Dickson Accepts 21 More Names; Petition Will Not Be Enlarged

Student Body President Paul Dickson approved 21 more names for the recall petition yesterday, but added that no more names will be accepted. Rep. Sharon Rose, the originator of the petition, said the names had been secured before the petition had been handed in. The elections board said yesterday that 18 invalid names have been found on the petition. The total number of "questionable" names, the committee chairman said, is at least 80. Alvin Tyndal, the committee chairman, said most of the questionable names are illegible or were alphabetized incorrectly by his staff. Five of the previously "questionable" names were located yesterday and found to be correct. All the 21 names accepted yesterday were correct, Tyndal said. No names beginning with R, S and L have been checked yet. Among the invalid names on the petition, Tyndal said were such signatures as "Dick Tracy." Dickson said an election will be held Nov. 9, if the petition is valid. The General Elections Law requires that nominations of candidates for the recall election must be submitted no later than midnight tomorrow. "Nominations may be made either by the established political parties or by petition," Dickson said. Dickson made the following statement to the DTH yesterday concerning the recall petition: "I have permitted 21 more signatures to be added to the original recall petition. These additional names were submitted to me by Rep. Sharon Rose who assured me that these names had been secured at the time of the submission of the original names. She also assured me that, to her knowledge, no further names were in the possession of anyone other than the Elections Board. The Chairman of the Elections Board has ruled that further names would not be accepted. Rep. Rose has agreed to this ruling. The Elections Board is still in the process of validating the petition. So far, the petition has been neither validated or invalidated. If the petition is validated, it is my intention to hold the recall election on November 9, 1965, the date of the regular fall elections. The Chairman of the Elections Board has informed me that The General Elections Law requires that nominations of candidates for the recall elections must be submitted no later than midnight, between Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Nominations may be made either by the established political parties or by petition.

Sale Of Tear Gas Weapons Admitted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former North Carolina Ku Klux Klan official acknowledged today he once had been arrested for selling tear gas weapons. But Richard Joseph Constantineau, a gundealer in Wilmington, N. C., told the House Committee on Un-American Activities at the time he didn't think he was acting illegally. The committee is probing Klan affairs and its investigators earlier today pictured North Carolina Grand Dragon James R. Jones as a Klansman once disciplined for his radical conduct. Constantineau said he was elected a state Klan kokam in 1964 but he actually appeared to have had little experience in the Klan, having joined in April or May of 1964 and resigning in August of the same year. Constantineau explained his klavern, designated as the New Hanover County Improvement Association, had met for a while in a union hall, but then switched to a meeting room in Wilmington Motel. The reason for the change, said Donald Appell, chief investigator for the committee, was the trade union learned the improvement association was actually a Klan klavern and refused further use of the hall. Appell brought out that after the Klan dealer was arrested, another Klansman informed on tear gas sales at an obvious non-Klan business. But Constantineau denied that he asked for the Klan to act against the other dealer. Rep. Charles L. Weltner, D-Ga., said it appeared to him that Constantineau's gun sales went up sharply after he joined the Klan and Constantineau acknowledged his association with the Klan might have been the reason for the increase in gun sales. But Constantineau said there was also "a seasonal factor" involved. Jones was also depicted as once being expelled from the Klan for not paying his dues. This was brought out as the

Senate Committee Issues Booklet On Viet Protests

By ANDY MYERS
DTH Staff Writer
The Senate Committee on the Judiciary has released a booklet titled "The Anti-Viet Nam Agitation And The Teach-In Movement." Printed less than a week after the national anti-Viet Nam demonstrations Oct. 15-16, the booklet seeks to show the extent of Communist infiltration into the anti-Viet Nam movement in this country. The 256-page staff study was approved by the Senate on Oct. 13 in a resolution. Some of the conclusions of the study include the following: "The great majority" of demonstrators acted for reasons ranging from "strategic considerations to pacifism." — The Communist Party of America has given "all-out support to anti-Viet Nam demonstrations and teach-ins, have directed its members to participate in them, and have sought to influence them in the interests of Communist expansion." — Many non-Communist organizations have neglected to demarcate "their position on Viet Nam or to repudiate Communist support or to establish... controls designed to prevent Communist infiltration and exploitation of their movement." — Many "known Communists or (people) with long records of association with Communist fronts have been able to play a prominent role in these movements." — "The control of the anti-Viet Nam movement has clearly passed from the hands of the moderate elements... into the hands of Communists and extremist elements who are openly sympathetic to the Viet Cong and openly hostile to the United States." — Teach-ins "have had absolutely nothing in common with procedures of fair debate or the process of education... they were a combination of an indoctrination session, a political protest demonstration, an endurance contest, and a variety show." — The national teach-in of last May 15 "received complete support from the Communist and pro-Communist publications in the United States like the Worker, the People's World, the National Guardian, and the Militant."

