When the final buzzer sounded yesterday it didn't really feel like the game had ended. Puzzlement, weariness, shock and just plain anger are shown on the faces of UNC cheerleaders and students in these pictures. The Duke game meant a lot, and we fought hard, but the team was no less disappointed than those who watched them, on TV and in Carmichael Auditorium. UNC gets one more chance with the Blue Devils in Durham on Feb. 26.

A Lull In Births At End Of Year

A 16-hour lull in the arrival of newborn babies occurred at N. C. Memorial Hospital at year-changing time. No babies were born from about 2 p.m. Dec. 31 until about 6 a.m. on Jan. 1. The last arrival of 1965 was Robert Briggs Watson III, the 6-pound 1 ounce son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Watson Jr. of 734-A Raleigh Rd., Chapel Hill. He is the Watson's first child. Sixteen hours later Brent Ashley Morris, a 6 pound, 11 ounce boy became the first child for Mr. and Mrs. James Gary Morris of 294 Hunter Place, Carrboro.
