Newspaper Strike | ABC Recommends Uniform | Appears Certain | Enforcement Of Liquor Law

By REESE HART Associated Press Writer

Raleigh - The North Carolina Alcoholic Beverage Control Board recommended Friday that all law enforcement officers in the state's legally wet counties abide by a judge's ruling permitting "Brown-bagging" and prviate liquor clubs.

Chairman Clawson Williams Jr. told the board this should be done pending an appeal to the State Supreme Court on the legality of North Carolina's American authorities announced the loss of a Navy A6 Intruder from the carrier Kitty Hawk in a raid Thursday. It was the 215th plane reported lost in the North since the opening of the aerial campaign Feb. 7, 1965.

Accompanying pilots said the twin-jet attack bomber burst into a bright flash after it was hit. It was not disclosed whether the hit was by conventional antiaircraft fire or by a missile. Briefing officers are under instructions now to withhold such information. The Intruder's pilot and his radar observed are listed as missing.

The targets of the Navy raids, staged from the Kitty Hawk and the Ticonderoga, in -cluded the Hai Yen naval base, eight miles northeast of Vihn. They also pounded an army supply area at Vinh and a storage zone between that city and Dong Hoi, 40 miles north of the border. Five miles south of the border, U. S. B52 jet bombers blasted a suspected Commununist concentration point. Thi sappeared to be part of a continuing campaign to disrupt the reported buildup of Red forces in South Viet Nam's northernmost provinces. Vietnamese marines followed up without luck a divebombing attack by U. S. planes the area, eluded the marines. A rain of steel from the air helped to nail down the Viet Cong in the Quang Ngai sector Battle, U. S. Marines met a blaze of automatic weapons fire at the villages of Binh Bac and Chau Nhai, but took both and pushed on eastward to help close the net.

As outlined by briefing officers here:

Artillery opened up on the Communists at 4 a.m. Thurs-U. S. Planes joined in the bombardment at dawn. Then the American Marines and the Vietnamese - marines and paratroopers - went in, many by helicopter. They landed almost on top of the Communists. Additional American Marines moved in late in the day as a block force. The alies have collected more than 100 enemy weapons, including 14 of crew-manned types such as recoilless rifles and heavy machine guns.
