Quincy To Leave Sports Info Slot; Williams Selected

Robert G. (Bob) Quincy, Sports Information Director here at the University for the past four years, had resigned his post to take the position of Sports Director of television station WBTV in Charlotte.

Replacing him will be veteran sportswriter Jack Williams currently with The News and Observer in Raleigh. Williams has been in the newspaper business for the past 19 years. He began his career in 1946 with the Durham Morning Herald.

"I have wanted to be the Sports Information Director at UNC for a long time," Williams said. "It is a very important step up for me. I used to work for Jack Wade when he was the sports information director at Carolina."

Quincy, a native of Panther, W. Va., said his new post "is financially better for me—it is a heck of a good salary—and it will offer a good future for me. I hate to leave Chapel Hill. I gave four years of my life to the University."

C. P. (Chuck) Erickson, UNC Athletic Director, said, "We hate to see Bob go, but it is a big step up the ladder of success for him. He is one of the finest sports information directors we have ever had, his energy is endless."

Erickson in announcing Williams appointment to the post yesterday said, "The screening committee feels Jack has an exceptionally good background for the job. We regard our information department as a productive one, and we know that under Williams it will be maintained as such."

Larry Harding, sales, promotion, and publicity manager of WBTV said, "We think without a doubt that Mr. Quincy is the most available and knowledgeable sports figure to fill the position."

Quincy, former sports editor of The Charlotte News and a World War II bomber pilot with the Air Corps, will assume his new duties within a month or so.

Quincy took the position of SID at Carolina in July of 1962, handling the post formerly held by Jake Wade, who died of a heart attack.

Quincy came to UNC after his graduation from Oak Ridge Military Institute in 1940, but his education was interrupted by the war. He returned after serving with the Air Corps and obtained an A. B. degree in Journalism in 1946.

Quincy is past president of the Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Association and Sally League Sportswriters Association.

Two Teenage Girls Admit Setting Fires

By DON CAMPBELL

Two teenage girls, ages 14 and 15, turned themselves in to Chapel Hill Police last week and confessed that they had started two fires in the area.

The girls admitted to starting the fire which destroyed the H. H. Patterson Building on July 12 and the small fire in the rubble of the old elementary school July 13.

Police Chief William D. Blake said Monday that the girls will be turned over to the Clerk of Superior court, who handles juvenile offenders. The Clerk will assign a social worker to study the case.

The girls will be charged with unlawful burning, Blake said.

The two girls, whose names were not made public, told Blake that one of them stuffed paper between the walls at the back of the structure and dropped matches into the gap. The paper failed to ignite at first, then the other girl tried and was successful. A 15-year-old boy was with the girls, but took no part in setting the blaze.

After the fire was set, the three left the scene, but returned about 15 minutes later and found the fire rapidly spreading.

They then attempted to put out the fire but were unsuccessful. The three arranged, through an adult they had contacted, to confess to Blake. The adult's name was also withheld.

The two girls also admitted setting a small fire in the rubble of the old elementary school on West Franklin Street which is now being torn down.

The fire, which occurred about 9:30 p.m. on Wednesday, July 13, was put out in two or three minutes.

The Patterson fire was the second to strike that building in six weeks. A fire on May 6 did an estimated $100,000 damage to the building which formerly housed Kemp's Record Shop and Court's Drug Co.

The building was supposed to have been torn down by July 10, but a 30-day extension had been granted to allow for insurance adjustments.

Late last week the charred remains were knocked down and yesterday workmen began clearing away the debris.

Chapel Hill Fire Chief G. S. Baldwin said Monday, "We suspected arson the minute we saw the fire, but couldn't find any evidence." "Fires like that don't just start unless there is combustible material around."

"It was also evident that the school fire didn't start by itself," he added.

According to Baldwin, damage to the Dairy Bar, which was separated from Kemp's by only a three foot alley, has not been determined yet. The outer wall of the Dairy Bar which was cracked, has to be checked by engineers.

Man And Convict Who Escaped Hospital Here Last Week Captured In Virginia

Aubrey Tucker, the ex-inmate of Central Prison who freed a convict from his guard in a Memorial Hospital parking lot last Thursday, was bound over to Superior Court under a $10,000 bond in a preliminary hearing in Chapel Hill Tuesday.

Tucker, 35, disarmed Sgt. John W. Godwin of Central Prison when he parked at the hospital after bringing Karl Kologiski, 40, a convict, here for treatment of arthritis.

Kologiski was serving a life sentence for murder.

After Tucker had disarmed Godwin he freed Kologiski and forced Godwin to drive to a wooded area six miles west of Chapel Hill. There Godwin was handcuffed to a tree and gagged. He was later released unharmed by sheriff's deputies after he had attracted the attention of some nearby workmen.

Kologiski and Tucker drove the prison car back to the Hospital and fled in Tucker's car.

A widespread manhunt was started when the escape was discovered about 2 p.m.

Hampton, Va. police captured Kologiski and Tucker about 10 a.m. Friday at a fishing pier in Hampton. Neither of the two resisted arrest.

Tucker was brought back to Orange County Jail by Chapel Hill Detective Sgt. Howard Pendergraph and two prison officials.

Kologiski refused to waive extradition from Virginia, and legal proceedings are underway for his return to North Carolina.

Tucker has been charged by Chapel Hill police with kidnapping, armed robbery of $8 from Godwin, aiding in an escape and larceny of an automobile.

At the Tuesday hearing, Tucker, who had no attorney, told Judge L. J. Phipps that he didn't want to say anything until legal counsel was obtained.

Tucker will be tried in the Superior Court term which begins August 8.

G. M. Calendar Listing Wrong

The second session summer school calendar published by Graham Memorial Student Union incorrectly lists three dates for Saturday classes.

There will only be one day of Saturday classes this session, Saturday, July 23.

The incorrect calendar says there will also be Saturday classes Aug. 13 and 20.
