Pan-Hel Holds Talks Tonight

The Panhellenic Council and the Carolina Women's Council will sponsor a program for junior and senior women tonight at 7 p.m. in Howell Hall. The changing role of women after college will be discussed during the program — what working girls graduate students and married women can expect when they graduate.

Mrs. Daryl Farrington Walker, former assistant Dean of Women, Mrs. June Allcott of the UNC testing service, Miss Leafy Pollock, a psychiatric social worker in town, and Miss Fontaine Belford, graduate counselor will participate in a discussion of the topic.

JOHN BROWN'S BODY HERE FRIDAY NIGHT
The Graham Memorial Drama Committee will present "The Wingate Saga," a formal reading of "John Brown's Body," Book 4.
The reading, set for Friday night at 8 p.m., will be held in the G.M. Lounge. It will also be presented on educational television and at N. C. State University on December 9.
The Wingate Saga stars four veteran actors: Virginia Cornue, who appeared in various Carolina productions; Doug Barger, Playmaker costume designer, who appeared recently in the Yeats plays here on campus; Edward Kenebrick, acting head of The Department of Dramatic Arts at North Carolina College in Durham; and Laurel Dykstra, active in all fields of campus drama.
