Well, I guess it's time I cracked down on a few ACC football teams. You'll have to admit, I've been understanding the first two weekends of the season. For example, I've let those Clemson Tigers win their first two games over Virginia and N. C. State. I allowed Maryland to beat Ohio University in their opener last Saturday. I even permitted Wake Forest to lose by close margins in their first two games.

Fauntleroy Disguised

Of course, you Tar Heel fans are probably worried about my Duke policy. I have let them win their first two games. But don't worry — I have plans for those boys. So here goes: UPSET SPECIAL: Winston Coeds over Alexander (Sex Bowl).

GEORGIA TECH over CLEMSON: I think it's about time I cracked the whip on Frank Howard's boys. If you let those Tigers win too many, ol' Frank will start thinking he has a good team. If that happens, he'll start telling the sports writers about it and we'll have a big mess. Better let Tech take this one.

SYRACUSE over MARYLAND: Tom Nugent will have his "T" dotted today. He'll have his goal line crossed, too.

DUKE over RICE: I'm building the Devils up for the kill. Let them have this one.

VANDERBILT over WAKE FOREST: I've thought about this all week. Let Vandy have it—I never really liked Deacons anyway.

SOUTH CAROLINA over N. C. STATE: Let's help those Gamecocks out. I am understanding once in a while. The birds have been flying low for a while so things should begin to pick up.

MICHIGAN over GEORGIA: Tar Heel fans might be interested in this one. The Wolverines should have an easier time with the Bulldogs than they did with Carolina.

Other games:
ALABAMA over MISSISSIPPI
OKLAHOMA over NAVY
V.P.I. over WILLIAM & MARY
DAVIDSON over THE CITADEL
SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA over OREGON STATE

Runners Win Cakes

Joe Lasich and Darius Hinant captured first place in the Open and Novice Divisions, respectively, in Thursday's Intramural Cake Race. Eleven starters were off at 4:30 in the Open, with Lasich coming home first with a time of 6:47 for the mile-and-a-half race. Second was James Hotel-ing with a time of 6:35 and third was Truett Goodwin at 7:03.3.

Hinant beat 11 other runners in the Novice with a 7:20.6 time. Close behind was Bob Everett at 7:22.5 and third was last year's Novice winner, Bill Horn, at 7:35.6.

Lasich is from Hagerstown, Md., where he was the state indoor and outdoor two mile champion. Hoteling, from Chapel Hill, went to Virginia Episcopal High School and was the state Prep mile champion. Goodwin was the North Carolina state mile and cross country champ. All three boys are on the freshman track team. Everett is from Ehringhaus.

Booters Dump Falcons, 4-0

Carolina's soccermen rode the slight edge provided by Jim Johnston's second-quarter goal through a third of the final period, and then splurged for three more scores in blanketing the Air Force Academy 4-0 in yesterday's opening match. An elated Coach Marvin Allen remarked after the battle: "We played excellent soccer out there today. It was a fine all-round team effort. Yes, you can say that I was very well-pleased with this showing in the opening match."

Co-captain and goalie Tom Roberts had this to say: "I agree with Coach Allen. It was a great team victory, and everybody who played contributed to it. This is just the first of a lot more to come!"

Carolina dominated the first quarter completely, with that stanza being played almost entirely in AFA territory. The Blue and White was unable to get a successful series going, however, and the second period began a new ball game.

Play was a little more evenly matched after the clubs switched goals. But with 13:07 having elapsed, soph center forward Jim Johnston maneuvered for the first of his two goals.

Johnston gained possession just in front of the Falcon goal, but his first attempt was blocked beautifully by AFA goalie Hans Mueh. The UNC steadily recovered quickly, however, and footed the ball into the nets for a 1-0 lead.

In the first half, Carolina's swift defense kept the Falcons from firing a single shot. On the other hand, the Tar Heels took twelve shots.

The flyboys improved their play in the third quarter, but all six of their shots were staved off nicely by Roberts and reserve goalie Bob Johnson, who gave a good account also.

The Allmen continued to fire away at the enemy's net, and with 14:10 left in the final go-round, Johnson took a pass from center forward Drew Murphy and slammed his second tally for a 2-0 spread.

Four minutes later, Mueh blocked another UNC attempt. But with four men bunched at the goal, inside left Jack Loud converted the opportunity into his team's third point. Inside right Ed Belmont had the assist.

It took Carolina just over six minutes to bag its final score. This one came with 4:23 remaining, and was counted by Drew Murphy on an assist pass from Johnston.

Frosh Bow To Rain

Friday's UNC-Wake Forest freshman football game was postponed because of rain.

The game is rescheduled for November 5 in Kenan Stadium.

Assistant Athletic Director Walter Rabb said the postponement was made to save the playing field from damage.

Tar Heels Hit Virginia, Davis At Halfback Slot

By PAT STITH
DTH Sports Editor

A Charlotte newspaper said Bob Davis will play second halfback when the Cavaliers of Virginia meet North Carolina at Kenan Stadium this afternoon.

But don't you believe it, Davis is about as likely to ride the bench as Danny Talbott—less likely, in fact.

Many have called him the ACC's best quarterback as a sophomore last season. Certainly his statistics speak well enough for him—1,481 total yards, good enough for third place among ACC backs for all time.

He averaged a 6.2 yard gain every time he touched the ball, passing for 1,054 yards and averaging five yards a carry for 436 yards on the ground.

But cold statistics couldn't begin to tell the real story about this Bob Davis. North Carolina found out last fall, when it lost to Davis 31-28, that when you zig, he zags.

Carolina is not the only team he hurt. He ran 88 yards for a score against N. C. State and ran and passed for 334 yards against Wake Forest. Both marks are all-time Virginia records.

So far this year, they say he hasn't been his old self. But UNC Coach Jim Hickey has been telling his boys, no doubt, that even if this Davis is a dud, treat him like live ammo.

Virginia comes into today's game without a win—Duke whipped it 21-7 and Clemson won 20-14.

In those games, playing quarterback, Davis has run for 42 yards in 11 carries and hit 13 of 28 passes with three interceptions.

Today, senior Tom Hodges will call signals and Davis will be listed as a reserve left halfback. It is a safe bet, however, that he won't be in reserve long, if at all.

This is the 70th game in the UNC-UVA series, dating back to 1892. It is the longest and most continuous of the South's major college football rivalries.

Carolina had won six straight from the Cavaliers until last year's defeat. It was the first loss to Virginia under Hickey, who came to Carolina as head coach in 1959.

The win was Virginia's first inside the conference in three years—and they haven't won one since.

Carolina comes into today's game fresh from one of the greatest victories in its 77-year history. The Tar Heels upset Ohio State University 14-3 before 80,000 fans at Columbus.

About 35,000 are expected for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff. It is Band Day and about 2,500 musicians will perform at half-time.

Carolina fans will be anxious for a look at the Tar Heel defensive unit, which absorbed a punishing Ohio State attack last week and yielded only three points.

Offensively the backs to watch are Max Chapman, who set up Carolina's first touchdown and cut through the Buckeye line on a 48 yard run for the capper. And, of course, Talbott.
