CIA Reported Aiding NSA

By DON CAMPBELL
DTH News Editor

The National Student Association was reported yesterday to have received "substantial funds" for more than 10 years from the Central Intelligence Agency to help finance the NSA's overseas activities. The CIA-NSA relationship was revealed after Ramparts Magazine ran a full page advertisement in the New York Times and the Washington Post announcing a forthcoming article concerning the financial relationship.

"The relationship apparently originated because the CIA believed that a strong American national union of students acting internationally was in the national interest," a spokesman for the NSA said in Washington.

Here at Carolina, Eric Van Loon and Teddy O'Toole, southern regional representatives on the NSA ten-member National Advisory Board, left hurriedly for a meeting of the Board in Washington.

Van Loon, who is chairman of the Supervisory Board's Legal and Finance Committee, said he had learned of the planned Ramparts article at a Board meeting in January.

He said the article was written by a former NSA member who had been relieved of his duties in the middle of last year. He would not identify the writer.

"I believe the writer of the article wanted the NSA to end any dealings with the CIA," Van Loon said, "and of course, he was well paid for the article."

The ads said that in its March issue, Ramparts "will document how the CIA has infiltrated and subverted the world of American student leaders and has interfered, in a most shocking manner, in the internal workings of the nation's oldest and largest student organization."

Richard Sterns, NSA international affairs vice president said he understood the CIA contributions ran around $200,000 a year at the beginning, in the early 1950s.

He said a decision was made in 1955 to terminate the tie with the CIA. He said that the contribution in that year was only about $50,000 but that it would take until this year to completely break the tie, because cause of an extensive financial commitment.

Van Loon said that no more money was coming from the CIA as far as he knew.

"We never received money directly from the CIA," he said, "and it never appeared on our books as money from the CIA."

Van Loon said that the CIA had been giving money to certain foundations and organizations. These foundations, in turn, were awarding the NSA grants and fellowships for use in various international conferences overseas.

Sterns told newsmen that "The CIA was just interested in getting the United States' point of view across at the international conferences."

He denied that the U. S. representatives were picked by the CIA or that they had to meet any "ideological test".

Van Loon said, "No contacts were made with the CIA at the overseas conferences."

Board To OK Candidates

All candidates for editor of The Daily Tar Heel who wish to receive the Publications Board endorsement must be interviewed on Tuesday at 8 p.m. on the second floor of Graham Memorial.

The interested candidates should have two letters of reference from faculty members, which must be submitted to Frank Longest, chairman of the Pub Board by Monday.

Endorsement of the Pub Board or presenting a petition are the only ways a student may have his name on the ballot.

Center Set For Foreign Students

A new experiment in international relations will be conducted on campus next fall when the International Student Center opens.

The center, to be housed in Carr Dormitory, will be home for 29 male students from the United States and 29 male students from foreign countries.

Jim Medford, chairman of the International Students' Board, said the center offers students "an opportunity to bring American and foreign students closer together."

He said the foreign student advisor will have his office in the center next fall.

There will also be office space for the International Students Board, the Cosmopolitan Club, the AIESEC and other organizations concerned with international activities.

Medford said the center will be the "focal point of international activities on campus."

He hopes that programs on various aspects of international life can be sponsored through the center.

Any student interested in living in the center may pick up an application form from the foreign student advisor's office on the second floor of Murphey.

Applications are available Monday and must be returned to the foreign student advisor's office by March 3.

Applicants will be notified of time for an interview between March 6-8.

Competition is open to all male students, with preference given to juniors, seniors and graduate students.

Sitterson Pleased, Upset, By Budget

Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson said yesterday in reference to Gov. Moore's budget proposal "there are areas in which we are very pleased, as well as those areas in which we are rather disappointed."

Governor Moore Tuesday night recommended that the University be allocated less than one tenth of the requested $66.7 million.

The UNC branch at Charlotte, the newest and smallest of the four branches of the Consolidated University, is slated to receive $10.4 million, if the governor's proposal is accepted.

"I was very pleased with many of the governor's recommendations," Sitterson said, "and we are happy with all those things regarding the University that he suggested that the general Assembly allocate."

