The Line Is Drawn

The people in Raleigh and a handful of conservatives on this campus have said that only radicals, irrational young people they call them, are carrying Aptheker's torch and that they are just trying to heat up controversy.

To some extent, at least in the beginning, they were correct. But now the issue is not Aptheker, it is not SDS—it is the right of free speech which belongs to every American, black, white, red or redneck.

People are beginning to show their colors and no longer can anyone claim that it is only the radicals.

There could have been a better time and I feel that this issue was first brought forward for the sake of controversy.

But that doesn't matter now. The line has been drawn and you are simply in favor of holding on to your right or you are willing to let some small-minded people take that right away from you.

Mark Ethridge is not a radical, though he is certainly not a conservative. He is a man for whom I hold the highest respect. He says we are being denied and he is so right.

Mark Ethridge is a native of Mississippi. He has worked in the South for 50 years. Those years have taught him a great deal and we are fortunate that he is unselfishly sharing them with us.

He said he will not leave the University over this issue. But what if he did?

Some have asked why should we blow this issue up? Look what might happen to the University, they say. The Legislature could retaliate in many ways.

To hell with the State Legislature if there is the slightest chance we would lose men like Mark Ethridge.

Friday Top President

In this week's issue of Time William C. Friday, president of the Consolidated University, is listed as one of the 14 top university presidents in the United States.

Time says today's university president "commands the vast expertise of his institution and knows how to organize intellect. As a fast-changing society increasingly values these qualities, the influence of the president's is soaring. They have become a kind of fifth estate, half educators and half national policymakers."

Of Friday, Time says: "An efficient organizer, he has been president of the South's best university for ten years, has pipelines to resources of all the region's leading schools."

The Dying Village; Part Three

Evicted Students Speak

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

Who are the inhabitants of the box-like wooden structures of shrinking Victory Village?

Most of them have two things in common—they have financial difficulties and they like Victory Village life.

There are 96 undergraduates and 156 graduate students. Eighteen are foreign students and 54 are in professional schools—law, medicine, dentistry and pharmacy.

"I don't believe there is a finer group of people anywhere than those living in Victory Village," UNC Housing Director James E. Wadsworth said. "People value the friendships formed there. Without local government, they have handled their own problems."

Campus Security Chief Arthur J. Beaumont echoes this sentiment.

"Married students are more serious today," he said. "We have much less trouble with the residents of Victory Village than with the same number of students in a residence hall—or the same number of people anywhere for that matter."

Thirteen units are scheduled to be closed down in June. Six more are on the tentative list. Families whose homes are being closed are first on the priority list for comparable apartments.

Here are some reactions of the students being forced to leave. Not one of them want to move out of the Village.

DTH Poll Shows Students Divided

A majority of UNC students plan to join the newly-formed Committee For Free Inquiry, according to a DTH survey taken yesterday.

The Committee For Free Inquiry was formed Tuesday night by more than 350 students who opposed the decision of the executive committee of the board of trustees to speak here.

One hundred fourteen students indicated that they planned to join the movement, 71 said they didn't plan to join and 42 were undecided.

Comments include: — Eric Van Loon; Nashville, Tenn. — "A true university can exist only if it has the right of free inquiry and can look at any idea unhindered and judge it on its merits."

— Steve Maddox, Elizabeth City — "I'm for Aptheker being allowed to speak here, but I'm against demonstrations. Right now they would hurt the University more than they would help."

— Russ Field; Wyoming, Del. — "The right to be exposed to a diversity of opinions is essential to the maintenance of academic freedom in the University community."

— Phil Adams, High Point — "The only reason I can see i, the Committee was formed is because of Aptheker. If I find out differently, I'll change my mind."

— Fred Kesler, Sanford — "Although I agree with what they stand for, I don't think I will join them."

— Dan Welch, Jacksonville, N. C. — "I'll join. Maybe we can make the trustees aware of the fact that we are not satisfied. I will not participate in any violence, however."

A four-member steering committee is appointed to invite the board of trustees and Governor Moore to explain the reasons for their decision to the student body here Feb. 28.

The steering committee consists of Student Body President Paul Dickson, SDS Vice Chairman Gary Waller, Political Science Instructor Sid Waldman, an English graduate student Dave Gullette.

