

State's Biedenbach Through

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State's basketball team, riddled by graduation last June, suffered a big blow Monday with the announcement Capt. Eddie Biedenbach will be out for the season because of an injury.

Biedenbach, 6-1, 175-pound senior of Pittsburgh, Pa., was injured in practice about 10 days ago when he went in for a layup and fell to the floor. The back injury did not respond to treatment and he was hospitalized last Thursday. Coach Norman Sloan said Biedenbach had suffered a ruptured disc. It is not known whether he will undergo an operation.

"It's a big disappointment to Eddie and a terrific blow to us," said Sloan.

"M" IS FOR THE MANY THINGS YOU'LL TEACH HER

Nobody will dispute—surely not I—that raising children is a task which requires full time and awesome skills. Nonetheless, a recent nationwide survey has revealed a startling fact: mothers who go back to work after their children are safely through the early years are notably happier, better adjusted, and more fulfilled than mothers who simply remain housewives. Moreover—and mark this well—the children of such working mothers are themselves happier, better adjusted, and more fulfilled!

All very well, you say, but what's it got to do with you? Isn't it obvious? If you are underachieving at college, get your mother a job.

What kind of job? Well sir, your mother is probably between 35 and 50 years of age, so certain occupations must immediately be ruled out. Logging, for example. Or whaling. Or carhopping.

But don't despair. There are other kinds of jobs—not many, to be sure, but some. However, you must not stick Mom in just any old job. You must remember that after the excitement of raising you, she would be bored to tears as a file clerk, for instance, or as a doorman. (A doorman, as we all know, is someone who brings handfuls of water to track layers. With the recent invention of the pail, dolmen are gradually falling into technological unemployment.)

But I digress. I was saying, find Mom a job worthy of her talents, something challenging that uses her vast wisdom and experience but, at the same time, is not too hard on her obsolescing tissues. That's what Walter Sigafos did, and the results were brilliantly successful.

Walter, a sophomore at the Upper Maryland College of Wickerwork and Belles Lettres, majoring in raffia, approached the problem scientifically. First he asked himself what his mother did best. Well sir, what she did best was to keep hollering, "Dress warm, Walter!"

At first glance this seemed a skill not widely in demand, but Walter was not discouraged. He sent out hundreds of inquiries and today, I am pleased to report, his mother is happily employed as wardrobe mistress for the Montreal Canadiens.

Another fortunate venture was that of Frank C. Gransmir, a junior at the Oregon State Conservatory of Music and Optometry, majoring in sties. Frank, like Walter, did a survey in depth of his mother's talents. Chief among them, he found, was her ability to make a roast of beef feed the whole family for three days. So, naturally, Frank got her a job at the Museum of Natural History.

What has one to do with the other, you ask? Isn't it obvious? Anyone who can stretch ribs like that belongs in paleontology.

I cannot conclude this column without saying a few words about Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades. The reason I cannot is that this column is sponsored by the makers of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades, and they are inclined to get peckish if I omit to mention their product.

Not, mind you, that it is a chore for me to plug Personna. Or, for the matter of that, to shave with Personna. No sir: no chore. Personna takes the pain out of shaving, scrubs the scrape, negates the nick, repudiates the rasp, peels the pull, boycotts the burn, blackballs the bite, ousts the ouch. Furthermore, Personna endures and abides, gives you luxury shave after luxury shave, day after day after day. And further furthermore, Personna is available both in double-edge style and injector style. And as if all this were not bounty enough, Personna is now offering you a chance to grab a fistful of $100 bills! The "Great Game" sure was a disappointment for the spectators. Michigan State and Notre Dame slugged it out for 60 minutes and came away with a 10-10 tie. In a way it's a fitting end for two great teams, but it would have been nice for one of them to win. They'll be arguing over who has the best team for years. As far as I'm concerned, it's still the Irish.

The tie didn't figure in last week's predictions. The result was an 8-1 record bringing the season total to 49-15-2 for a percentage of .766.

Games around the conference and the country for Thanksgiving and next Saturday:

MARYLAND AT FLORIDA STATE: The Terrapins lost their cool, and their hides, at Virginia while FSU romped over Wake. The Seminoles are better by 14.

SOUTH CAROLINA AT CLEMSON: Here's a perfect place for Paul Dietzel to spring an upset and finish 2-8 instead of 1-9. But Clemson couldn't choke the title two straight years. Could they? Clemson by 10.

ARMY VS. NAVY: The Cadets have compiled a 7-2 record, not bad for a rookie coach who wasn't supposed to have much. However, none of those seven opponents had a winning record and the Black Knights were crushed by Notre Dame and Tennessee.