Symposium Drive Starts

The Carolina Symposium is launching this week its solicitations drive. Floor representatives in each dorm will visit each room and speak for approximately five minutes on the Symposium. It is hoped that $1 will be collected from each student. The budget last year was $10,000, but it is being raised to $14,000 in order to increase the pay for the men who will be the featured speakers for the Symposium. Men are being brought to the campus from as far away as England. Dean Allen Richardson, the minister of York Cathedral, will speak on "Myth in the Supernatural" as part of the total theme, "Man, Mind and Myth." House meetings were held in each dorm on Monday evening to explain the financial setup of the Symposium. The solicitation began on Monday.

Attorney General Studying Klansman In Light Of Ban

By BARRY JACOBS
DTH Managing Editor
North Carolina Attorney General Wade Bruton has been asked for a ruling on the applicability of the speaker ban law to a Ku Klux Klansman who pleaded the Fifth Amendment. He is now studying the question. Consolidated University President William C. Friday made the request yesterday in Raleigh. The question concerns a scheduled speech by North Carolina Grand Dragon James Robert Jones on the North Carolina State University campus Nov. 22. Jones repeatedly pleaded the Fifth Amendment when he appeared before the House Committee on Un-American Activities last week. The leader of the North Carolina Klan refused to give the committee any information other than his name. In addition to the Fifth, Jones also cited the First, Fourth, and 14th Amendments as grounds for his refusal to answer. President Friday said that the section of the speaker ban law which is relevant to Jones' case is Section 1-C. This section forbids the use of a state school campus to anyone who pleads the Fifth Amendment concerning Communist or subversive connections or activities before a duly constituted legislative committee. Bruton said yesterday he would have to do some research on the question. He said he didn't know when he would make the ruling. Friday said that a transcript of Jones' testimony has been sent for, in order to determine what types of questions the Klansman refused to answer. Should Bruton rule that Jones is barred by the controversial law, his decision could have wide significance. Other members of the hooded order who plead the Fifth, including Imperial Wizard Robert Shelton, might also be banned. However, Friday pointed out that his question was concerned only with the specific case of Jones' scheduled speech in Raleigh. Among the questions which Jones refused to answer were ones concerning Klan finances, the use of cover names for Klan charters, and one about the Klan's refusal to expel members known to have committed violence.

Trustees Refuse To Make Ban

RALEIGH (AP) — Trustees of the University, seeking relief from the speaker ban law enacted by the General Assembly, declined to impose one of their own Monday. The trustees, meeting in the old House chamber of the capitol, tabled without debate a policy resolution to prohibit Ku Klux Klansmen from speaking on any of the university's campuses. Proposed by trustee Ernest E. Parker Jr., of Southport, the prohibition would have applied to members of the Klan, members of organizations affiliated with the Klan or persons taking the Fifth Amendment in answering questions regarding Klan activities. Trustee Luther Hamilton of Morehead City stepped in quickly with a tailing motion, harking back to the long controversy over the 1963 speaker ban law. The trustees are on record as opposing the 1963 statute which denies a forum to Communists or persons pleading the Fifth Amendment in answering questions regarding subversive activities. "Inasmuch as a kindred matter has been discussed at great length and with great volume, I do not see that any useful purpose can be served by this resolution," said Hamilton, former member of the State Senate. "I move that it do lie upon the table." Hamilton's motion carried overwhelmingly. Few "noes" were heard among the 100 members of the board. Parker's resolution would have made the chancellors of the four university branches responsible for enforcing the Klan ban. Atty. Gen. Wade Bruton is preparing an opinion on whether the 1963 ban applies to the head of the North Carolina KKK, Grand Dragon Robert Jones of Granite Quarry.

Many Hear Policy Pleas

Nearly 200 students and faculty members heard pleas for a re-evaluation of U. S. foreign policy in the Far East Sunday night in Carroll Hall. A panel of six distinguished Americans spoke on the issue to the group by means of a telephone hookup, and the audience later heard remarks by Rev. William Sloane Coffin, Yale University Chaplain. The program was sponsored by Americans for the Reappraisal of Far Eastern Policy in celebration of the 20th anniversary of the United Nations. Coffin told the group mankind would only progress in the future through the concentration and unification of human knowledge and energies. "United Nations Day is a grand time to reappraise the UN," Coffin said. "We need to launch an assault on absolute national sovereignty." He called for the establishment of a standing UN army which would make the "forces of unity prevail" over the nations of the world. Coffin called on Americans to show more flexibility in its dealings with Red China and other nations. He praised student activists on college campuses who bring crucial foreign policy and other issues into the public eye. Dr. John Fairbank, noted foreign policy expert and a member of the six-man panel, supported Red Chinese admission into the United Nations. "Fighting alone is not going to settle the conflict in Viet Nam and the rest of Asia," he said. "We must attempt to draw Peking into the rest of the world." Fairbank emphasized the difference between Chinese and Western culture, and the long and separate histories which produced them. Using the conflict in Viet Nam as an example of the problems confronting U. S. policy in Asia, Fairbank said, "We're in a foreign nation far from home. The Chinese aren't. We can't withdraw militarily from Southeast Asia," he said, "but we can attempt to focus the problem on a larger plane." He called for negotiations on Asian problems on an international level. Editor Norman Cousins, Socialist Norman Thomas and author Michael Harrington condemned U. S. actions in Viet Nam. Allard Lowenstein, former N. C. State professor, said the United States was "ignoring the existence of the real China, Red China" by keeping that nation from joining the U. N. Former Democratic New York City mayoral candidate William Ryan called for a re-evaluation of U. S. foreign policy on all fronts.

