Travis, Purdy Receive Party Nods

SP Does Not Pick VP Man

4 Hours of Debates Hold Up SP Actions

Bob Travis, administrative aide to Student Body President Bob Powell, Monday night defeated David Kiel for president of the student body.

The tally was 264 for Travis to 173 for Kiel.

Travis, calling for educational reforms, said he favored the extension of the class cut system, a reading week just prior to examinations, emphasis on out-of-classroom learning through experimental method, and a study of the merits of required courses in General College.

He also called for a reform of the campus code to limit enforcement to violations which occur only on campus.

The second session will not be held tonight because of a special legislative meeting.

He further advocated more liberal handling of student welfare and aid programs, particularly concerning wage increases for students on student aid.

He called for the establishing of a committee to investigate the University Food Service and to check the quality of food. Travis asked that a study of student stresses be conducted following the suicide in Morrison before exams.

He said that he would try to personally visit every member of the General Assembly to represent the feelings and positions of UNC students.

Travis has also served as the Director of the Dept. of Administration, legislative liaison for the executive branch of Student Government, and as Chairman of the Audit Board.

The DTH deadline prohibited further coverage of the SP convention. Complete results will appear tomorrow.

UNC To Send Two Delegates To Model UN

From April 5-8, UNC will send two delegations to the annual Model United Nations meeting, held this year at East Carolina College.

Eight colleges and universities from Virginia, Georgia, Kentucky, North Carolina and South Carolina will send delegations.

The delegations will represent Great Britain and either Mexico or Syria. There will be four people on each delegation plus any observers who wish to attend the meeting.

During the session, resolutions will be proposed by the delegations from the various countries, debated and then voted on.