Lynd Won't Come If Aptheker Can't

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Yale Professor Staughton Lynd has turned down the Carolina Forum's invitation to speak here "until the University makes it clear Dr. Aptheker is welcome."

Lynd, unlike Aptheker, had not been barred by the Board of Trustees from speaking on campus.

"I am turning down the invitation on constitutional grounds (free speech guarantees in the First Amendment)," he told The Daily Tar Heel by telephone when contacted at his home in New Haven, Conn.

"Just last year," he said, "the state legislature moved in the direction of rescinding control over who speaks at UNC." He referred to the Britt Amendment.

"I think," he continued, "it would be particularly inappropriate for me to acquiesce in what seems to be the revival of exclusion and thought control in North Carolina."

"I want very much to come to the UNC campus, but Aptheker must come also," he said.

Charles F. Lambeth, president of the North Carolina American Civil Liberties Union, said his group hasn't yet decided whether to take legal action to enable Communist Aptheker to speak here.

"I have not had a chance to review the trustees' decision fully," Lambeth said, "but I am very disappointed he wasn't allowed to speak."

Lambeth said the ACLU Board of Directors would meet soon to discuss the trustees' decision.

Prof. Lewis Lipsitz of the Political Science Department did not resign after the trustees' decision. He had threatened to consider this at Monday's meeting of the student body.

"We don't intend to be rats running off a sinking ship," Lipsitz said, "but we don't intend to go down with it."

Dr. Nathaniel Rodman, associate professor of pathology who headed the group of 11 young faculty members which tried to influence the trustees' Aptheker decision, said he will not resign.

"I love the University," he said, "I would rather stay here and fight than leave."

Commenting on Aptheker's expectation that he would be allowed to speak here, Rodman declared: "His prediction shows that he just doesn't comprehend the political situation in North Carolina."

Journalist Club To Hear Panel

A four-member panel will discuss job tips in journalism at the monthly meeting of the UNC Press Club tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Charles Hauser of the Greensboro Daily News, Frank Clingman of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel, Dr. Wayne A. Danilson, dean of the journalism school, and Kenneth Byerly, journalism professor will make up the panel.

John Green, press club president, said the meeting will be held in the lounge on the second floor of Howell Hall.

Forum Member Hits Nicholson On Invitation

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Paul King, vice president of the Young Republicans here and a member of the Carolina Forum, said yesterday that he had not been consulted about the Forum's invitation of Communist Herbert Aptheker "or any other speakers."

Tex Fuller, also on the Forum, echoed King's charges. Fuller is Carolina Conservative Club vice president.

"The size of the Forum committee is too large," said Nicholson when contacted by the DTH. "I was told by the student government how many people I needed to work with."

"Then I was informed that more than 13 people were assigned to the Forum."

"All these invitations to speakers had to be sent out months in advance," Nicholson continued, "and has to be done during the summer."

"Since I had already sent out the letters, when I returned in the fall, I called a meeting where I announced speakers we definitely had committed. The list of invitations that had been sent out was passed around the table."

"I don't think that everybody at the meeting took the time to look at this list."

"King told the DTH he attended the meeting."

"King has not offered one constructive suggestion concerning speakers," Nicholson said. "He has never made any complaint of the number of meetings which have been held."

"I assume that Aptheker may be the reason."

"I think that by the administrative nature of the Forum that the Forum's past chairman, like John Ulfelder, Henry Mayer, and Joel Fleishman will admit that it's a very dictatorial job—not by choice but by administrative set-up."

Students Write Letter To Moore

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

The temporary four-man steering committee of the Committee for Free Inquiry has drawn up letters to Gov. Dan K. Moore and the executive committee of the UNC board of trustees.

They will be discussed and submitted for approval at the Friday meeting of the full group, which is open to the student body.

Neither a time or location has not been set, but the meeting will be some time early in the afternoon.

The members of the executive committee of the board of trustees will be asked to explain their decision denying Communist Herbert Aptheker the right to speak on campus.

Journalist Blasts Moore, Trustees

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

Mark Foster Ethridge, lecturer in journalism and well-known warhorse of the newspaper world, yesterday blasted Gov. Dan K. Moore and the executive board of the trustees for their rejection of Communist Herbert Aptheker.