Scott Speaks Here Sunday

Lt. Gov. Robert Scott will be the main speaker Sunday at dedication ceremonies for Scott Residence College, Avery, Parker and Teague Residence Halls. Scott College was named in honor of the late Kerr Scott, past governor and U. S. Senator, Lt. Gov. Scott's father. Speaking at 3 p.m., Scott will discuss "North Carolina and Higher Education. Trustees, legislators, university administrators, faculty and students have been invited. Festivities will be conducted outside the main Avery, Parker, Teague area. A motorcade from the Morehead Planetarium lot at 2:30 p.m. precedes the ceremony. A large picture of Kerr Scott will be unveiled and placed in the social room of Teague. Scott, the third residence college officially opened here, is the first one to be dedicated. Robert C. Hunter, governor of the college which includes 650 students, said the system "is working well and has resulted in an improved spirit" among students. Hunter is a political science major from Marion. Other officers of Scott College are Tom Mimms, secretary; Ed Blair, speaker of the Senate; Ed Little, treasurer; Mike League, Lt. Gov.; and Tom Jones, senator. Bob Farris is president of Parker, Chuck Richards is president of Teague and Charles Morgan is president of Avery.

Philosophy Society Holds First Meeting

The Carolina Philosophical Society, a round-table discussion group, is now being formed. According to Bill Woodall, organizer of the society, "The Carolina Philosophical Society hopes to fill the void that casual conversation in the various meeting places on campus leaves to the thinking student." Woodall pointed out that many other universities have similar organizations. "Eventually we could debate other universities on philosophical topics," he said. The society will hold interviews for interested students tomorrow and Thursday from 3-5 p.m. in Roland Parker I in GM. The society is open to all undergraduate students, but the membership will be limited. Woodall emphasized that the meetings will be all discussion, with no lectures. The club will meet every two weeks in Caldwell Hall. The group, said Woodall, "will seek to offer interested students of any major field intelligent discussion in the philosophical sphere, in much the same manner as the Carolina Political Union does in the political sphere." The society has the support of the Department of Philosophy and will have a faculty adviser from that department.

Third Periods Quiet But Look Out Later

The third period is "quiet time" for North Carolina's football team and its opponents. The Tar Heels have scored only seven points during that period, their opponents only three. By contrast a total of 75 points have gone on the scoreboard during the fourth quarter.

Negro Schoolhouse Torn By Explosion; None Hurt

KENLY (AP) — A Negro school in rural Johnston County was shaken by an explosion today. The blast, before school opened, ripped open a wall in the rear of the building and demolished one classroom. No injuries were reported. Principal B. L. Williams of the Bagley School of Rt. 2, Kenly said the damage was discovered by the janitor. Williams had no damage estimate and did not know the type of explosive used. He said State Bureau of Investigation agents had been called to assist the Johnston County sheriff's department in the investigation. About 250 Negro pupils attend the school. "We haven't had any trouble down here that would lead us to expect this sort of thing," Williams said. The blast apparently occurred sometime between midnight and 4 a.m., but on one in the area reported hearing the explosion. The Ku Klux Klan has been active in the county in recent months and was pointed out by Slaker, Jr. Distinguished Cadets are eligible to apply for a regular commission upon graduation. The cadets are: Robert B. Bandy; Charles W. Finch; Ellis J. Harrington; Thomas C. Harville, Jr.; Charles R. Payet; Clyde G. Thompson; and Joe R. Warfel.

Seminar Set On Computers

The last of two seminars on the Triangle Universities Computation Center will be held by the Department of Information Science and the Computation Center today at 2 p.m. in Room 1, Swain Hall. The discussion topic for the seminar is "The Status and Plans of the UNC-Chapel Hill Computation Center." Detailed plans for the new computing facilities, service and change-over problems for the University will be presented. All faculty members and persons interested in using the computer are invited.
