Campus Visitation Rules

Liberal Policy Spreading

By ALAN BANOV Special to the DTH (Ed. note: In the first part of this four - part series on visitation rules, this member of the Honor System Commission describes the rules at Carolina, comparing them with other schools'. Here he continues his study of "parietal" privileges on other campus-

Student movements for liberalizing vistation rules are spreading all over the coun-

Duke students, who do more than cheer basketball teams, p.m. recently persuaded their administration to reform their visitation privileges.

After conducting three successful open house experiments this year, the Men's Student Government Association effected two major innovations to previous "open - open " house regulations:

1. Living groups may hold open houses on any weekend, subject to their discretion and preference.

2. The stipulation requiring the presence of chaperones has been eliminated from open house policy (due to the inconvenience both to sudents and adults in obtaining chaperones). (from the Duke Chronicle)

Previous rules allowed open houses from 2 to 5 p.m. Satlurday, but doors were to be left open, and the open house registered with the dean.

MORE FREEDOM

Duke's dean asserted, "The responsible way in which the men's living groups have plan-ned these Saturday afternoons leads us to believe that more freedom can now be given to the Host Committees of the residences and to representaatives of the IFC, Association of Independent Houses, and Freshman house for the supervision of these events."

Dartmouth, in New Hamp shire, where all students seem to do is ski and drink, has had perhaps the most liberal rules studied.

In dormitories 68 hours of visitation are permitteed each week, divided thusly: 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. from Sunday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 12 midnight on Saturday. Fraternities are allowed 93 hours of "parietals" each week, from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. from Sunday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 1 a.m. on Saturday.

There are no liquor regulations or "open door" policies. The University of Pennsylanother Ivy League allows dormitories 29 school, hours of visitation: from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Fridays, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturdays, and 11 alm. to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

FRATERNITY HOURS

Fraternities may have women visit the men's rooms from 12 noon to 7 p.m. from Sunday through Thursday, from 12 non to 8p.m. on Friday, and from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturdays, for a total of 52 hours.

Harvard allows women visitors in men's dormitory rooms on Monday through Thursday from 4 to 8 p.m. On weekends hours are 12 to 12 on Fridays and Saturdays, and 12 to 8 p.m. on Sundays. A woman entering men's houses must sign a "parietal mic - age "bull sessions" and book" in the lobbies, indicat- even a special program for ing her name, her school, her the wives.

date's name, the time checked ways to Carolina's high - rise in and time checked out. The occasional violations of these rules generally result in expulsion, according to a student there. But the rules are so liberal that no student wants to jeopardize removal of such privileges or has any need to violate them.

At Radcliffe, the women's counterpart of Harvard, women may entertain male guests in their rooms up to 25 hours per week, which are determined by each house and must range etween 12 noon and 10

OPEN DOORS

Columbia University's tall Carman Hall is similar in some dormitories: Suites containing two rooms open onto indoor halls. The suite doors are selflocking, so matchbooks, "Fanny Hill," or other obstructions are required to keep them ajar, although men may lock their individual rooms' doors. Rules there are similar to Harvard's. At Douglass, New Jersey's state women's college, relatives are allowed in girls rooms from 2 to 5 every Sunday afternoon. Girls may take a vote several times a year to determine which weekends they want "open - open - house." This is on a Saturday afternoon, when men are allowed in the rooms from 2 to 5 p.m.

Even schools farther south have more liberal rules than UNC's. At Goucher College, a girls' school outside Baltimore, women's rooms are "inbounds" for men to visit on Sundays from 2 to 5 p.m. Hollins College in Virginia allows men to visit women's rooms during two formal weekends each year, but they must keep the doors open and their feet on the floor. Students at the University of Virginia have recently proposed new rules to allow female guests to be entertained in students' rooms at certain times and under certain regulations. Their proposals will be discussed in the next part of this four - part series.

Physicists Meeting In Area

Chapel Hill and Durham are bulging with physicists this week attending one of the biggest meetings ever held in the Research Triangle area.

Over 1,800 members of the American Physical Society are jamming into hotels, motels, homes and dorms at both Duke University and the University here for the annual meeting now being held at Duke in co - operation with UNC and the Army Research

Almost 700 scientific papers will be delivered by physicists from Los Angeles to Boston, specializing in high - polymer, solid state and chemical phy-

This meeting was held once before in Durham - Chapel Hill in 1953.

"We asked to bring it here again," said Dr. Eugen Merzbacher, chairman of the UNC physics department and one of the members of the organizing committee for the meeting, "because the last meeting did the Triangle area so much good.

"At the many meetings the society has, North Carolina is more frequently mentioned now as a place of scientific and industrial competence," he said.

The meeting began on Monday and will continue through Thursday with conference, ato-

Tuesday night there was also a banquet which featured Harry Golden, author of Only In America, as speaker. With these physicists scattered throughout Durham, Chapel Hill and even Raleigh, one of the biggest obstacles to a smoothly run meeting is transportation. This problem went to Sherwood Githens, an ex-physicist i nthe School of Education at Duke. "He has organized the equivalent of a Washington, D. C. Transit Bureau," said Dr. Merzbacher, "and with his schedule anyone should be able to find any meeting at any time."

Dr. Githens was a little less excited about his schedule. "I just hope it works" he said. Besides an intricate bus service, there are several UNC graduate students who are operating a taxi service between Duke and UNC.

Chairman of the meeting committee is Henry A. Fairbank of Duke. Other committee members are Dr. Merzbacher, Dr. Githens, Marvin Silver of UNC and the Army Research office, Horst Meyer of Duke, Robert Lontz of Duke and the Army Research Office, and Lawrence Slifkin of Nine papers will be presented by UNC physicists.
