

Mix The Sun, Water, Sex; And Stir Over To Kessing

By MONICA KIVEL

The next really hot sultry afternoon, lay down that textbook or lab report. Close your eyes and visualize the cool blueness of water lapping over the edges of a swimming pool. Imagine the splashing chlorinated water. If you're a boy, add girls in bathing suits. If you're a girl, think about those tanned lifeguards. Not surprisingly, you may find yourself on the way to Kessing Pool.

Located behind Woolen Gymnasium, Kessing Pool opened June 10 to students and personnel. Students are admitted with I. D. cards; University personnel and their families are admitted with privilege cards. Privilege cards are available to staff members for $6 for any person over 16 and $4 for those under 16. The cards are sold at Bynum Hall.

Kessing is open seven days a week. The hours are noon to 6 p.m. and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on weekdays; noon to 6 p.m. Saturday; and 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Children are not allowed in the pool from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

At least three lifeguards are on duty at all times and during the children's hour from noon to 1 p.m. Monday through Saturday, four lifeguards are on duty.

The regulations say all persons with long hair are required to wear bathing caps. The rule applies to both sexes.

Psyc School Needs Help In Experiments

The Psychology Department of the University is looking for student volunteers for its experimental programs.

To conduct experiments in the past, the department relied largely on students from the psychology 26 classes, but these have proved insufficient.

According to Dr. John Schopler at least five different studies are now being conducted, each requiring from 70 to 100 participants. "We're interested in trying to solve our summer subject shortage by seeing whether the general student population would be willing to participate," Schopler said.

Typical studies involving college students now being conducted by the department include bargaining and sequential decision making experiments. Often in the latter, a volunteer may find himself matching wits with a computer.

Any student interested in participating may contact Miss Linda Edwards in 102 New West, or call 933-2056.