Navy has had an off year, 3-6. With John Cartwright at quarterback, they are dangerous enough to scare anyone, but not quite good enough to win much. Army's defense is tough and that gives them the edge in this Philadelphia classic encounter, by 7.

MIAMI AT FLORIDA: This one could be an excellent ball game. The Hurricanes are capable of beating anyone, with Georgia and Southern Cal to their credit. But with Florida safely in the Orange Bowl, Steve Spurrier is not going to relax. Florida by 10.

NEBRASKA AT OKLAHOMA: Could be a hard game for the Cornhuskers, who are Sugar Bowl-bound. They have been having a difficult time this year, but the fact remains that they are still unbeaten. Oklahoma has hit a losing skid and Nebraska should continue it, by 14.

GEORGIA TECH AT GEORGIA: Throw the Orange Bowl and Cotton Bowl teams together and what do you get? Tech has the best halfback in the South in Lenny Snow and a good quarterback in Larry Good. Georgia, though, is a clutch team. Try Georgia by 3.

MISSISSIPPI STATE AT MISSISSIPPI: The Rebs were cheated out of the Gator Bowl, although they may wind up in the Bluebonnet. This fact, coupled with a weak Mississippi State team, makes them better by 20.

SOUTHERN METHODIST AT TEXAS CHRISTIAN: If the Mustangs win, they'll be in the Cotton Bowl, which is where they play all the time anyway. TCU, with a sad-sack team, will be out to spoil everything and will make it tough. SMU by 2.

Soccer Team Misses NCAA Playoffs; End Season As ACC Co-Champions

BY DRUMMOND BELL
DTH Sports Writer

It appears that Carolina will not receive the bid for a chance at the national soccer championship. West Virginia is now the likely prospect, and the booters will have to try again next fall.

The 1-1 deadlock with Springfield College was the deciding factor in the Tar Heels regional bid drive. Springfield entered the Carolina game with a 2-7 record. If the booters had been able to win, the prospects would have been bright.

Carolina did manage to

have one of its finest seasons. Coach Allen's squad finished the year with a 7-2 record and a ACC co-championship with Maryland. Unfortunately, Carolina lost to undefeated Navy and Maryland, but with the added scoring strength of freshmen Bush and Packard, next year could be great.

This year the seniors led by co-captains Bob Johnson and Jim Hammer played exciting soccer. Left wing Jack Weller and junior Larry Heath led the scoring barrage with John Loud and Jim Johnston not far behind.

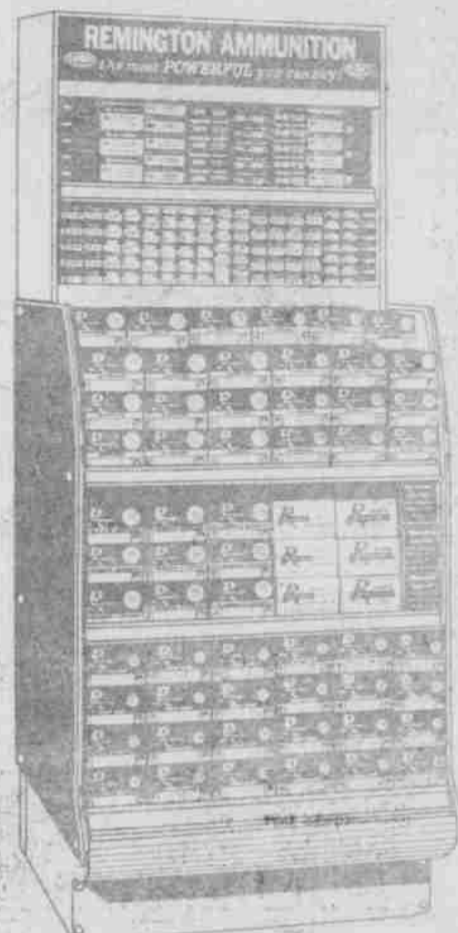

Coach Allen will miss the defensive services of Perry Henry but sophomore John Gassenhoven and junior Jim Johnston did fine jobs late in the season at right and center fullback and will give experience to the defense next year. At the halfbacks, Allen will miss sophomores Jamie Camfield returning and will lose two three-year lettermen in the co-captain Jim Hammer and Dan Galves.

Offensively, next year could bring about another potent attack. Heath, Crane and Anderson return along with freshmen Bush and Packard, who will move up from the outstanding freshman team.

Soccer has come a long way at Carolina under Allen and may develop into a national power next year. A few breaks and Carolina may find itself at the top.
