Johnson Trusts College Students

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer
Press Secretary Bill Moyers says he has never heard President Johnson doubt "the capacity of college students to express their judgment when all sides of any issue are before them."

Moyers had been contacted by The Daily Tar Heel about the President's opinion on the speaker ban law.

He explained he was not able to discuss the law "in any detail" with the President.

"Any specific comment would not be based on hard information," the press secretary said.

But he added: "I do know that with regard to the general question of academic freedom, the President has a long and consistent record of encouraging full and frank discussion. "His confidence in the youth of this country is well known," Moyers said, "and he has spoken frequently of their need to be well informed."

Moyers, whose official title is Special Assistant to the President, has been a close associate of Johnson for many years.

Last month, 1964 presidential candidate Barry Goldwater announced his opposition to the ban, which has also been denounced by several U. S. senators.

Mum's The Word

Mum's the word — October 30.

The posters on the bulletin boards and the pretty girls in the DTH have proclaimed this enigma for almost a week now.

Yesterday Armistead Maupin, Vice - President of the Senior Class, explained what the three little words mean.

"It's really right obvious," said Maupin. "When we said 'mum', that's exactly what we meant. The Senior Class has made arrangements with Hill's Florist Shop in Carrboro for an extensive campaign to sell large white mum corsages for Homecoming."

Tickets for the corsages will be on sale in Y-Court, Lenoir Hall, and Chase Cafeteria for only three days — Monday

Chaplain Speaks Tonight On Recognition Of China

Rev. William Sloane Coffin, chaplain of Yale University, will speak on why the United States should start negotiations for the recognition of Red China tonight at 7:30 in Carrol Hall.

UNC students present at the hall will also hear a discussion of the issue from New York by six distinguished panelists, who will be connected to Carroll Hall by telephone hookup.

Nearly 20 colleges and universities across the nation are participating in the program, which is sponsored by Americans for the Reappraisal of Far Eastern Policy.

The admission of Red China to the United Nations will also be discussed.

The program is planned as a celebration of the 20th Anniversary of the United Nations.

Members of the national panel include Michael Harrington, Norman Thomas, Dr. John Fairbank, William Ryan, Al Lowenstein and Norman Cousins.

Students will be able to address questions to the national panelist through the telephone connection.

Americans for Reappraisal of Far Eastern Policy is dedicated to educational means of seeking support for its proposals, rather than civil disobedience, according to local director Eric Van Loon.

Committee Gets 2 Amendments

Two constitutional amendments will be considered at tomorrow's Judicial Committee meeting. One would make the positions of President and Vice President of the Student Body a single ticket, as in national elections.

The second would make the positions of Secretary and Treasurer of the Student Body appointive.

Anyone wishing to testify on either of these amendments is asked to attend the open hearings, beginning at 4 p.m. in Woodhouse room of Graham Memorial.

Honor Council

Candidates Must Attend Meeting

Candidates seeking endorsement for Honor Council seats must attend a general meeting tonight on second floor GM at 9 p.m.

They will also be required to attend a short Honor System lecture tomorrow at 7 p.m. and to take an exam on the lecture and handouts Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Incumbents are required to attend the first and last meetings only. They must take the exam.

Students attending all required meetings and passing the exam will receive the Honor System Commission's endorsement.

No student may run for an honor council seat without this endorsement. Qualifications for the honor council follow:

— All candidates must have an academic average of "C" or better, or must be a new UNC student.

— Candidates for Men's and Women's Councils must be residents of the district from which they seek to be elected.

— No person shall be a candidate for an elective office simultaneously in more than one of the three branches of student government. (Executive branch, Student Legislature, Men's and Women's Council.)

— No person shall hold concurrently an elective position in one of the other branches while seeking office for the Men's or Women's Honor Council.

Districts in which seats are open follow:

Men's districts include one seat in MD II, one seat in MD III, one seat in MD VIII, one seat in MD X, one seat in MD XI and one seat in MD XII.

Women's districts include two seats in WD I, one seat in WD II, one seat in WD III, one seat in WD IV, one seat in WD V and one seat in WD VI.

Locations of Men's and Women's districts may be found by contacting Pat Taylor, chairman of the Honor Systems Commission.

Group Making Musician List

Music For Children, Inc. has requested all musicians in the area to submit their names for the annual Director of Music and Musicians.

Musicians are asked to send names, addresses and a description of their musical abilities to P. O. Box 408, Chapel Hill.

Music For Children is compiling the names as a community service. Instrumentalists, singers, teachers, soloists, groups, choir directors, organists and combos are asked to contact the group.

Fourth-Quarter Pass Wins Game

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Asst. Sports Editor

A fourth-quarter 41 yard touchdown pass from Wake Forest quarterback Jon Wilson to wide end Ken Henry crushed a UNC comeback Saturday and handed the Deacons a 12-10 victory over the Tar Heels. Outplayed for three quarters and trailing 6-3, the Tar Heels put together their finest offensive display of the afternoon by moving 74 yards in 12 plays for a fourth quarter touchdown.