Specifically, Sitterson mentioned Moore's recommendations for a new social science building, a new chemistry building, an addition to Dey Hall (romance language building) and air conditioning for the central classroom buildings.

Sitterson was most disappointed that there had been no provision for the dramatic theatre appropriation which had been requested. "I feel that such a theatre is central to the cultural advancement of the University community," he said.

The chancellor was also happy with the recommendations for salary raises for the faculty. "Although, here, too, we didn't get as much as we had asked for," he said.

"These are more or less generalities," he said. "The full budget proposal—all four volumes of it—will have to be examined carefully before I can say specifically just what we are pleased and with

Bob Lewis Scores 36 For Season High

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Managing Editor

RALEIGH—The Tar Heels rebounded from their defeat in Atlanta and defeated the Wolfpack of N.C. State 77-60 last night.

The near capacity crowd of 12,000 witnessed one of the outstanding individual performances displayed this season by an Atlantic Coast Conference player.

Bob Lewis did everything during the forty-minute basketball period. He scored from nearly every point on the floor. He was inside for three-point-play-lay-ups, then in the corners, then the key.

The senior from Washington, D.C. ended the evening with 36 points, almost half of the Tar Heel total.

When he wasn't in possession of the ball, he led one of the most aggressive defenses that Carolina has displayed all season. And he shared game high rebounding total with Larry Miller—each had eleven.

Last night, Reynolds Coliseum belonged to Bob Lewis.

In the early moments of the second half he brought the Tar Heels away from disaster.

With 16:30 remaining in the game and UNC leading 44-31 State shook off its ineptitude and began to play fine basketball. Dick Braucher hit a jump shot from the top of the key.

Then the pack forced Carolina into offensive errors with a 3-2 zone defense, the very same which very nearly gave Wake Forest a victory at C.H. They, also, for the first time in the game, took over control of the backboards.

Braucher terminated a fast break with an easy layup. And one minute later, he repeated the trick.

Suddenly, State was back in the game. The six-four guard had pulled the Wolfpack within 7 points, 37-41.

Then center Paul Mavredes made a layup and Robt McLean scored two more points on a long shot from the right side.

But, just when the momentum was shifting into the hands of the home team and just when the crowd began to whisper "upset", Bob Lewis exploded.

With 11:30 remaining and the score UNC 48-NC State 42 he hit two shots from the foul line.

After Dick Grubar scored from the right side, Lewis added eight points to Carolina's total in less than two minutes. He scored twice from the left corner, then once from the right, and then from the foul line.

Lewis couldn't miss. He broke State's hazily weaved spell, and sent his team into the final eight minutes with a comfortable 60-44 lead.

Terry Moore, the forward, providing the Wolfpack's offensive spark this season, soon fouled out. Rusty Clark followed him. The Tarheel's center, who had been in foul trouble virtually the whole game, walked to the bench with 5:32 on the clock.

But by then Clark's absence didn't matter. Carolina coasted through the final minutes.

Dean Smith . . .
... "Let's move!"

As Lewis led the Tarheels to victory in the second half, it was he who gave the Tar Heels their lead in the first.

4 points of the ball game. Then, 4 pts of the ball game. Then, with both teams playing error-riddled basketball, Lewis began a performance which would give him a season-high scoring total of 36.

The Tarheels controlled the backboards and Lewis' arsenal of shots gave them a 30-27 lead at the intermission.

Wesolowski On Trial For Student Slaying

Dick Wesolowski, UNC football player, will be tried Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the courtroom of Manning Hall for the slaying of a Duke University student.

The student was found twenty feet from his car in the Arboretum on the morning of February 12. The coroner ruled that he was killed by a blunt instrument hit against his skull, and the end of a baseball bat was discovered at the scene.

Police contend it was a crime of passion, after Wesolowski threatened the student twice before witnesses became the student dated Wesolowski's former fiancée.

The trial is the annual mock trial presented by the Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity.

Presented each year, Phi Alpha Delta selects the jury from the student body. Interviews and jury selection this year will be in the courtroom of Manning Hall at 3 p.m. Friday, the afternoon of the trial.

