A poll of almost 250 University students here shows that they favor pursuing the war in Vietnam more vigorously.

More than half of those polled — 53 per cent — disapproved of the way President Johnson was handling the situation in Vietnam.

Nationally, the June Gallup poll showed that 37 per cent of those polled disapproved of the war's handling.

Answers to other questions indicated that the disapproval was based on a desire to see a more aggressive U. S. policy. Only 18 per cent favored total withdrawal of troops, and 57 per cent favored carrying the war into North Vietnam.

There was wide agreement — 80 per cent — that free elections in the country are not possible now, and that college students ought to be deferred from military service until they finished school.

Other questions concerning the draft drew more diverse reactions.

About 45.9 per cent thought that young men of draft age should have the right to say when and where they would serve in the military, and 41 per cent thought that women should be subject to the draft also. About one-fourth of those polled were girls.

A breakdown on the "are you in favor of carrying the war into North Vietnam" question shows that students from North Carolina (63 per cent) favor escalation more than do those from out of state (41 per cent).

More men than women students appeared to be "hawks," with 63 per cent of the males approving of carrying the war to the north, and 54 per cent of the females disapproving.

Graduate students disapproved of expansion most — 54 per cent — while freshmen approved most — 82 per cent.

The political breakdown of those who wanted to step up the fighting was: Republicans 78 per cent; Democrats, 48 per cent; and independents, 51 per cent.

This is the analysis of those who approve of the way the war is being handled: North Carolinians, 49 per cent; out-of-state, 39 per cent; males, 45 per cent; females, 52 per cent; freshmen, 41 per cent; sophomores, 51 per cent; juniors, 37 per cent; seniors, 48 per cent; graduate students, 49 per cent; Democrats, 60 per cent; Republicans, 40 per cent, and independents, 31 per cent.

The poll was conducted about three weeks ago by Gregory Davis, a senior from Washington, D. C., as a project for Dr. Wayne Danielson, dean of the School of Journalism. Results were tabulated by IBM computer.

The 248 students polled approximated a cross-section of the summer school student body.

Poll Says Students Want More War

UNC Research To Probe Teamwork

Teamwork, an illusive thing that can make an organization function smoothly, will be studied in local health departments by a research team from the UNC School of Public Health.

A two-year federal grant of about $62,000 has been approved to help scrutinize the internal workings of local health departments.

Dr. Frances McConnell, project director, said the study will attempt, in particular, to examine the patterns of cooperation between the many different professions which form the "work organization" of local health departments.

She said that no effort will be made to establish any general standards for judging the quality of the actual cooperation in health departments.
