

Remember... Dayton's Next

By JEFF MacNELLY
DTH Sports Editor

Now that the delirious dust from the weekend victories has settled, many Tar Heels have been warily looking ahead to the upcoming NCAA semi-finals and finals in Louisville.

Dean Smith has been looking and thinking ahead too. "The worst thing that could happen to us in Louisville," according to Coach Smith, "would be to have any thoughts other than about Dayton."

The coach is right, of course, but there still has been more than a little speculation about the big "what if" game. . . North Carolina vs. UCLA. It's too tempting for any fan not to figure out how the Tar Heels would fare against the Uclans, and Lew Alcindor.

Lew is naturally the big concern. The teams that have fallen in UCLA's wake have tried just about everything to defend against the huge sophomore. Nothing has really worked. The greatest problem is that no matter how successfully Alcindor is boxed up, the talented and all but forgotten other four members of the UCLA squad can take up the slack easily.

How, then, will the Tar Heels play Alcindor?

The obvious way would be to play Clark inside on the big man, with Miller protecting the outside. The 1957 team was faced with the same problem in the finals against Kansas when the awesome giant was a sophomore by the name of Wilt Chamberlain. Coach Frank MacGuire put the Tar Heel big man, Joe Quigg on the inside, with guard Tommy Kearns protecting the outside on the Stilt. It worked, of course . . . in triple overtime.

Former Celtics great, and the coach of the Boston College Eagles, Bob Cousy thinks that Rusty Clark stands a good chance alone against Lew.

"If Clark takes him with the idea that Alcindor is going to get 30 and don't worry about it, then Carolina could win" Cousy explained.

Enough said. We shouldn't even be thinking of such a thing. But with Louisville out of the way, everyone is looking forward to a Saturday night UCLA-Carolina meeting . . . everyone, that is, except Coach Smith and his players.

"We won't be there (Saturday) if we don't get ready for Dayton," reasoned Smith.

Dayton is a tough team under the boards, and the Tar Heels will have to be on their toes. Also Don May, Dayton's All-America, cannot be ignored. Coach Smith can't afford to have anyone on the squad thinking beyond the Dayton game.

The Friday night game must be regarded as a tough one. Nothing can be taken for granted when a team makes it to the semi-finals. As Smith says, "You don't get this far by accident."

Stickmen Face Dickinson At 3 O'clock On Fetzer

By DRUMMOND BELL

Carolina's spirited lacrosse team meets Fairleigh Dickinson today on Fetzer field at 3 o'clock. After an opening game loss to a highly touted Washington College team, Coach Bischoff's stickmen hope to even their record this afternoon.

Fairleigh Dickinson is another fine team. This year they will bring three of the nation's top scorers last year to Chapel Hill.

Coach Jim Bischoff was not discouraged about his first loss as head coach. "We knew that Washington College had an outstanding team, and Regan and Ortman are sure bets to be All-Americans." We will improve and are looking forward to the Fairleigh Dickinson game.

Carolina is at full strength for today's game, and Bischoff plans on starting the same line-up which opened the stickmen's season last weekend.

Co-captain Tim Balch, who had a goal and two assists in the opener, will lead Carolina's attack along with John Callan, who scored twice Saturday and George Brown, who opened the Tar Heels scoring against Washington.

At the midfield positions Temple Grassl, Bill Bickler and Loring Swasey will have the task of sustaining the Carolina offensive attack. Co-captain Bob Morrison, soph Jeff Perry and letterman Sandy Reider are Bischoff's second line and were credited with two goals against Washington.

Defensively, Carolina had its problems on Saturday. Today Fairleigh Dickinson brings another corps of offensive standouts. Hopefully, defensemen John Ward, Rick Inderfurth and John Gussenhoven and goalie Jim Kenan will have better success.

The experience gained Saturday may have been the remedy to Carolina's defensive problem. Because of the inexperience of the defense, clears were sloppy and Washington capitalized on the mistakes. The Tar Heels realize their errors and may be able to give Dickinson's attackmen a long afternoon.

Carolina is looking forward to their second game of the season. Saturday the offense showed that they could score when they had the ball. If the defense is able to contain Dickinson's strong attack, and Carolina's attack continues to score as they did in the opener, Coach Bischoff may win number one.

The game starts at 3 o'clock on Fetzer.

Talkative Clay Vs. Zora Folley Tonite

NEW YORK (AP)—A cocky but charitable Cassius Clay rules an overwhelming 5-1 choice over 34-year-old Zora Folley in the ninth defense of his heavyweight boxing championship Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden.

"I may let him go 15 rounds to give the commercials a chance to advertise," the pugnacious titleholder, one of the game's all-time showmen, said in a pre-fight statement.

Folley, a rugged old warrior from Chandler, Ariz., who has been knocking at the title door for 10 years without ever getting a shot, appeared guardedly confident. "I've got experience and a good punch," said the aging father of eight. "Cassius makes mistakes. I think I can take advantage of them. I think I have a real good chance to win."