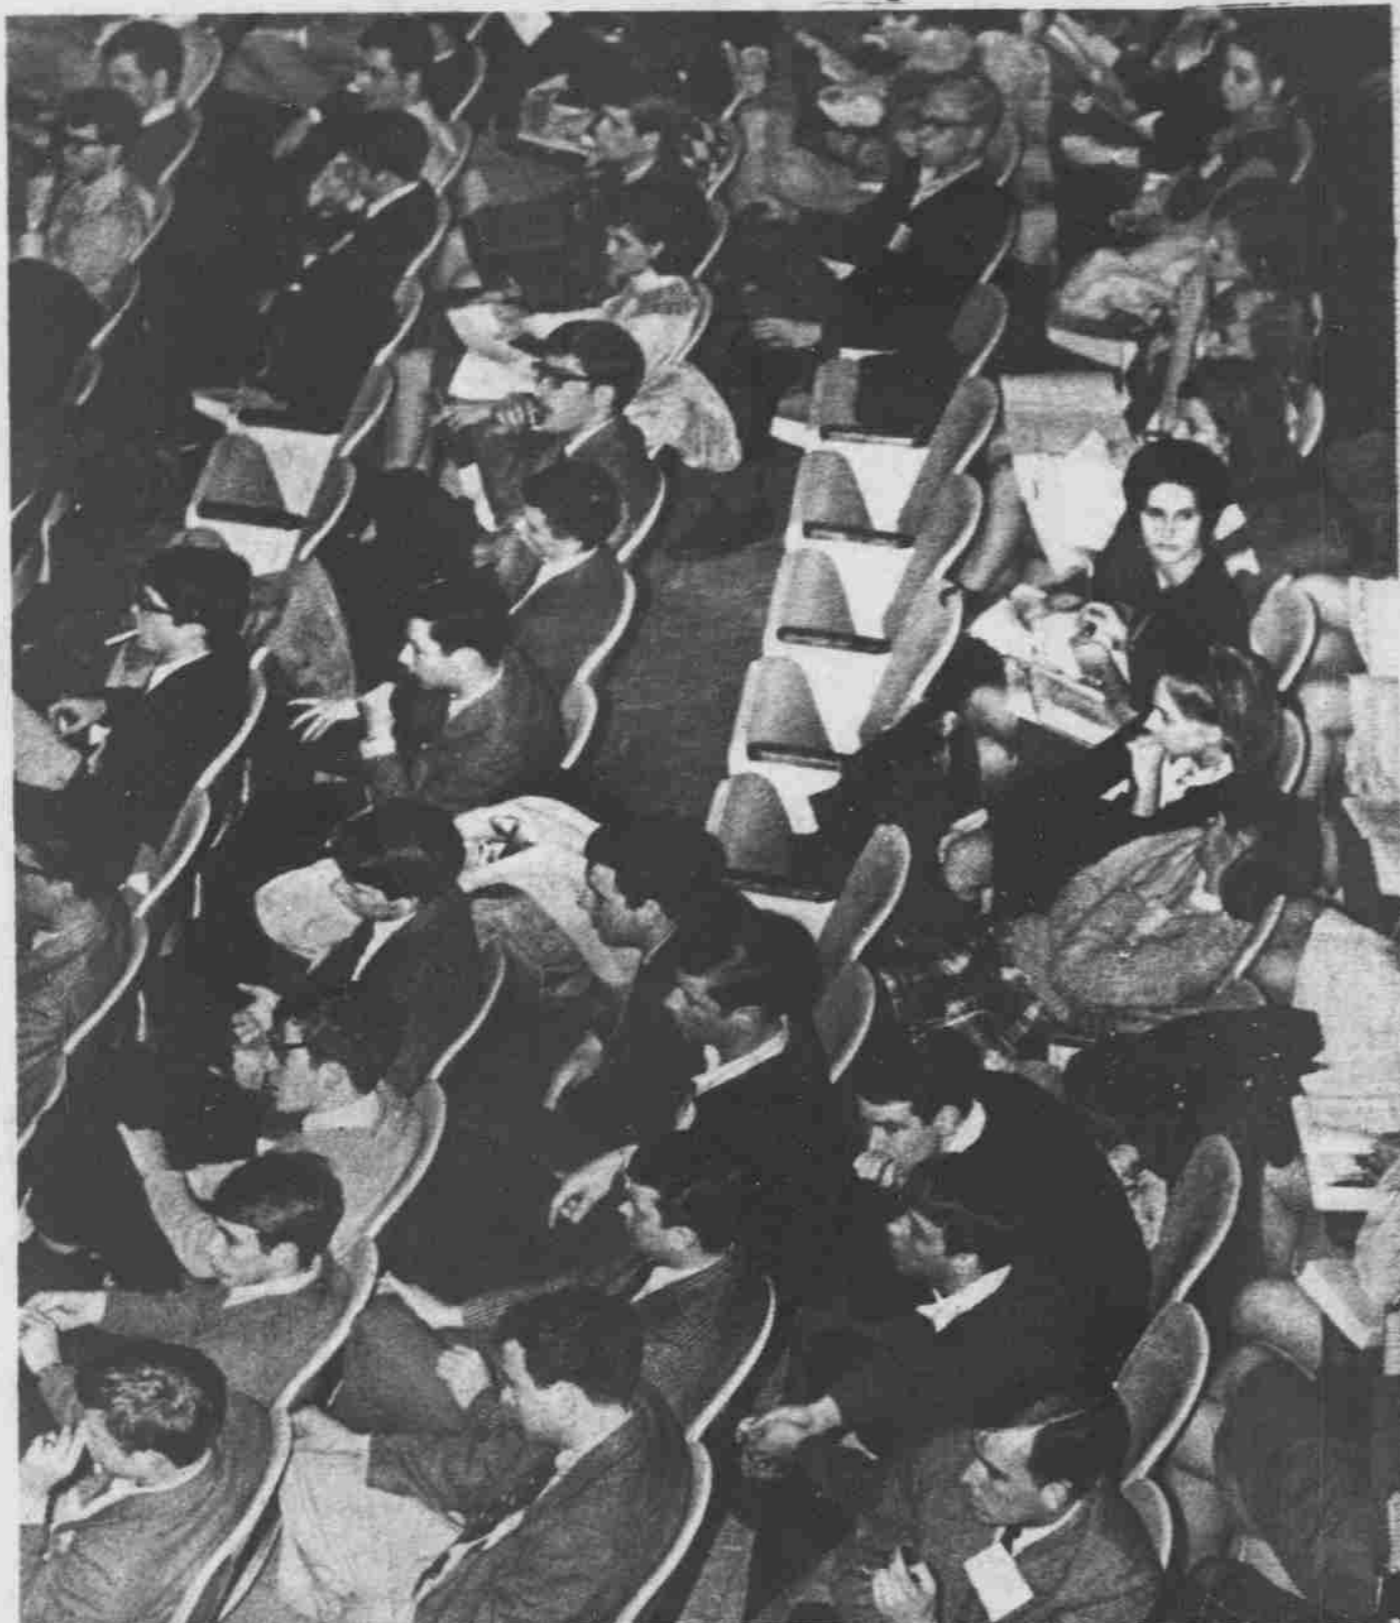

Several outstanding speakers will address the assembly. Interviews for the delegate positions will be held Wednesday and Thursday from 2:30-4:00 in Roland Parker Lounge III in Graham Memorial.

