AG Clarifies Campus Code On Posters

Men's Attorney General Frank Hodges yesterday sought to "clear up a technicality" in the matter of destruction of campaign posters.

Tuesday's DTH had reported that according to the administrative chairman of the Elections Board, destruction of campaign posters is a campus code offense.

"There are no specific campus or honor code laws dealing with this matter, neither are there any election laws calling destruction of posters an offense," Hodges said.

Hodges said that if a candidate saw someone destroying a poster, he could bring charges against him, otherwise there would be no legal action that the Attorney General's office could take.

Charges were brought against a student for poster destruction last year, Hodges said, but it was not considered a campus code offense.

The student was given an official reprimand but was not otherwise charged because it was determined that the student had not acted with malicious intent or from partisan motivation.

"Each case is decided individually in matters such as this," Hodges said.

Pentagon Sources Predict Viet Nam Troop Build-Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon sources predicted Tuesday a stepup in the flow of American troops to Viet Nam in the next few weeks which will elevate U. S. strength in the country to a year-end total of about 382,000.

This is 46,000 — or roughly the equivalent of an army division and its supporting elements — above the present force level in Viet Nam.

It is an open secret at the pentagon that the next major deployment of troops to the war is likely to involve elements of the Ninth Infantry Division based at Fort Riley, Kan.

Defense officials dismissed any suggestion the administration is deliberately holding off ordering additional fighting men to Viet Nam until after next week's elections.

They pointed out that the Ninth Division, activated last year, began training only in January and was not scheduled to be ready for action until late this year. The outfit is virtually combat-ready now.

By official figures there are now 336,000 men in Viet Nam, not counting about 50,000 seamen offshore in vessels of the Seventh Fleet. This compares with 148,300 in South Viet Nam a year ago and with 327,000 in-country troops in Korea at the peak of the conflict. Sources also foresaw a continuing increase in the U. S. commitment to the war after the first of the year to well beyond 400,000.

Exactly how much higher the buildup will go is now under consideration in the defense department. In the final analysis the decision hinges on what military officials believe will be needed to overcome the communists in Southeast Asia.

But manpower increases also are necessarily linked to budgetary planning, and the services are now in the process of laying out their money needs.

With Viet Nam demands growing, over all U. S. military strength has continued to swell beyond planned levels.

In fact, the announced goal of 3,093,000 men in the Armed Forces by mid-1967 was reached a full year ahead of time.

Worldwide strength now stands at 3,228,300 or 135,000 above planned totals. Each of the services is well above projected strength.

The Army with the biggest share at 1,310,100 is turning out 45,000 soldiers a month at its training centers. Beyond meeting replacement needs, the Army is getting a net gain of about 25,000 men a month with no end in sight for this rate of growth.

This could mean the Army will hit the 1.5 million mark next spring if the current pace continues, but officials are quick to point out that changing conditions could bring a slowdown.

At this point, the army is 76,450 men above the level it was due to reach next year. Navy strength is 739,902, of 12,000 over its projected level. The air force stands at 897,672, up 44,300. And Marine strength totals 290,650, about 1,500 higher than originally projected by the end of this fiscal year.

Spokesmen for the services say they are unable to predict what future growth will be.

The expansion of the military has, of course, been accompanied by corresponding increases in the draft.

During the past six months, draft calls have averaged over 34,000. October's was 49,300, the highest manpower request since Korea.

The November call originally was set at 43,700 but was cut by 6,100 because more men volunteered for duty than was expected.

Only 12,100 men are being sought for December but the Pentagon has said it expects draft calls to bounce back to around 33,000 in January. The December call is low because of Christmas. No men will be inducted during the last two weeks of the month.

All-Asian Conference Requested

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines, following up the Manila summit meeting on Viet Nam, is pushing ahead with plans for an all-Asian peace conference, Secretary-General U Thant was told today.

"It's very much alive," Ambassador Salvador P. Lopez of the Philippines said after a 20-minute meeting with Thant.

He gave Thant a first-hand report on the Manila meeting and told him of Marcos' plans for the future. Thant expressed interest, Lopez told a newsman.

Burma has agreed to be the host country for the conference, the ambassador said. But he added there had been no discussion of dates yet and there is no definite list of the countries that will take part.

He expressed the hope that both Thant and Abdul Rahman Pazhwak of Afghanistan, president of the General Assembly, could attend the conference and suggested they might serve as mediators.

Mother Discovers Lost Daughters Under Masks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Don't you know these girls?" asked the woman leading two tiny trick-or-treaters to Mrs. Roger Lee Williams' door.