Presiding judge will be the Honorable Edward B. Clark, a member of the N. C. Superior Court bench.

The public is invited to view the proceedings.

For Modeling Nude

Coed Disciplined

GAINESVILLE, FLA., (AP) —Pretty Pamela Brewer was given disciplinary probation the next two terms at University of Florida today because she posed nude for a magazine published off the campus.

"I thought it would be more severe," Goldin said.

Pamela, asked her opinion of the punishment, said: "I don't really think anything yet. I didn't know what to expect. I guess I'm rather surprised."

Goldin said the probation means she can remain in school and will have no problems as long as she doesn't get in trouble. He said he understands it carries no social restrictions.

Asked if he planned to appeal the mild penalty, Goldin replied "We'll make a statement on that sometime next week."

He said he still feels the university's decision, convicting the 18-year-old Springfield, Va. coed of "inappropriate and indiscreet conduct" was not justified. She was punished for displaying her nude 38-25-38 figure while reclining on a Persian rug.

At last Friday's lengthy hearing, the university presented no evidence against Miss Brewer. All the testimony was in her favor.

While the decision was being made a group of about 400 students and teachers gathered in front of the administration building and circulated a petition calling for a discussion on possible changes in the university's disciplinary procedure.

The group moved to the administration building from the Plaza of the Americas. About 100 students staged a sit-in in the administration building and said they wouldn't move until school officials met with them. Most speakers at the rally called for changes in discipline procedures of the university, including an elected discipline committee of half faculty and half students instead of the present appointed committee of eight faculty members and two students.

One sign held aloft proclaimed "nude power."

Miss Brewer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brewer, said she had previously modeled nude for photography exhibits abroad.

Coffee House Comes Back On Monday

The coffee house sound continues in the form of Steve Gillette. The Bitter End sends Gillette to follow Jake Holmes in bringing sensitive, thought-probing folk music to U.N.C.

Gillette has been writing and performing his own music in clubs and concerts across the country.

Steve's original music includes "Darch Farrow," "Molly and Tenbrooks" recorded by Ian and Sylvia, and "2:10 Train" recorded by Carolyn Hester.

He attended UCLA where he played 5-string banjo with a Blue Grass group, before he began writing and performing on his own with the guitar.

He has appeared with Ian and Sylvia, Judy Collins, Odetta, The Mitchell Trio, Bob Gibson, Carolyn Hester, the Green Briar Boys, Judy Henske, Josh White and many others.

Gillette will be appearing at the GM coffee house Mon., Feb. 20 through Sat., Feb. 25 with 9 p.m. shows each day plus an 11 p.m. show Friday and Saturday. Admission is 75 cents.

Report Asks Massive Cut In UNC Trustee Board

Raleigh (AP) — A report proposing some drastic changes in organization of the University of North Carolina board of trustees was handed Tuesday to the General Assembly.