In a letter to the DTH Eth-

Richmond Times - Dispatch, editor and publisher of the Louisville Courier - Journal, and editor of Long Island's Newsday.

The Mississippian writes that the executive board's action says that this state is afraid of "the stale, punkish, discredited dogma that Aptheker mouths."

He asks if North Carolina is so "unsure" of its faculties and students that it must build an "intellectual Chinese wall around them?"

Ethridge said he and his wife decided to settle here permanently because he felt that Chapel Hill was the "intellectual capital of the South."

"It was quite certain before we came that the speaker ban law would be repealed or amended," Ethridge said.

He feels the action of the Governor and the executive committee left the University in a worse position than it was under the original law.

If the present action is allowed to stand, Ethridge said, the University will go down in academic standing and in the eyes of those who share his "illusion and great respect for it as a place of learning."

"It will certainly not be the University to which I thought I was coming," Ethridge said.

"There is no assurance that the full board of trustees will reverse the Governor and the executive committee, as wise as that would be. We shall have to wait a better day and more enlightened men."

MARK ETHRIDGE

ridge, 70, wrote that "the pressure of the Governor (who has no business in any state being on the board of a university) has said to the world that freedom of speech is no good in North Carolina."

Ethridge has more than 50 years in journalism. He has held numerous positions including assistant general manager of the Washington Post, president and publisher of the

Yellow Journals Flourish Here

Residence Hall newspapers, newsletters, and yellow sheets flourish on the Carolina campus.

Alexander, Craige, Ehringhaus, Morrison and Scott College publish men's hall papers. Subjects covered range from the ridiculous to the sublime.

Barney Kimel, editor of the Daily Grit in Alexander, said, "Although we haven't exactly gotten too well organized, we plan to publish the Grit in its usual frequency—namely, every now and then."

Mighty Mo, heralded by Morrison publishers as "UNC's number one residence college newspaper," has been published three times. This paper includes half-tone photographs and 3 color art work.

The Scott College Journal features poetry and short stories.

Craige publishes a paper called the Tarpit. Information concerning future parties and hall functions as well as jokes and cartoons are found in this paper.

Nurses' residence hall and Spencer are the major women's halls publishing newspapers. The Spencer Spinster is due to publish its first issue in two weeks.—STEVE LACKEY

Collision Injures Soph

A 19-year-old sophomore had several bones broken yesterday afternoon when his motorcycle collided with a car in front of Morrison Resident Hall.

Thomas Carroll of Chevy Chase, Md. is listed in satisfactory condition at Memorial Hospital.

The Dean of Men's office reported that Carroll had several bones in his left leg broken.

The accident occurred about 5 p.m. at Manning Road and the turn-in to the Morrison parking lot.

Tennis Court Repairs

The six asphalt tennis courts across from Cobb residence hall are undergoing repair and extension. The old courts are 110 feet long, and will be extended another 10 feet.

After the extension work the asphalt will be patched sealed and then coated with a new all-weather surface. All six courts will be lighted so that they can be used at night for functions such as dances.

The courts are now closed for repairs, but the asphalt cannot be laid until early April. The new courts are to be opened shortly after that.

SP Fills Vacancies

Three legislative vacancies were filled in men's residence districts by the Student Party Tuesday night.

Elected were Bill Faison, Don Wall and Lacy Reaves.

Faison was elected by acclamation for Town's Men District, (MD 1). Wall defeated Mike League for the seat in Parker-Teague-Avery (MD IX) and Reaves won out over Stu Rosen for the seat in Morrison (MD XII).

Moore Plans Visit

Gov. Dan K. Moore will address the UNC Faculty Club March 15 at a luncheon meeting of the group, Dr. Wayne Danielson, president, said yesterday.

The governor has traditionally addressed the faculty club at some time during their term of office and this will be the first time Moore has addressed the club.

Gov. Moore was invited to address the group last year but was not able to come.

"We are happy the governor was able to adjust his schedule this spring," Danielson said, "in order to speak to us. It will be one of high-lights of the year for the club."

The meeting will begin at noon and Moore's address will be a 1 p.m. The governor addressed the North Carolina Press Institute here earlier this year.
