German Finds Chapel Hill 'Like Home'; Girls Differ

By CAROL GALLANT
DTH Staff Writer

Gerhard Ducker arrived in New York City last fall from Goettingen, Germany, carrying a large, heavy suitcase. He spent four days there before boarding the bus for Chapel Hill. Gerhard is one of the two Goettingen scholars at UNC this year. Each year Carolina sponsors an exchange program (two students) with Goettingen University. Born in Leipzig, East Germany, Gerhard has lived in Goettingen since 1961 and Chapel Hill smaller than Goettingen, is almost "like home."

When Gerhar who is studying Economics and Business Administration, returns to the University in Germany, he will have an additional year and a half to study. When he graduates he will have the equivalent of our Masters Degree. Gerhard was delighted to find the "small classes" here. He says it is impossible for 4-500 students to show up for a class which has seats for 300. "Often the classes are so large you cannot ask questions. Out of class the professors are too busy to see you. I have never found that so here."

When the audience got out of hand, the host commented "I thought my name was Heckler." So it went until Rob Phillips, senior, Greensboro, saved the talent division with his piano and a skilled rendition of "Exodus." Leland Schwante's sophomore, Charlotte, "Who Can I Turn to?" and Gene Rec-

Talent Show—No Llamas, Just Singers, Slapstick

By PEYTIE FEARRINGTON
DTH Staff Writer

Talent was the word Thursday night when the curtain went up for the Freshman Talent Show. Lou Heckler, freshman, Pittsburgh, Pa. emceed the show before an audience of 200. Referring to the somewhat less than capacity crowd, Heckler began, "Thank you for that wonderful round of applause." Congo beat combos, tappers, dancers, guitars and singers came and went in too great profusion, but the audience stayed for Heckler's entertaining dialogue. A third of the way through the show, Heckler again commented, "For those of you who just came in, this is the freshman talent show — not a sit-down strike."

tor's, senior, Cramerton, "Ol' Man River" also gave the audience a lot of what they paid for. Talent ran in the normal veins before Pat Hurley, freshmen, Canton, and his friend Michael O'Flarity came on stage. Ventriloquists don't usually get the laughs, but this one did with comments as, "To me, 007 is not a spy but a q.p. average," and "The thing I like best about Bond is he always gets his women—that's a lot more than you can say for the fraternities around here."

WHC Holds Public Trial

The Women's Honor Council, in their first open trial of the year, Thursday night, gave a junior an official reprimand for being two hours and 35 minutes late getting back to her dorm last Sunday morning. The offense was a violation of the campus code and the campus wide late permission of 2 a.m. for Saturday night. The coed reported she had unintentionally fallen asleep in an apartment Sunday morning and didn't wake up until 4 a.m. She checked in the dorm at 4:35 a.m.

- O'Toole, Powell Debate -

German University students generally have their own room. This is Gerhard's only real complaint about living in a dormitory (He is a "Maverick House" resident). In Germany there are few restrictions on the German students; they may or may not attend class as they please. But at the end of their senior year the German student must take a week - long test, including both oral and written work. Each senior also submits government should be one to do it." In his program on academics, Powell said a curriculum evaluation should be made furthering the course evaluations conducted in the past. He said a general business course should be offered without having to go through the accounting department. Powell also advocated a home-making course for girls. "It's entirely possible," he said, "for a girl to graduate from college without knowing how to fry an egg."

each dollar student government gives to the project, the administration will give two. O'Toole said, "We must get the role of higher education across to the people of the state." Wilson said his program as vice president would involve an active student government in developing the University, which he termed "one of the greatest resources North Carolina has."

body in reporting and interpreting the events of the campus. Banov outlined a four-beat system for covering campus news. He stressed the importance of the editor taking a stand on campus issues. Thomas said a "constructive editorial policy with less venom and more insight is needed." He said an open-minded policy is essential. He also advocated better sports coverage and more extensive campus coverage. Linville said a more efficient staff is necessary and outlined several phases of student affairs which would be covered extensively by the DTH.

Bawden Named Dentistry Dean

Dr. James W. Bawden, a member of the dental faculty here since 1961, was appointed yesterday as dean of the University of North Carolina School of Dentistry. University trustees made the appointment effective July 1. Dr. Bawden becomes the second dean of the school. Dr. John C. Brauer, who came here as the first dean when the school was established in 1950 has resigned to return to teaching. He will continue as professor of pedodontics after a year's leave of absence beginning in July. He is a professor of children's dentistry, assistant dean and coordinator of dental research at the dental school here. In addition to his teaching and administrative duties since joining the UNC dental faculty, Dr. Bawden has been the principal investigator for a research study of the mechanisms by which a mother transfers calcium, flouride and other materials to her baby during pregnancy. Pregnant sheep and smaller laboratory animals are being used for the study.

He announced plans for a lobby group at the state legislature to get more money for residence halls. He said the room rent is increasing rapidly and that more funds should be allotted by the state for residence halls. Powell said the University Book Exchange should also be eliminated because of the large profits it makes. He also advocated adding a Carolina magazine to the publications here. O'Toole advocated better facilities in residence halls, a better liaison between the administration and the IFC, private telephone privileges for women, a graduate student center, a shuttle bus system from south campus to the main campus, and a high-rise parking facility. He also said he would like to see the campus radio issue return. "I'm willing to work for it again," he said. O'Toole said the size of the Carolina Forum should be reduced too. He said the shuttle bus proposal is being discussed by the administration and for
