answer to another commission member.

Most Active

Probably the two most active members of the panel, as far as actual questioning of witnesses was concerned were Senator Gordon Hanes and Representative Lacy Thornburg.

Hanes, an attorney serving his second term as senator from Forsyth County, is the owner of Hanes Hosiery Mills. He was named to the commission by Lt. Gov. Robert W. Bob Scott.

Thornburg, from Sylva in Jackson County, is serving his third term in the House. Considered one of the leaders of the bloc of Democrats from western North Carolina, Thornburg was named to the study group by Speaker of the House Pat Taylor.

Questions from both Hanes and Thornburg usually made the witnesses somewhat ill at ease.

pointed by Scott.

Representative A. A. (Gus) Zollicoffer, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. The Henderson lawyer was chosen for Taylor, of whom he is a close friend and former college roommate.

Charles Myers of Greensboro, president of Burlington Industries, appointed by Moore. Myers was a strong supporter of unsuccessful gubernatorial candidate Richardson Preyer.

Rev. Ben C. Fisher from Wake Forest, chairman of the Baptist State Convention's Commission on Higher Education, named to the omission by the governor.

It was only after long study of the volumes of testimony, and drawing on their varied backgrounds that this group reached its final decision, voiced in the recommendation made Friday afternoon.

(Next in the series: Accreditation and the University.)

Addressing himself mostly to fine legal points, Col. W. T. Joyner, an elderly corporation lawyer from Raleigh, sat through most of the sessions wearing dark glasses to protect his eyes from the glaring television klieg lights. Frequently he conferred privately with Chairman Britt.

Only woman

Mrs. Elizabeth Swindell, editor and publisher of the Wilson Daily Times, was the only woman member of the panel. She is a past president of the North Carolina Press Association, the only woman ever elected to that position.

Both Col. Joyner and Mrs. Swindell were named to the panel by Moore.

Other members of the commission were: Senator Russel Kirby, a lawyer from Wilson County, ap-

If this is a Station Wagon, this must be something else.

All right, students, here's today's lesson in Volkswagen logic. Everyone knows that a real station wagon looks like a bus, right? So everything else must be something else, right? Good. That's settled. Now, the "something else" in question is the Volkswagen Squareback Sedan. We call it the Squareback because that's what it is: a squared-off sedan that gives you lots of extra space that other sedans don't. But the differences between the two are tremendous. The bus carries people (9) or things (170 cubic feet). (No other station wagon comes anywhere near it.)

The Squareback carries people or things, too. But not as many (5) and not as much (42.4 cubic feet). Basically, the Squareback is a sedan. And basically a Volkswagen. The engine is more powerful, but it's still in back and still air-cooled. Every other well-known Volkswagen virtue is there, too. Plus a few of its own. (Like disc brakes that just aren't well known yet.) The Squareback is just the car for people who want a Volkswagen with some extra room, extra power and nothing more. But the bus is still the bus for people who want nothing less.
