL, WFMY and WTVD will broadcast the announcement of her ideal date.

This lucky gentleman will escort Miss Mississippi for the remainder of the weekend.

Saturday afternoon Miss Puckett and her escort will attend the Carolina - Virginia football game, after which they will be honored guests at the Rams Club.

Then it's on to the Maverick House for a reception which is open to everyone.

The grand finale of her visit to Chapel Hill will be a banquet in her honor at the Blair House at 6:45 p.m.

Immediately after the banquet Miss Puckett will go to Duke where she will attend a large reception in her honor given by Pi Kappa Phi fraternity to which all members of the Durham community have been invited.

Miss Puckett plans to leave Chapel Hill Sunday at 9 a.m.

Young men who would like a chance to date this beauty, but have not yet submitted a questionnaire may get in on the game by filling out the data sheet and slipping it under the door of 5 Old West before 8 p.m. Friday night.

MRC Hears Resignation Resolution

A resolution calling for Paul Dickson's resignation as student body president was introduced in the Men's Residence Council Wednesday night, and MRC members voted to postpone its consideration until next week.

The resolution was introduced by Jim Sturges of Graham Residence Hall, one of three students who sponsored a recent campus-wide petition calling for Dickson's resignation.

The petition, signed by nearly 1500 students, was presented to Dickson last week.

After Sturges introduced his resolution, Andy Holland of Mangum Hall moved to suspend the rules for the resolution's immediate consideration by the body.

According to MRC rules, all bills and resolutions are introduced by their sponsors and the body waits until its next meeting before voting on the proposals.

A suspension requires two-thirds of the body's support to be approved.

Holland's motion was defeated by an estimated vote of 35 to 15.

The Sturges resolution said Dickson's conviction for a campus code violation "has endangered the respect for Student Government and in particular the Campus Code and Honor Code."

"A recent poll of student opinion in residence halls and fraternities has shown that he no longer has the confidence of the student body," it reads in part.

The resolution also cited appeals by high Student Government and University administration officials calling for Dickson's resignation.

In other business, MRC President Sonny Pepper announced the resignation of MRC Vice - President Bob Peyton.

David Keil, chairman of the Freshman Class Scholarship Committee, explained plans for a tutorial service offered students in the freshman - sophomore honors program. He urged MRC members to support the service.

MRC Presses Suit Against Redding

The Men's Residence Council is suing Otis Redding for expenses including cost of publicity, phone calls, tickets, salaries and posters for a concert in which he failed to perform. The entertainer will also be sued for breach of contract and defamation of the character of MRC.

Sonny Pepper, president of the MRC said, "It is hard for us to have concerts now without people being skeptical." Pepper also noted that Redding never contacted the Council. The band and singers showed up for the program but had no idea of the whereabouts of Redding.

The Jokers Three in Greensboro, agent for Redding, is suing him along with the MRC. The band itself was one and a half hours late but had called MRC to let them know of their lateness. The band had had an engagement in Hampton, Va., the afternoon of their scheduled appointment here, Friday, Sept. 24.

The band and singers put on a two hour show while waiting the arrival of Redding. Pepper announced that each ticket holder would receive a refund from the advanced sales of $1,200 if they presented their ticket stubs in Y-Court.

The sum for which Redding is being sued has not been announced as yet.

Air Force Opens UNC Soccer Season

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina's soccer team kicks off its 1965 11 - game schedule this afternoon at Fetzer Field (3:00) against the U. S. Air Force Academy.

"This looks like the best bunch we've ever had," UNC Coach Marvin Allen said yesterday. "There are a good number of boys back from last year (20) and we have a lot of talent to work with. Our offensive line is strong — real strong — and should score on anybody. They are good ball-handlers, good shots, and they are fast."

Allen is beginning his 19th season as coach here. His clubs have a composite record of 92-44-12. With 13 sophomores on the squad last season, UNC posted a commendable 5-2-2 slate and finished second to Maryland in the ACC.

On the other hand, USAFA streaked to a 7-2-1 record and won the Rocky Mountain Area Championship. It was the first year of coaching there for Capt. Carmen Anillo, a UNC grad of 1954, and it was the Academy's best record event. Allen has only one sophomore starter as of now. He is center forward Jim my Johnston. The UNC co-captains are right wing Drew Murphy and goalie Tom Roberts. Pressing them for starting positions have been juniors Bronson VanWyck (RW) and Bob Johnson (G).

Perhaps the strongest players on the squad are inside left John Loud and left wing Jackie Writer.

"These boys proved themselves last year, and should contribute a great deal to the good season we're looking for," Allen said.

Another Tar Heel starter is junior right halfback Gordon Cadwgan, a transplanted full-back who has shown up well in his new position.

Rounding out the starting eleven are: inside right Eddie Belmont; left halfback Danny Galves; left fullback Terry Henry; center halfback Jim Hammer; and right fullback Billy Reeves.

USAFA was expected to run into a good deal of difficulty this year after losing 9 of 11 starters off last year's champs. They well might, but the season was opened in impressive fashion last Saturday when the Falcons blanked Wyoming, 7-0.

UNC Inside Left John Loud