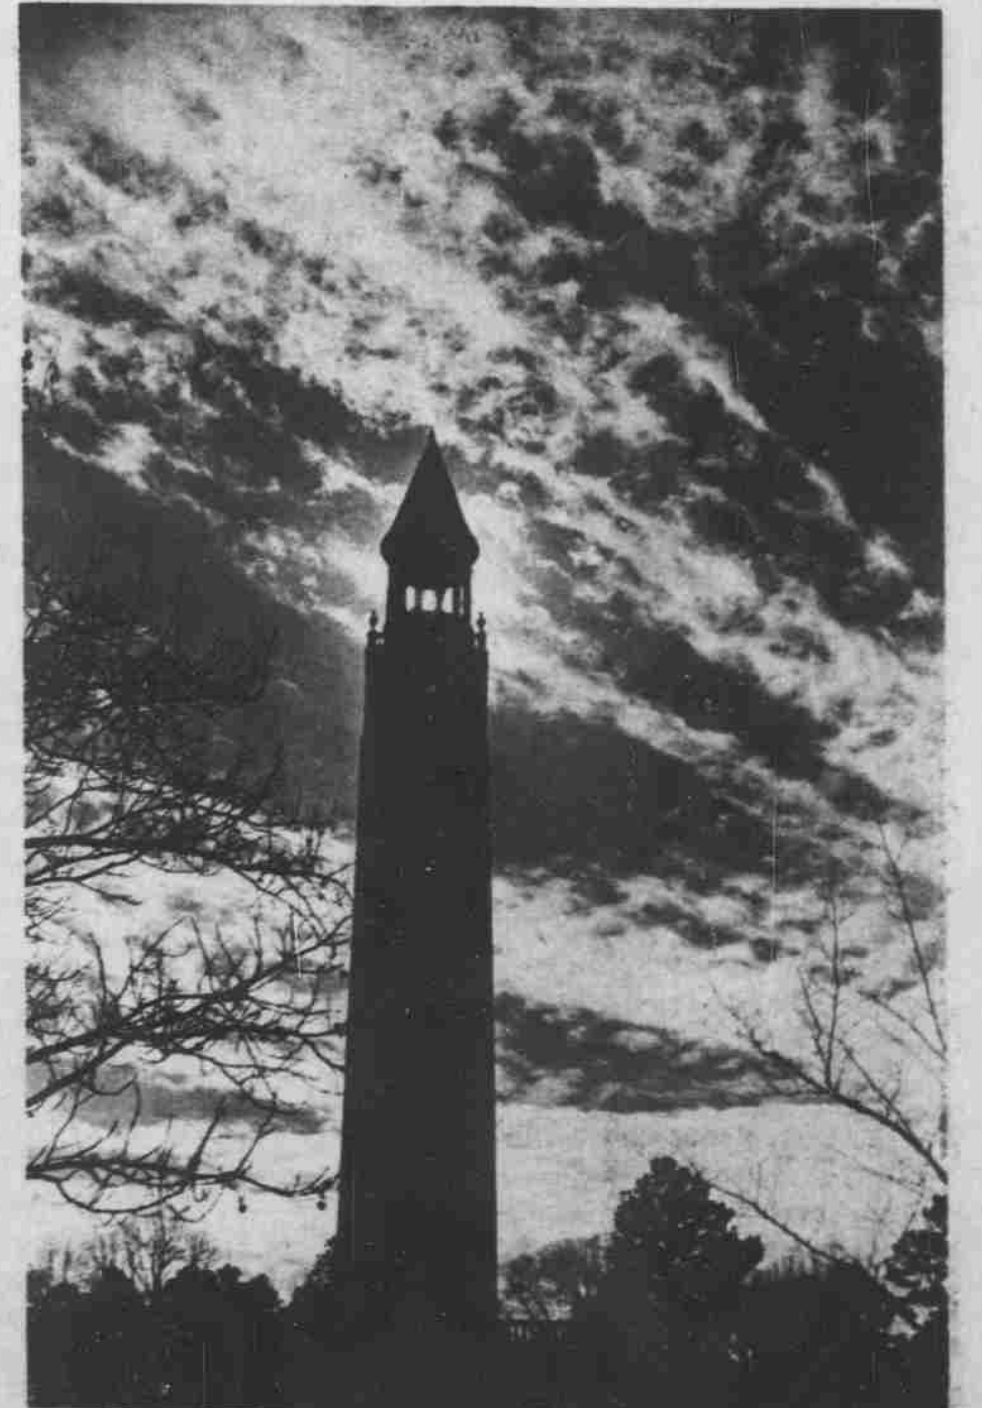

It recommends the board's membership be cut from 100 to 24 and that legislators be prohibited from serving as trustees.

The report was prepared by a study commission headed by former Gov. Luther Hodges. Sen. L. P. McLendon Jr., D-Gulfport, delivered the report to the Senate and Rep. Hugh Ragsdale, D-Onslow, presented it to the House.

Legislation to carry out the commission's proposals will be introduced later in the session.

Recommendations in the report call for geographical representation on the trustee board, with at least one trustee from each congressional district; establishment of a 100-member "board of advisers" to promote good relations between the University and the public; rotation of seats on the trustee executive committee; and doing away with the governor's role as board chairman.

The commission proposed that the board's size be cut gradually to reach a membership of 24 by 1973. Current members would serve out their terms, with the General Assembly electing six members every two years for the usual eight years starting in 1967.