"No," replied Mrs. Williams, 31, whose two little girls and banker husband disappeared last July at the same time $536,000 vanished from a bank's vault.

"Are you sure?" the woman persisted.

"Are these my daughters? Is this a Halloween prank?" asked Mrs. Williams.

She took the masks off the two girls — and burst into tears.

Before her were her missing daughters, Kelley, 4, and Rochelle, 5. Joining in the joyful weeping were Mrs. Williams' two other children, Ricky, 10, and Sharilyn, 12, who have been with her right along.

Authorities have conducted a nationwide hunt for Williams, 27, since he disappeared July 14. He was assistant cashier of a Security-First National Bank office in nearby Riverside. Coinciding with his absence, authorities said, was the disappearance from the vault of a suburban Fontana branch of the bank of $197,000 in cash, $158,900 in travelers' checks and $180,000 in blank money orders. Williams was charged with bank larceny.

Authorities said a goateed man checked in at a motel three blocks from the Williams home last night and hired a baby sitter. He told her to take the girls trick-or-treating and wind up at their home.

Steven Schmitt, manager of the motel, said today that he saw a man drive off shortly afterward in a white car, leaving a trailer behind.

"He left a hell of a lot of money in that room," added Schmitt. He refused to say how much.

Schmitt said he made a reservation for the man and two girls yesterday.

The motel manager said the FBI interviewed him last night and again today. Agents talked to the girls last night.

The man had black hair and a goatee, he said. Williams is blonde. His wife said the girls told authorities their father had dyed his hair.

At a news conference today in the modest white frame, Williams home, Mrs. Williams said the girls told her Williams became angry when he saw photos of the girls in newspapers after their disappearance.

"I guess he thought he had destroyed all the pictures," she said. "But I had a couple of negatives."

Mrs. Williams said she filed for divorce a month ago.

"Would you take your husband back?" a newsman asked her.

"I don't know," she replied. "Do you love him?"

"I don't think I could ever trust him again."

Independents Bid For Class Offices

Two students announced yesterday that they are independent candidates for sophomore class office.

Frank Serra is running for sophomore class president and Olin Belsinger is running for sophomore class vice president.

"The reason we are running," they said in a joint statement, "is as independents we will not be responsible to a political group and therefore we'll be freer to follow the wishes of our constituents."

"We also feel that we are exhibiting greater interest in the office and the class, rather than being sponsored by a party."

Serra, from Oyster Bay, N. Y., was president of his high school student body and was a member of last year's freshman finance committee.

Belsinger, from Huntington Valley, Pa., was secretary of the senior class at Germantown Academy and a member of the student council.

Girls Prepare For Prowler

Chapel Hill Police continued to question subjects in an investigation of two appearances by prowlers in women's bedrooms during the past week.

The first incident took place at 5 a.m. Thursday in Winston Dormitory and the second at the Tri-Delt Sorority House at 4:30 a.m. Sunday.

In both cases the intruder fled after coeds saw him. Warnings have been circulated to all house mothers to take extra precautions.

Sympathy should be extended to the prowler if he happens to wander up to one hall of a certain woman's dorm. The girls there are ready for him.

After a round of ghost stories and tales about past murders at Chapel Hill had put them in the proper mood, the girls kept an all-night vigil Monday night.

Before securely locking themselves in and closing the windows, which will not lock, the coeds turned "vigilante" and made a thorough search of all storage rooms, closets, washing machines, etc.

Then they settled down to wait for the dawn — daylight.

Ordinarily, they only left the room in pairs, but one brave coed ventured outside her room once during the night — armed with a pair of scissors in each hand.

The tension was increasing as the time of the prowler's previous excursions drew near, when suddenly a scream was heard.

The "nightwatchmen" ran in the direction of the scream to find themselves in combat with the largest cockroach yet found in the dorm. If the prowler had been around at that time, the ensuing screams probably made him think someone else had beaten him at his own game, and that he'd better try another night.

As far as the girls are concerned, the sooner the police solve the case the better. If the prowler isn't caught soon, they will be too tired to even scream by the time he finally comes around.

Briefs

Student Aid

The Student Aid Office needs students who would like to work part time reading to blind students or caring for students and townspeople who are physically incapacitated.

Call 933-2193 or come by 2 Hanes Hall and apply with Mr. Geer.

Absentee Ballots

A written request for an absentee ballot must be made to the Election Board prior to 5 p.m. six days before campus elections except when a student has to leave the campus on emergency notice.

The written request must be made individually and must include reasons for the absence from campus. It must include the student's campus address as well as the address during the absence from campus. Class should be specified.

Absentee ballots must be returned to the Elections Board in a sealed envelope before the polls close on election day.