Halfback David Riggs was the fair-haired boy — taking a Danny Talbott pitchout on the Deacon 11 yard line and skirting left end. A Danny Talbott placement was good and the Tar Heels were in business 10-6 with 7:53 left in the game.

Then came the Deacon clincher. With first and ten on the Tar Heel 41, Wilson hit Henry on the UNC 10 and the fleet-footed Greensboro native went into the end zone for a 12-10 Wake Forest lead. Eddie McKinney, who had kicked two earlier field goals, missed the extra point.

But comeback time was not completely over for the Tar Heels. Taking the kick-off on their own 30, they moved 56 yards in eight plays. The Deacon defense stiffened on their own 14 and the Tar Heels elected to go for the field goal on fourth down and three.

Missed FG

from the 21 was wide to the left with 2:12 remaining.

The last-ditch UNC effort came shortly. The Deacons unable to move the ball, punted Talbott rolled to the left for seven yards and lost two to a sweep. Then came the bomb — a perfect toss to fullback Tom Lampman on the Wake 17. Lampman was hit hard just as he caught the pass and Deacon safety Carlton Baker was there to recover the loose ball.

Tar Heel fans loved that fourth quarter. They had little to yell about before then. Wake Forest scored the first time they had possession. Taking the ball on their own 27, the Deacons rode the passing of Wilson and the slashing rushes of fullback Andy Heck to the North Carolina 12. There the Tar Heel defense stiffened — batting down two Wilson passes on second and third down.

The field goal was the Deacon answer and senior fullback Eddie McKinney connected for a 3-0 Wake Forest lead. The Tar Heels began to threaten in the closing minutes of that first quarter. On first and ten on the Wake 45, halfback Max Chapman circled right end for 18 yards to the Deacon 27. Chapman hit for five and Talbott for nine as the first quarter ended.

Defense Stiffened

On first down, Talbott again carried for five yards to the Deacon nine yard line. But the Deacons flexed some defensive muscles to their own and the Tar Heels settled for a Danny Talbott field goal from the 15.

Wake Forest stormed right back to take the lead. The Deacons moved from their own 32 to the UNC 4 mostly on the passing arm of Wilson and the rushes of Heck and left halfback Doug Golightly.

But the Tar Heels built a stone wall on their four yard line and three Deacon rushes gained nothing. McKinney salvaged three points for Wake with a field goal from the six and a 6-3 halftime lead.

A scoreless third quarter set the stage for the final-period fireworks.

UNC coach Jim Hickey had few post-game comments. "We just started a little flat," he said, "and never could really get going until the fourth

'Baptism' Drowned Heels

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

WINSTON - SALEM — You might say the Tar Heels got baptized yesterday. And in the end you can say that they drowned.

An inspiring, never-ay-die band of Demon Deacons played their best game of the season against the Heels. The battle in Bowman Gray Stadium reversed last week's 12-10 Carolina win over Maryland.

It was two first-half Wake Forest field goals and a late fourth quarter touchdown that carried the Black and Gold over their arch rivals, 12-10.

You can sit back and speculate from now until next week and never come up with a good answer.

Danny Talbott, who again scored all of UNC's points, missed a field goal attempt from a sharp angle and it was a long way from being an easy boot.

With 17 seconds left in the contest Tar Heel fullback

Tom Lampman raced from the North Carolina 45 to catch a perfectly thrown Talbott pass on the Wake Forest 25, but the two defenders slammed Lampman hard causing a fumble fumble which they recovered — recovering the ball game.

But in the end it was Wake quarterback Jon Wilson who passed over, around and through the weak Tar Heel secondary for 172 yards. It was left end Ken Henry who caught seven Wilson bombs for 103 yards, one for a 41 yard fourth-quarter touchdown.

The defeat, the first at the hands of the Deacons in three years, was also the result of a Carolina offense that puffed and sputtered until the fourth quarter. But even then it misfired after driving to Wake 14.

Deacon fans had a sign at the game. It read, "Ram Whiskey Hill" — and they did with a guy by the name of Andy Heck doing most of the ramming.

The 17,500 fans were treated to a good half-time show, which was by far the best event of the afternoon. As a matter of fact, the Marching Tar Heels got their first victory of the season. They easily bested Wake's band, but it didn't take much.

Carolina fans, needless to say were disappointed, and the band, who cheered loudest of all took the loss even harder.

The Maverick House gong-bongers ran around the field following each Carolina score. They were attacked by Wake fans each time and following the final Tar Heel touchdown they were pelted by oranges.

Now either them Baptists are fruit lovers, or they drink a lot of whiskey sours.

Up until yesterday they had a lot to be sour about. The Deac triumph over Carolina was their first ACC win of the season. They were thrashed by South Carolina, Maryland and State earlier this year.

The game ended on a bitter note. After the horn sounded
