Faculty Council Will Consider American Studies Curriculum

By ANDY MYERS
DTH Staff Writer

A new curriculum designed to investigate the relations between various aspects of American culture is currently being planned by the College of Arts and Sciences.

The program, called American Studies, will be presented to the Faculty Council May 20 for consideration. If approved, the new degree will be offered to undergraduates beginning next fall.

Head of the program, and now chairman of the special committee planning the curriculum, is Dr. Richard C. Lyon of the English Department.

Lyon said yesterday that the program is "still in the planning stage," and is subject to the consideration of the Faculty Council.

American Studies degrees, a fairly recent addition to American college programs, were first offered at the University of Minnesota after World War Two.

The curriculum at UNC would include courses in various departments which relate to the American culture, civilization, background, and character.

Courses in English, history, economics, music, philosophy, political science, religion, art, anthropology, geography, dramatic arts, education, journalism, sociology, city planning, and radio, television and motion pictures have all been proposed to be included in the degree requirements.

Lyon, who holds a Ph.D. in American Studies from Minnesota, stressed "this is not a superpatriot program as some people think." He said a more descriptive term for the program would be "interdisciplinary" in that it would force the student to relate a diverse range of knowledge to obtain an overview of the American culture.

"The student must make a synthesis," Lyon said. "He may be asked to consider the bearing of a novel and its relevance in American politics." The program here would be open to undergraduates who have not yet reached their second semester sophomore year, Lyon continued.

"This would leave time to introduce the student to the assumptions and methods of American Studies as early as possible in his college career," he said.

About 70 American colleges and universities now have American Studies programs. Lyon cited those at Amherst, Yale, Harvard, and Princeton as the most outstanding.

The program would not be attached to any one department, Lyon said, although he would be advisor to the American Studies majors.

At least two new courses would be created for the new curriculum. The first, a sophomore course, would be an introduction of American Studies. The second would be open to seniors, and would be a seminar to rotate among the participating departments from year to year.

"This is not an honors program," Lyon said, "but majors will be encouraged to continue a topic on which they will elect to concentrate during the seminar."

Lyon said that business and the teaching profession are looking for students with "this broad kind of background."

He said the program would offer "a grounding in various aspects of American life and thought, and demands of (the student) that he learns the techniques of relating these

A fund drive for the Speaker Ban suit is expected to reach $1500, Dr. Joseph Spraley, chairman of the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors said yesterday.

Spraley said the drive will end with the end of this semester. He declined to say how much has been collected so far.

Baddour Named New YDC Head

Phil Baddour, a law student from Goldsboro, was elected president of the UNC Young Democratic Club Wednesday night.

In his acceptance speech, Baddour outlined the purpose of the college YDC as being "the promotion of the Democratic Party and its ideals and principles to the student community and as providing an opportunity for its students to learn about and participate in the political process."

He promised to hold regular monthly meetings and to send monthly newsletters to all members. He also plans a series of informal dinner meetings with people who are "well-informed" on the political scene.

Baddour stressed an intense effort to activate the many undergraduates who have shown interest in YDC work.

Also elected were Henry Babb, Ahsokie, graduate vice president; Don Wilson, Birmingham, Ala., undergraduate vice president; Jerry Rutledge, Germantown, secretary; and Martin Lancaster, Goldsboro, treasurer.

Hodges Gets AG Position

By LYTT STAMPS
DTH Staff Writer

Frank Hodges received approval of Student Legislature last night as attorney general.

The vote was 25-23. George Isherwood broke from his fellow University Party legislators to vote in favor of Hodges's appointment. Tommy Cannon (UP) abstained and Frank Longest (SP) was absent.

Other legislators voted with their party - SP in favor of the appointment and UP opposed.

Rules were suspended so that the appointment could be considered before other business came before the body.

The legislature debated over an hour before the vote was taken. Two times there was an attempt made to close debate before it finally concluded.

In the Ways and Means Committee meeting Wednesday night, the vote was 43 against the Hodges appointment. That vote followed straight party lines.

Eric Van Loon (SP), a member of the committee, told the committee Hodges had demonstrated his competency to hold the position. He said that even though Hodges had not been on the attorney general's staff he has defended more cases than some members of the staff.

He said Hodges does know the present staff and can work with them.

Bob Sheppard (UP) said he thought the committee should consider Attorney General John Ingram's objection to Hodges.

Get Set For Jubilee Come Rain Or Shine

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

If you've got your date, got your liquor and got your umbrella, you should be just about ready to join in Jubilee festivities today in Polk Place.

"Increasing cloudiness . . . and thundershowers" were predicted by the weatherman, and if such a catastrophe should occur, the Bitter End Singers will stage their show in Carmichael Auditorium tonight at 8, and the Tassles will do their rocking in the Tin Can.