Preferably, applicants should have some background in international affairs, although this is not a requirement. The appointments will be announced at the end of the week.

The expenses for the three day trip will cost about $15 for a delegate including registration, room and board, and $13 for an observer.

Once the delegations have been selected, the participants will begin research on the countries they will be representing.

Last year, the conference was held at Duke.

Conventions have a way of happening at Carolina. They either drag on forever or are over in no time. The former happened at the SP and the latter at the UP. However, both of them had many things in common. Not the least of which was politicking. It seemed that no one knew exactly what was going on but everybody had something to say about it. But that's the way politics is. If the national parties can't get together completely, how can students?

Dunivant Gets VP Selection

Purdy Gets UP Nod

In 1 1/2 Hour Meeting

By CAROL WONSavage

DTH Staff Writer

The University Party nominated by acclamation Bill Purdy for student body president and Noel Dunivant for vice president at the U.P. convention last night in Carroll Hall.

Also nominated by acclamation were Gail Poe, secretary, and Hugh Saxton, treasurer.

Two candidates were nominated from the floor for senior class president, secretary, and social chairman.

Don McPhaul won the presidential nomination over Bill Wood by a vote of 178-90; Susan Dockering won secretarial nomination over Jenny Sue Kirkland, 147 to 121; and Susan Spiller took the social chairman nomination by recount from Fran Dayvault, 138 to 137.

Billy Travis won senior class vice presidential nomination and Charles Silver the treasurer's, both by acclamation.

The convention also nominated NSA representatives Tom Manley, Karen Gibbon, Kenneth Day, and Bill Southerland. Nomination for Carolina Athletic Association representative was postponed until next convention meeting.

In his acceptance speech, candidate Bill Purdy said, "The University Party will focus on the problems of the University—to see that something gets done, not who gets credit for it."

He said that the student government should see education as its primary responsibility. He hopes to see provision made for independent study for credit, an organized tutorial program, and recommend that drop-add be completed in one place on campus.

Purdy added that the U.P. hopes to see the expansion of the residence college system and will support the growing residence college radio system.

More Than 200 Sign Up For Experimental College

Several additional courses will be offered in the Experimental College program.

The new courses are:

How to Learn a Language: Applied linguistics for beginning language students; particularly for those having difficulty learning a language. The class will meet under Dr. Clay Monday from 2 to 4 p.m. at 101A Swain Annex.

The Physics of Music and Musical Instruments: The nature of sound as a physical phenomenon. It will be taught by Prof. L. Slifkin Thursday, March 2 at 7:30 p.m.

Guerilla Warfare: Its History and Practice: Understanding the principles of guerilla war and how it is fought. Richard Cooper will teach the course, and suggested the meeting time as Wednesday night at 7, but this can be arranged to suit the participants.

A course on J. D. Salinger's works will be taught by Max Steele, UNC's writer in residence.

In addition to the four new courses, there are two changes of location and one addition for the original courses.

Dr. Jay Rosenberg's course on the Concept of the Experimental College will be held from 2-5 p.m. on Saturday, not 7-9 p.m. on Saturday as printed in the catalogue.

Edwin Kuehn's Attempts at Comparative Mythology to meet Thursday from 7-9 p.m., will meet in the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority house on 302 Pittsboro St., instead of 319 Wilson.

Daryl Powell's American Thought Between 1865 and 1900 will meet in 315 Wilson Library instead of the Kappa Kappa Gamma house. First meeting will be on Wednesday, March 1 from 7-9.

Robert Collier announced that his New Materials in Sculpture class will have its first meeting in E-16 Ackland at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 21.

Chancellor Says '67 Budget Requests Look To The Future

By STEVE KNOWLTON

DTH Staff Writer

The money requested by UNC at Chapel Hill for the next biennium "would give us the plant for the year 1975," Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson said yesterday.

This is the projected date of maximum student enrollment, "about 18,000," the UNC

Oral Ban Argument Set Today

GREENSBORO (AP) — Final oral arguments in a suit to test the constitutionality of North Carolina's amended Speaker Ban Law will be heard Tuesday morning in U. S. Middle District Court in Greensboro.

The suit has been brought by a group of University of North Carolina students. Their lawyers have been allotted 45 minutes to argue their case. A similar period has been allotted lawyers for the state.

Judges who will hear the arguments and subsequently issue a decision are Clement F. Haynsworth of the 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals; Edwin M. Stanley of Middle District Court; and Almon N. Butler of U. S. Eastern District Court.