Fight time in the historic midtown arena, bracing for its first heavyweight title bout in 16 years, is 10:30 p.m. EST.

An estimated 16,000-up are expected to push the live gate to $300,800, a Garden record. The bout will be televised nationally by a special network—MSG-RKO—but blacked out over a 90-mile radius of New York.

The garrulous, 25-year-old Clay, who has treated past opponents with mixed disdain and sadistic savagery, has been unusually kind in his pre-fight relations with Folley—like a young man giving due respect to an elder.

"Zora is the best boxer among the contenders and deserves the chance," the champion said.

"But I am the greatest." Clay refused to predict a knockout although his trainer, Angelo Dundee, forecast that the referee would be counting the final toll over Folley's prestrate form in the fourth round.

DKE lost a seven point lead and trailed by 5 with a minute and a half to go, but pulled out the fraternity blue championship against Phi Delt, 49-45 in overtime.

Phi Delt scored the opening basket, but trailed 18-17, with 2:50 left in the first half. Gribble's defense and rebounding helped make it 25-19 at the half.

Parrish, high man with 21, kept Phi Delt in the game with his outside scoring and defensive board play. Parrish netted 12 in the second half surge, and his teammates hit from the foul line. DKE committee twelve of their sixteen personals after half-time.

Beaver fed Crowder beautifully underneath for a three point lead in the last minute, but a DKE basket cut it to one. Culp hit the first of a one-and-one, but Adams came through with the tying DKE bucket. Both teams traded last second misses before overtime found the score 40-40.

Adams had 18, Gribble hit 11, and Rhodes threw in 10 for the winners. Culp helped Parrish and the Phi Delt's with 10.

The Ruffin Celtics dropped the Joyner Jocks with some red - hot shooting, 59-35. Markland hit 16 in a typically balanced Ruffin attack. Leaf, Bower, and Crenshaw each plugged 11. Cochrane collected 12 for the losers. High scoring Logan White was held to 9, all in the first frame. Buck Long dropped in two free throws in the waning seconds to give Phi Kap Sig Gold a 44-42 win over DKE White and a chance to meet Phi Delt White in the finals Tuesday.

Long and Gernert each notched 15 for the winners, while Carey connected for 16 DKE points.

Phi Delt White had little trouble with the Chi Psi Cadavers, 45-26. Bomar dropped in 12 and Pool 11, while West tallied 13 for Chi Psi.

Ehringhaus A scored two more foul shots than did the Morrison I Vikings and took a 41-39 quarterfinals win. Saunders hits 12 and Baker 11, while Lewin led the losers with 13 and McRorie added 10.

The winner of the Ehringhaus A-Parker Sliders tilt Tuesday will challenge the Ruffin Celtics at the residence hall title tonight at 7:00 in Carmichael.

The Craige B Braves led a high scoring softball slate with a 25-0 massacre of the Craige D Desperadoes. The Grimes gussiers mopped up the Grimes Growlers, 20-5.

The Parker Pea - turkeys scored 8 big runs in the top of the sixth and held the Teague Trojans in the bottom half to win, 16-8. Morrison G gave up four last inning runs, but held on against the Morr. D Pomes, 17-5.

The Morr H Marauders made a magnificent last inning rally, scoring 9 times to earn an 11-9 triumph over Moor B. The Craige B Web-backs downed the Craige C Cardinals, 12-5.

The Connor Animals beat the Morr I Vikings, 2-1, in badminton. The Everett Hagar shutout the Everett Crew, and the Stacy Lizards a 15-0 took a 3-0 match, beating the Mangum Whumps. The Alexander Logans nipped the Manly Men, 2-1.

Wheaties Honors Verga

Phenomenal Lew Alcindor of UCLA heads the 1966-67 National Association of Basketball Coaches All-America team, announced today. The 7-foot, 1 3/8 - inch sophomore received 1,867 points in the annual balloting conducted for the Wheaties Sports Federation by the nation's college coaches to top a first team which also includes Jimmy Walker of Providence (1,772 points), Louisville's Westley Unsel (1,459), Elvin Hayes of Houston (1,205) and Bob Verga of Duke (653).

Named to the second team were Larry Miller, North Carolina; Mel Daniels, New Mexico; Clem Haskins, Western Kentucky; Bob Lloyd, Rutgers; and Lloyd (Sonny) Dove, St. John's.

Third team selections were Bob Lewis, North Carolina; Lou Dampier, Kentucky; Dave Lattin, Texas Western; Cliff Anderson, St. Joseph's; and Jim Burns, Northwestern.

Alcindor led Coach John Wooden's Bruins throughout the season, scoring on two-thirds of his shots while compiling a 30-point-per-game average. He rebounded at a 16-per-game clip.

Verga, the "short" member of the All-America squad at six feet, is noted for his unorthodox shooting style, in which he jumps high and shoots from a dead run. He says he developed the style in high school "out of necessity" because of his height. A senior guard and captain of the Blue Devils, he shot, frequently from long range, at a 50 per cent pace and averaged 26 points a game. He holds the Duke stadium record of 51 points in a single game.