The final decision on the location will be made this morning and signs will be posted at Polk Place to notify everyone. The announcement will also be broadcast over local and nearby radio stations.

If the weather does clear up, tonight's concert will be held in Polk Place as planned, and the dance will be held in the parking lot between Bynum Hall and Caldwell Hall.

"Charade" starring Audrey Hepburn and Cary Grant will be shown in Carroll Hall tonight at 6, 8 and 10 p.m.

Howard Henry, director of Graham Memorial, said, "The policy on drinking will be the same as last year. We will ask people who come with 'containers' to check them at the gate until they leave. We're not trying to haul a lot of people to jail over the matter."

The hidden pocket flask has been a very popular item among students recently. Soft drinks will be sold at all Jubilee performances by the Senior Class.

Activities will begin early tomorrow morning just before classes in the form of a hangover. This should be over before the afternoon concert scheduled to begin at 3 p.m.

A new announcement will be made tomorrow morning concerning the locations for tomorrow's Jubilee activities.

The concert tomorrow will feature David, della Rosa and Brooks, and Jay and the Americans.

Honor System Week-Fourth In A Series

Long: 'Our Honor System Worst - - Except For Others'

By WILLIAM G. LONG
UNC Dean of Men

Of all the types of University discipline the Honor System is the worst—except for all the others! This phrase of Churchill's statement about democracy expresses the frustrating superiority of the system under which our academic community lives. Given all of its weaknesses, it is better than its alternatives.

Debunking the Honor System is a popular pastime. Some people scoff at its idealism; others are cynical about its practicability; many categorically state it doesn't work.

These points of view make no sense to me. They are based upon certain misconceptions and misunderstandings about the Honor System.

If the Honor System is intended to reflect life as it is, then, of course, it is inadequate. But since when did the University give up its mandate to teach a higher and better way. Have ideals no place in the academic community? My answer is that they do.

The truly educated man is a self-disciplined person. There is no quality more basic to the pursuit of truth. What better way is there to make a man trustworthy than to treat him as though he is worthy of trust. This the Honor System does.

It presents us all with an ideal of honor and integrity—an ideal against which we may evaluate our actual performance.

Again, if the Honor System is a "student honor system," as I have heard faculty and students label it, it is of in-

At Hirt and his band will begin their performance at 7 p.m. and will be followed at 9 by a combo party featuring Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs.

The dance will be over at midnight and all women students have late hours extended until 2 a.m.

Many students have expressed concern over the small amount of time that has been allowed between the afternoon and evening performances tomorrow in order to eat dinner.

Henry said, "We realize this two-hour break does compress the supper hour, but this should increase the number of people eating after the concert."

"The main reason for the time schedule is the other parties being held after the evening shows by fraternities and residence halls."

Most of the popular local restaurants are not making reservations for this weekend. See JUBILEE On Page 4

40 Faculty Members Listen As Yugoslav Diplomat Speaks

By BILL AMLONG
DTH Staff Writer

A Communist speaker came to this University Wednesday night, addressed a faculty group and left.

Quietly Cvijeto Job, press and cultural attache to the Yugoslavian Embassy in Washington, D. C., spoke to about 40 persons in the faculty lounge of Morehead Planetarium.

The most striking thing about the evening was the lack of fanfare that attended it.

The crowd - mostly faculty members and their wives - less than half-filled the second-story room upon whose walls hang pictures of former presidents of this University.

Notably absent were the student protestor - types who flocked to hear the sidewalk speech of Marxist Theoretician Herber Aptheker, who was banned from this campus under the provisions of the Speaker Ban Law.

The gist of Job's speech was that the state really is withering away under Yugoslavian Communism - just like Karl Marx said it should.

Yugoslavia, he said, is not an "Iron Curtain" country - "and never has been since World War II."

"We've pledged ourselves to eventually do away with the Communist Party and are presently doing so," he said.

"In the last 10 years," he said, "the party has been dislodged 60 or 70 percent."

in its universities, very few religious freedoms, and a political climate that is conducive to dissent and debate.

Marshall Tito, however, is "sacrosanct," Job said. To Yugoslavia, Tito is "Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and FDR altogether," he said.

Except for Tito, though, all high government officials have a maximum tenure of four years. This is intended to prevent too great concentrations of power in individuals, Job explained.

Elections are also being liberalized, he said.

"We had tight-fisted, absolute power in Yugoslavia," Job said. "And we dislodged it."

Job said that Americans labor under a misconception about the need for more than one party in a nation. After World War II, he said, Yugoslavia decided against a multi-party system.

"It would lead us, as it had before, into disaster," he said.