The suit was filed by the students after UNC Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson refused to allow Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson to speak on the Chapel Hill campus last spring.

Aptheker is director of the American Institute of Marxist Studies in New York. Wilkinson is executive director of a committee which seeks to abolish the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

The state law, passed in 1963, barred Communists and persons pleading the Fifth Amendment in loyalty cases from speaking on campuses of state-supported institutions.

The General Assembly, at a special session in 1965, amended the law, giving trustees control over speakers. Trustees later delegated authority in the matter to chancellors of the university branches.

chancellor said, "assuming community colleges develop the way they ought to."

Sitterson added that this date is pending upon facts known at this time. "There is no way I can know now what will happen in the next four years to alter the situation."

The chancellor is "both pleased and very disappointed" with the recommendations made last week by Governor Moore concerning appropriations for the University for the years 1967-69.

The University requested about $50,000,000 from the state in capital improvements, salary raises, and operational expenses, but the Governor recommended "considerably less than we requested," said Sitterson.

Sitterson stressed that the proposals are not binding to the General Assembly.

"We are still most hopeful that we will be able to get more than the Governor recommended when we take our case to the Joint Appropriations Committee," the chancellor said.

In capital improvements, the chancellor is "very pleased and happy" with Moore's recommendations for:

A new social science building costing an estimated $3.5 million.

A chemistry building estimated at $4.3 million;

A new business administration building costing $1.5 million;

Appropriation suggestions of over $300,000 for athletic fields and tennis courts.

Of the total cost, the state usually pays about two dollars for every dollar from other sources, particularly federal funds.

However, there were numerous specific projects which the Governor did not recommend. Among them were:

A dramatic arts building, which would have housed both a theatre stage and an experimental stage. "I feel that such a theatre is central," Sitterson said, "both to the University community and to the arts departments."

Studios in the Ackland art center for artists. In the last few years "there has been a tremendous development in art," he said. Carolina needs studios for students to work in. The Ackland Art Center is now totally financed by private funds.

NSA Will Return CIA-Backed Grant

By STEVE KNOWLTON

DTH Staff Writer

The National Student Association voted Saturday to return the unused portion of a financial grant to a CIA-sponsored foundation, an NSA representative said Sunday.

Eric Van Loon, chairman of the NSA's Legal and Finance Committee, said his committee voted to send back to the Youth and Student Affairs Foundation "all that's left of a $26,000 grant."

How much of the grant remains is not known.

"The grant was for a year," Van Loon said, "and five to six months have elapsed. I would therefore guess that about half of the $26,000 has been spent. All that is left will be sent back to the (Youth and Student Affairs) foundation."

Van Loon, returning from an emergency session of the NSA's National Advisory Board, refuted the story that the NSA was secretly trying to maintain association with the CIA.

That story, he said, "was an absolute, complete fabrication of a UPI reporter."

"I was extremely surprised that the UPI ran the story," Van Loon said.

He said that he met the UPI reporter and described him as "very young, in his early twenties, totally 'mod'—complete with boots, long hair, corduroy pants, and double-breasted pea coat."

Very few of the NSA members knew of the ties with the CIA, Van Loon reported.

"In the past, only the president and the International Affairs vice president, and perhaps one or two staff members have known that the CIA was supplying NSA with funds," he said.

Van Loon denied that he had any knowledge of the CIA's involvement: "I heard of it only hours before I boarded a plane for the emergency session in Washington."

"To my knowledge, no member of either the National Supervisory Board or the Legal and Finance Committee for the last 15 years has been aware of it," he said.

"The number of those who knew was kept to as small a number as possible" to reduce the chances of the story getting out.

The origins of the involvement are uncertain, he said. "I suspect it began innocently enough in the early '50's," Van Loon said, "with students looking for support for travel abroad. Later, students were required to submit to CIA backed organizations reports of the overseas transactions."

"It evolved that the CIA was supplying up to 80 percent of all NSA funds," he said. He added that the pressures on top NSA officials were tremendous, "with officers having to lie to the rest of the staff about where the money was coming from. They had to live on two different levels—both as undercover agents and as students in the Association."

Rather than being disillusioned with what has occurred, Van Loon said that he had "a real sense of confidence in knowing that the NSA is pulling together to make the Association even stronger and more effective than it had been in the past."

And it rained for forty days and forty nights . . . Well, not really, but it did seem that way yesterday. By the way, was that really Noah's Ark in the middle of Y-Court? It said Navy, anyway.—DTH Photo by Mike McGowan
